A WASTE OF WATER.

What Science Says About the Legend of the Deluge.

WAS THE SUPPLY SUFFICIENT?

Noah's Ark as Compared to the Dimensions of a Warship.

A TRADITION OF ALL RACES.

How the Story Harmonizes With the Teachings of Religion.

The Church of the Advent in East Oakland is attracting much attention nowadays owing to the religio-scientific discourses of the Rev. V. Marshall Law. The doctor is a man of much research and has undertaken the great task of bridging the gulf which has heretofore separated science from religion. His logic is good and his arguments clear, and the abstruse problem of making the discoveries of science harmonize with the teachings of the bible becomes almost an easy task in his hands. He has already taken his congregation through the stages of the creation of the world and the origin of man, and yesterday he undertook to explain the deluge. This is how he did it.

The story of the deluge which is found in Genesis is that of the drowning of the earth in a great flood of waters is a visitation upon a wicked and degenerate people. The subject happily cannot be a dry one, and we shall expect to find it juicy as well as wet before we reach the ascription.

The story runs that men grew so desperately wicked that it repented God that He had created them, and that He, in consequence, decided to drown him out of the world, so that Noah and his family, the only righteous ones remaining, might have an opportunity to recover the fallen fortunes of the race by giving it another start de novo. So the dimensions of a great ship were given to Noah by the Lord, and Noah at once began to prepare for the flood amid the jeers of the wicked about him. The ship he was commanded to build, in the light of the evidence of the most accomplished modern shipwrights, was a most seaworthy craft of about 42,413 tons burthen. The ordinary man-of-war is only about 2 500 to 3,000 tons burthen, so we see that Noah's ark was something like fourteen to nineteen times the size of the average man-of-war. Upon most careful computation, several eminent authorities have shown that this vessel was ample for all the different animals which it was necessary for Noah to take along with him, including their food. Those unbelievers who argue that no ship could be made large enough to accomplish the purposes for which the ark was made, are reminded that in proportion as the theory is true, the number of animals which it was necessary for Noah to save becomes reduced, since from a much fewer primal types could the earth again be restocked. Skeptics are quite prone to use these weapons which have a double cutting edge without noticing their dangerous character until somebody gets hurt.

When everything was in readiness, Genesis tells us "the foundations of the great deep were broken up and the windows of heaven were opened," and then the rain fell in torrents for forty days and forty nights, and the waters rose over the highest hill-tops and drowned all animals that breathed the air and lived on the dry land. We find upon consulting the maps that during the flood the ark was borne away to the north, showing that the phenomena of destruction was accompanied by a strong current setting in that direction. You must remember this fact, for it cuts no small figure in that which is to follow. When Noah and his family came out of the Ark God told them that he had set his bow in the clouds for a perpetual "token" of His promise not to again drown the world.

At this juncture we hear skeptics, infidels and agnostics break into a loud guffaw and exclaim that such a story is perfectly absurd. They say, and truly, indeed, that the laws of reflection and refraction of light were in existence before the flood and that there must have been rainbows, too, if it ever rained at all in those days. They also tell us that there is not enough water to cover all the "highest hills under the whole face of the heavens," and that there is no evidence worth mentioning that such an occurrence ever took place. Let us clear away a little of this Tom Paine and William Denton rubbish before we proceed.

As for the rainbow, it certainly existed before the deluge. But what was to prevent God's "appointing it," or setting it in the clouds for the "token of a promise" immediately after the deluge. This is exactly what He did do, and all that Genesis says He did. The word translated "set" in this connection has the sense of "appointed," and excellent authorities so translate it, among whom may be mentioned Thomas Hartwell Horne in his great critical work on the Scriptures published some years ago, to say nothing of many later lights. (See "Horne's Introduction," vol. I, p. 76.) From the time the ark landed on Ararat man was to remember for all the future that the rainbow was henceforth to be the reminder of a promise that God would not again drown the world for the sins of the people. This seems peculiarly fitting, if you recall that whenever the proper conditions exist for a rainbow, the clouds are exceedingly dark and threatening and might give rise to fears of another flood. Every time I see a rainbow I remember this promise of God, and thousands of others do the same, and thus it continues fulfilling its mission of reminding man of God's promise, although before the deluge no such signification attached to it. So much for the bow.

THE WATER SUPPLY.

The next objection is that there is not enough water on the globe to cover "the highest hills under the whole heavens." Fortunately science, to which latterly the biblical scholar is becoming more and more indebted, by actual measurements in deep sea soundings, which are continually going on, and in which our government, through the agency of the cultured men of our navy, is taking an illustrious part off the coast of Japan, some of the results of which have recently been published in the English papers at Yokohama, come to our assistance here. And what is the general verdict?

Data has already sufficiently accumulated through these deep sea soundings to show that if God were to take a great smoothing iron and level down all the mountains and hills of both dry land and the ocean floors, so that the earth were smooth and one perfect sphere, there is water enough on the globe to cover the whole world to the depth of two miles! O, how timely is that providence of God, which makes the findings of science with which scoffers have been wont to malign the Word of God, veritable boomerangs in destroying the batteries of the very men who shot them forth. Not water enough to produce a general deluge? We can cover the whole earth now to the depth of two miles, and the soundings of the next few years may demonstrate that there is enough to inundate it to a depth of ten miles! O, those persons who roll the word "science" as a sweet morsel under their tongues, while they chew the cud of agnosticism shall have plenty of it before this hour's work is finished!

Having seen that there was, because there is, water enough to make a universal deluge, the next question is, was there a deluge?

To those who have tested the internal evidences of the Scriptures, the simple statement of the Hebrew Scriptures that there was a deluge is quite sufficient. Having tried the efficacy of revelation upon their own sinful natures, they are ready to accept any of the statements found therein without further question. But a large number of people, for divers reasons crave evidence of the truth of Scripture, other than the internal evidences, so we pass on to the external proofs of the flood. Prof. Huxley, the great king infidel of this century, has said, "at the present time it is quite difficult to persuade serious scientific enquirers to occupy themselves in any way with the Noachian deluge. They look at you with a smile and a shrug," etc. The "smile and the shrug," are, to say the least, not very scientific ways of meeting any question, and those with whom the "sneer" is such a potent means of debate will find that the question of whether there was really a deluge or not cannot be settled in that way. What has tradition to say upon the subject?

A LEGEND FOR ALL.

If there never was a great inundation corresponding to the Noachian deluge it is utterly impossible to account for the universality of the traditions which have prevailed among the most ancient peoples and nations in regard to such an event. They have been found in every quarter of the globe and among the wildest races. By accepting the deluge as an established historical fact, and the survivors of that catastrophe as the ancestors of modern man, these traditions can be accounted for and in no other way. These traditions are so numerous and so united in regard to all the salient points of the story, that the account substantially as we have it in Genesis could be produced had there never been any Hebrew scriptures.

The Chaldeans, the Egyptians, and the Assyrians, the Greeks and the Romans the Hindoos, the Persians and the Burmans, the Chinese and the Japanese, the Mexicans, the Peruvians, the Brazilians, the Nicaraguans and the Western Caledonians, the ancient Goths and Druids, the Cree Indians in the Polar regions of North America, the Otaheitans and Sandwich Islanders before their conversion to Christianity, and numerous other nations and tribes in widely separated quarters of the globe, combine in their traditions in voicing the existence at one time of a great flood corresponding in all essential particulars with that described in the Hebrew Scriptures. Ovid's description of Ducalion's Flood is so well known and remembered by every scholar that it is needless to point out to anyone who has received the least tincture of letters that it is identical with Noah's flood. Lucian, also, describes Ducalion's flood in such a way that it leaves no ground for doubting that Ducalion and Noah were one and the same. In order that you may better judge of the nature of this similarity, I will here reproduce Lucian's description, which when it begins and when it ends he professes to have received from the Greeks, so he cannot be suspected of having borrowed from the Scripture. Here it is:

"The present race of men was not the first, but the former generation was all destroyed, this second race sprung from Ducalion; the former was a wicked and profligate generation, for which reason this great calamity befell them; the earth gave forth abundance of water, great showers of rain fell and the rivers increased, and the sea swelled to such a degree that all things were water, and all men perished. Ducalion alone was left for a second generation on account of his prudence and piety, and he was preserved in this manner: He built a great ark and entered it with his wife and children, and to him swine and horses and lions and serpents and all other creatures which the earth maintains came in pairs. He received them all and they hurt him not; on the contrary, there was by divine instinct great friendship among them, and they sailed together in the ark as long as the waters prevailed.

"Lenormant in his 'Beginnings of History,' page 490, Ed. of 1880, thus summarizes in regard to the traditions of the flood:

"The long review to which we have just applied ourselves warrants our affirming that the tale of the deluge is an universal tradition among all branches of the human family, excepting, however, the blacks. But a remembrance prevailing everywhere so concise and so concordant cannot be that of a myth arbitrarily invented. No religious or cosmogonic myth presents such a character of universality. It must of necessity be a recollection of a great and terrible occurrence, which impressed the imaginations of the ancestors of our race so powerfully as never to have been forgotten by their descendants. That cataclysm took place at a spot near the primeval cradle of humanity."

The scriptures then first say there was a flood, and we have found that tradition supports the statement. Now what says science?

An inundation of the dimensions described in Genesis ought certainly to have left its mark upon the earth so that it could not be mistaken. Whether such evidences are to be found we shall call upon the rocks to answer: In the early days of geology the fossil remains found in the rocks were too hastily attributed to the deluge. This conclusion proved to be so unscientific that it resulted in turning everybody against efforts to find physical evidences of the flood, even when they might reasonably be looked for. But lately as the glacial age is coming nearer and nearer to our own time with the general advancement in geologic research we have suddenly discovered that the earth is filled with the most unmistakable evidences of a great and quite universal inundation.

THE GLACIAL EPOCH.

"It is the united testimony of geologists that there has been a great ice age, during which the earth seems to have been elevated at the poles, thereby lifting a part of the ocean beds in their vicinity so that the Gulf stream and such other warm currents as are known to temper the climate in northern latitudes were cut off and stopped, converting the present temperate zones into polar temperatures. Vast sheets of ice, which in England and other countries reached a thickness of 6,000 feet or upwards of a mile, went walking about the world of their own sweet will. This elevation of the land was followed by the great submergence, so that the ice was not only melted away, but the sea actually covered the mountain tops, thereby destroying a number of the larger animals whose remains are still to be found. Man, who first appears just before this great catastrophe, was certainly a witness to it, and some of our most reliable geologists tell us he actually became a victim to it and perished in the icy waters of that geological convulsion. But his instruments, vessels, weapons and remains are still to be found in the debris which accumulated during these changes.

I do not ask you to accept my unaided statement in regard to these changes, because the evidence of many geologists is, in the main, right to the point and quite accessible. Let us hear a few of their latest conclusions. Prof. A. Geike, not only the greatest English geologist of the present day, but the greatest and most competent one in the whole world at the present time, in his text book of geology, p. 801, says: "Among the last and very last changes of the globe was a great extension to the south of the conditions of climate known as glacial. During part of that time and almost certainly during the very last part of it—or even since it ended—there was, over some great part at least of the northern hemisphere a great submergance of the land under the waters of the sea."

Mr. Skertchley of the geological survey of England and one of Her Majesty's most celebrated geologists, says: "It seems clear to me that man could not possibly have lived at the time when these great floods swept the country, but must have been a prior occupant whose discarded relics were swept up with the other surface matter to form sandy deposits."—Popular Science Monthly for May, 1891.

Sir William Dawson, the great Canadian geologist, says: "Let it be observed, in conclusion, that this inundation, flood or deluge of whatever origin, occurred at the close of the Palaeuthropic period, and was connected with the disappearance of the men and many of the larger animals of that period, and that it was followed by the advent of modern animals and men, whose descendents still survive."

From the Parallel roads of Glen Roy in the West Highlands 2,000 feet up the mountain side stands one of the celebrated geologists of England. He has the leisure and the taste to spend much time with his chosen pastime geology. It is the Duke of Argyle. With geologic hammer in hand His Grace pauses and, with allure stock leaning against his left shoulder, his facile pen publishes to the world this message. "Here under my feet 2,000 above the level of the sea, are the shells and fossils and remains of marine life. Over this whole district of country the evidence of the 'great submergence' is as striking as it is ubiquitous. Old ocean has been here very recently, for the marine remains to be found here are all of species yet living hereabouts. In my opinion the great submergence is among the very latest geological operations which have been at work upon our globe."—Popular Science Monthly for May, 1891, p. 61.

Anything more from the West Highlands? The vision of a man of mighty intellect arises. In spectral loneliness he stands upon the same mountain 1,800 feet above the sea. It is the late lamented Charles Darwin. With note book in hand he makes careful record of the "great submergence" and his observations have become a part of the transactions of the Royal Society of England, where you may read them if you choose. He, too, has noted the presence of marine shells and fossils high above the level of the sea, and estimates the minimum depth of the great inundation at not less than 1280 feet.

Suddenly we are transported to Patagonia, the extreme southern state of South America, which you will observe is in the other half of the globe and suggests a universal submergence. Away up the Andes we behold again the shade of Charles Darwin, and there, too, he is noting the presence of marine shells and fossils high above the surrounding sea. Old ocean has been high up on the rocky ribs of the Andes, too, and that very recently, he says, as you may read in his "Naturalist's Voyage," page 170.

"On the wings of light we repair to the Snowden range in Wales. One thousand one hundred and thirty feet above the sea on the declivities of the Snowden mountains comes more evidence of the "great submergence." There, too, are marine shells and fossils of a recent epoch, and we know that the briny billows of the complaining sea have lately washed over the Welsh mountains.

Prof. Presowich, the greatest English authority on pleistocene geology, says the waters of the ocean have been over the tops of the mountains all over Wales, Ireland, Scotland and England, as you may see by reading the Proceedings of the Royal Society, No. 198.

The mountains of Russia and of all Northern Germany down to Holland have been likewise drowned in the surging billows of the ocean, for shells and fossils which are only known to live in the salt waters and belonging to species still in existence everywhere abound on their rocky surfaces.

From Calabraia in Italy and from the Island of Sicily, away up the mountains 2,400 feet above the blue Mediterranean comes the same story of a "great submergence" for Italian geologists have also found the shells and fossils remains of marine species now living, on the peaks which pierce the soft Italian skies.

A CLINCHING ARGUMENT.

All over New England, the mountains tell the same story as many of you know. And westward on the mighty Rockies, as I myself know and have personally seen, are oyster and other marine shells by the acre. Old ocean has been on these mid-continent mountains too.

And now comes the crowning achievement of geology and the greatest geological triumph of Scripture, in the discovery by Prof. Prestwich in England, of the lowest stratum or base bed of the Quaternary Series, which is but another name for the Glacial Series, and what is it? A thick stratum of marine gravel containing marine shells and fossils, overlying an old terrestrial surface on which mammalia now extinct, lived and graced and were destroyed. This bed stretches up the valley of the Thames till it reaches elevations 850 feet above the level of the sea—and alone records a depression of the land great enough to swamp, not only the greater part of Europe, but the entire part of the habitations of man all over the globe. You may read all about it in the Quarterly Journal of the Geological Society, published in February of 1890, page 85.

Genesis, then, tells us of a deluge, great enough to cover all the "high hills under the face of the whole heavens." Tradition goes the bond of the statements in Genesis, and last of all, science joins hands with these two and proclaims in thunder tones that a flood, a deluge, a "great submergence" actually did take place, and she hammers this truth home by making mallets of nearly every mountain range on the earth.

The only question which remains for us to discuss is the probability that the Noachian deluge was the same event about which geology has been telling us so graphically and satisfactorily.

The "great submergence" of which the hills have spoken, whereby the moutains of the earth were covered with shells and fossils of a bygone age, took place in the latter part or at the close of the Glacial Age. And when was the Glacial Age? Only last Sunday I explained to you in detail how we knew the Glacial Age occurred not longer ago than about 7,000 years, and possibly much more recently. (Age and origin of man.) But I omitted then to tell you that the findings of the Geodetic Surveyors of New York had been more lately most singularly verified by scientists. Five or six years ago the American Association for the advancement of science met at Niagara, and Mr. G. K. Gilbert of the United States geological survey in company with Mr. R. S. Woodward of Washington made a careful study and measurement of the gorge and its rate of increase, and science in their hands has settled beyond a reasonable doubt that that gorge which began to excavate immediately after the close of the Glacial Age, in which this "great submergence" that covered all the mountain tops formed a part, occurred not more than 7,000 years ago, with probabilities that it was even a less time than that in wearing away.

This brings the great geological inundation, on which I have been laying so much stress, down to a period sufficiently recent to correspond to the time of the deluge mentioned in Genesis.

So Niagara thunders them one event' St. Anthony's Falls at Minneapolis votes them one and the same' The recent investigations of Prof. Wright based upon the old bed of the Ohio river proclaim the "great submergence" to have been not more than 7,000 years ago—and thus we see that the deluge of Scripture and tradition telescope and become one event. Sir William Dawson in his "Natural Science and Bible Lands," published six years ago, records his conviction as to their identity, page 164, and the Duke of Argyle in language just as forcible and unmistakable repeats the refrain in the Nineteenth Century for 1891, while Mr. Howorth, a member of the English Parliament, in his learned work on the "Mammoth and the Flood," page 483, says that in his judgment, based upon the palaeontological evidence along with the traditions of the deluge, that the whole points unmistakably "to a widespread calamity, involving a flood on a great scale. I do not see how the historian, the archaeologist and the palaeontologist can avoid making this conclusion in future a prime factor in their discussions, and I venture to think that before long it will be accepted as unanswerable."

HOW IT WAS DONE.

How was the deluge brought about? Prof. Huxley says that the heaping of the waters of the ocean over any particular part of the globe is a physical impossibility, and that we have no evidence of anything more than a little local flood in Mesopotamia. When Prof. Huxley admits that much in regard to anything in Holy Scripture you may be sure he has capitulated.

In the first place, no one claims that the ocean ever "heaped" itself over the land in which Noah dwelt, nor it is worth while to stop for a single moment to consider the difficulties of those who think that the Bible says that forty days and nights of rain was sufficient "to cover the high hills under the whole heaven," for the Bible makes no such statement. It says distinctly, first, that "the fountains of the great deep were broken up," which could be nothing less than the raising of the ocean floors near the equator with a corresponding depression of the elevations of land about the poles, by which means the waters of the ocean flowed over all the lands inhabited by man, producing all the phenomena hinted at in Scripture and fully proved in detail by Geology. "The fountains of the great deep were broken up," and in the meteorological disturbances which most certainly followed, the rain fell in torrents from very necessity, wild, fierce hurricanes sweep the ocean and the end of all things seem to be at hand.

No, the sea did not "heap itself" over any one place, but the hills went down into the sea, and while they were there the shells and animal life of the great deep were scattered all over their surfaces, in order that the scientists of this day and age might come to the rescue of the ward of God. The waters of the Indian ocean rose form their bed and flowed northward over lower Mesopotamia, (have you remembered what the maps told you?) carrying the ark northward on its turbulent bosom, until it landed at last on Mount Ararat. O, when I think how the ranks of skepticism and infidelity have made furious onslaughts on the Holy Scriptures, and when I recall how theologians have stood immovable in their serried ranks with lances of the spirit poised in faith alone to receive these deadly attacks, and then how the enemies of God, one after the other, have gone down and their weapons have dropped from nerveless hands only to be seized by the friends of revelation and turned against the foes of the Bible, my heart sings to God for very joy and my lips shall ever exclaim "Holy, holy, holy Lord God of hosts: heaven and earth are full of Thy glory; glory to Thee O Lord most high."

"RIGHTEOUSNESS."

A Thoughtful Discourse by the Rev. William Rader.

Righteousness was the theme on which Rev. Dr. Rader preached at the First Congregational church yesterady taking has his text: "Thy right hand is full of righteousness." Ps. 48:10.

He said: "Prof. Huxley, the dreamer economist, scientist and agnostic is dead.

"I speak of him because he represented the school of thought which tried the impossible task of separating virtue from religion, righteousness from God. It would have been an easier task to remove the Alps from their foundations.

"The text is a noble contradiction of the theory that righteousness comes from the dust. The Psalmist traces it up to the Deity.

"In the old pictures of the gods Neptune holds a trident, Apollo arrows, Mercury a wand, Minerva a scroll, Venus a golden apple. The Deity of David holds aloft amid all the centuries which have and will be, the eternal righteousness of God.

"It is an old word. It is spoken in all languages. Before Moses was born it was uttered in Egypt. It is the one word of which contains the ideal of life.

"Originally it meant straight or true to a rule. When some ancient Mason constructed a city wall, or cathedral, and found his work answering to the plumb line, he said 'rectus.' It conformed to a perfect standard.

"In the moral world, it is precisely the same. It is being morally plumb, square to the obligation right with God. Rightness is righteousness.

"That which the Psalmist saw in the right hand of God was the mightiest thing in the world. It was power. The dynamo force of righteousness has never been measured. It is unexhaustible. Napoleon was wrong when he said God was on the side of the heaviest battallions. Gideon would not agree with Napoleon. A small company shall put ten thousand to flight. Righteousness is power.

"Their strength is as the strength of ten because their hearts are pure.

"It was law. In the hand was laws' millenium. There was justice and judgment. Righteousness is always and everywhere judgment. Julia Warde Howe expressed the same thought in the lines:

'He hath loosed the fateful lightnings
of his terrible swift sword,
His truth is marching on.'

"It was this law of political justice which blazed in the camp fires along the Delaware, and rolled in heroic thunder from the continental drums.

"It was courage. It is righteousness that has made statesmen great, and given them an iron purpose. It made Moses the sublime Puritan leader of the people. It gave Harryden to England and Washington to America. It caused Henry Clay to say 'I would rather be right than be president.' It put a diamond point upon the holy pen of Lincoln. In St. Gauden's Purtian we see this unflinching courage in the broad brow and firm set lips.

"It was heroism. The kiss which held the head of the dying, and lead in the Roman arena, that enters jails and hospitals, and suffers with the suffering, and surenders itself to the pitiless scourge of famine or war. It nerved the arm of Grace Darling as she ploughed a pathway through the surf and gave inspiration to every heroic deed the world has ever known.

"It was freedom. No man is entirely free until he ceases to care what will happen in this world or in the next, as long as he does right. The righteous man is alone free.

"It was character. Religion is measured by character. A man has as much religion as character. If he is six feet in character, he measures that in religion. The one is always to be tested by the other. A prayer may be a blosligion is an emotion, righteousness a springing up in the rich soil of the soul, but character is ripe fruit without a worm in it.

"Whatever may be given as the definition of religion it is forever true that religion and righteousness are one. Religion is an emotion, righteousness a reality. Religion creates righteousness, and both center in God. Neither springs from the clod. Both came from God. They are God.

"Edward Burke says: 'Religion is the foundation of society;' and Benjamin Kidd calls the religion the chief factor of the world's progress. The God of religion is the God of righteousness.

"Religion creates righteousness by its outlook. As men go up on Mt. Hamilton at night and look through the Lick telescope at other worlds, so does the soul come to religion to see other worlds, to hear some footfall of angel feet, to gaze into the ineffable glory on the other side of the grave. The vast vision of religion is a motive to live a righteous life.

"The literature of religion is the Bibble. The Bible did not make religion. Religion made the Bible. It was the divine artist which placed in its gallery of immortals the matchless models of righteousness. The Bible incites a desire to be righteous. If your Bible. The Bible did not make religsomething wrong. If you do not feel a deep desire to be a better man after reading your Bible you are radically wrong. The gospel is the power of God unto salvation.

"By Incarnation of Jesus Christ, He gathered this righteousness in His own bosom, and came down to flash it upon the world to teach men the character of God to fulfill this righteousness, and to demonstrate its power. The Psamist saw it in the uphfted hand, but we believed it manifested in the person of Christ. He reveals it to the world and the world in accepting Him realizes this righteousness.

EVANGELIST VARLEY.

The English Revivalist on the Effect of Sin.

There was a large audience in the First Baptist church last night to listen to the Rev. Henry Varley, the English revivalist who made so many friends here several months ago. He spoke from the text, "But God forbid that should glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom the world was crucified unto me and I unto the world."

The words of the text, he claimed, are addressed to the church of God. "As some of you are aware," he said, "there is being held in England a general election for the purpose of government. Such an election is going on here now for the government in the time to come. It is the Lord's dispensation. When the choice is complete then the fullness of time, which has been delineated, will be consummated. I hope that many of my hearers have been chosen. God has chosen and patterned His children after His Son, Jesus Christ; they are all to be represented in the government beyond and are all described as the heirs of God."

Speaking about the prevalence and enormity of sin, he said. "Sensuality is reigning rampant everywhere in San Francisco. If any man here loves the sin-feted world, so well, the lust of flesh, the lust of the eye and the pride of life; if you sanction these things the love of the Father is not in you. I will tell you the true meaning of the word 'cross.' It is not the jet black ornament that ladies wear or the transverse wooden piece upon your pulpits. It does not mean the afflictions or trials that some people call crosses. It means nothing but the sacrifice of the Son of God. I do not believe the Holy Spirit ever meant that it should mean anything else.

"Your personality is the worst enemy you have. It is not the wrong that you do, but the wrong that you know is in your nature. This cross alone can save you from yourself and resurrect you. I am glad that I am dead to the world and my past life buried. There are too many unburied Christians in Oakland. You cannot play fast and loose with God."

CHURCH CHAT.

Personals About Pastors and News of the Parishes.

The committee of the First Congregational church to whom has been referred the matter of recommending names from which to select a pastor to succeed Rev. Dr. McLean, is working earnestly on the subject. The names of several clergymen are now under consideration, among them being that of Rev. Wm. Rader, who is now and has been for several years the associate pastor of the church. Mr. Rader is warmly supported by many of the leading members of the society and his friends are working earnestly in his behalf.

Rev. James Small who, for several weeks past, has been filling, in a satisfactory manner, the pulpit of the First Christian church, has gone to Tacoma for the purpose of bringing his wife to this city. He has not as yet accepted the pastorate of the church and will not until after he shall have returned and established his home here. After the congregation had listened to Mr. Small's sermons for several weeks they unanimously extended to him a call to assume the pastorate charge of the church.

Rev. Walter Frear of Oakland lectured at the Sumner school at Cazadero recently on "Missionary Work in Turkey."

The regular weekly meeting of the Institute of Applied Christianity will be held this evening as usual in the lower assembly room of Asbury church, corner Clay and Fifteenth streets. These meetings are always open to the general public and a cordial invitation is extended to all who are interested to attend as frequently as possible. No admission fees. No collections. The topic this evening is "Laws of Social Development." President Rader will give the paper, after the reading of which more will be opportunity for full discussion.

KILLING TWO BIRDS.

The Supervisors Are Doubling Up on Their Work.

COUNTY AFFAIRS TRANSACTED.

Assessment Protests Come Before the Board.

THE PIEDMONT LINE APPEALS.

It Is Claimed That the Figures Are Much too High.

The session of the Supervisors this morning was characterized by the reading of a number of communications and the opening of bids on drugs, stationery and fish for county offices and county institutions.

Applications for relief were disposed of as follows: Mrs. Nettie Scott, 606 East Fifteenth street, 45 years old, native of Mississippi, widow, two children, referred to Supervisor Johnston. Mrs. Mary Hyland, for Mrs. Mary Conboy, corner of Twenty-second and Filbert, 97 years of age, referred to Supervisor Pelouze; from Albert Kayser and Theodore Gier for W. Sauter, aged 70 years, native of Germany, an old soldier, residing at Ninth and Franklin streets, referred to Supervisor Church.

Applications for liquor licenses were filed as follows: Davis Hayerty, San Leandro road and Fruit Vale avenue. Leon Faure, northeast corner of Hopkins street and Fruitvale avenue. These were referred to the Judiciary Committee.

A requisition was read from Janitor Lynch asking that the carpets of the Hall of Records be taken up and cleaned and that the chimneys be swept. He claimed that they had not been cleaned for five years. The matter was referred to the Building Committee.

A communication was received from Hugh Dimond and several others asking for the opening of a county road from Thirteenth avenue through the Moss Ranch, near Joaquin Miller's property and through Springer and Simpson's property to the county road.

Rev. J. B. McNally said that Mr. Springer had granted right of way for the proposed road nine or ten years ago, but that that formed only a part of the road desired. He did not think there would be any obstacle in the way of the opening of the proposed road, because he thought that property owners are in favor of the proposed improvement. On motion of Supervisor Church the communication was referred to the County Surveyor.

County Surveyor Nusbaumer reported that the fall in the line at Sunol for the purpose of filling watering tanks is 30 feet and the distance covered 2,000 feet. The pipe considered thus far for this purpose only is two inches in diameter, which will discharge only 20 gallons of water a minute, and, as a consequence, it would require 30 minutes to fill one tank. Supervisor Johnston suggested that the pipe to be used ought to be three inches in diameter. The communication was filed.

A BAD ROAD.

J. W. Unfug, of Brooklyn Township, sent in a communication speaking about the bad condition of the road from Grass Valley to San Leandro, claiming that it could not be used for the shipping of the farmers' crop. He requested the Board to take action and open the road suggested last winter, extending through Redwood Canyon to San Leandro, claiming that it would afford the relief desired. The communication was filed.

Jos. F. Cardozo complained through a communication of a defective bridge at Sunol, on which his horse had become frightened while crossing, throwing Cardozo, his wife and wagon into the creek, injuring himself and wife and smashing the vehicle, involving an outlay of $12 for doctor's fees and wagon repairs. He thought the bill should be paid by the county. The communication was filed.

A resolution was introduced paying Echoes Publishing Company, in accordance with official rates, 75 cents per square for the first insertion and 50 cents per square for the second and subsequent insertions for advertising "notice to taxpayers" and "poll tax notice" ordered by the County Assessor from March 16th, 1895, to June 29th, 1895, on the ground that the work had been ordered by the Assessor before the same work had been ordered by the Board of Supervisors at a cost not to exceed $15 for each paper publishing the same.

The clerk indorsed the resolution as "filed." The Supervisors say they will not pay the bill, because it amounts to $60, which is $45 more than the amount allowed to other papers for the same work.

E. E. Potter, of the Sunol Land & Improvement Company sent in a complaint to the effect that the Southern Pacific Railroad Company has fenced off lots in proximity to the property of that company, which has been open for the past twenty years, and the closing of which impedes passage to the company's lands. He requested that the lots in question be opened. The request was referred to the District Attorney.

A requisition from the County Assessor for blanks was referred to the Building Committee.

Supervisor Halley was authorized to build two cisterns and dig wells in Centerville for road sprinkling at a cost not to exceed $350.

Saloon licenses were granted as follows: H. A. Thomford, Castro Valley; Geo. C. Fisher, Niles.

W. Brophy, Justice of the Peace of Murray township, reported that his fees from January to June amounted to $175.25. Filed.

AFTER CONTRACTS.

Fish—Camilloni & Lagoria, $2,207.60; James Lamb, $2,207.75; Combs & Fisher, $1,631.20.

There is a great reduction in these bids over those rejected by the Supervisors two weeks ago.

Tobriner enclosed the check for drugs in the bid for stationery, and vice versa, but as he is not the lowest bidder in either case the mistake will not affect the bid, unless other irregularities should be discovered in the lower bids.

The bids were referred to the county expert, the clerk and the committee of the whole.

AS EQUALIZERS.

The Board Continues the Work of Considering the Protests.

The County Board of Equalizers met this afternoon and a voluminous application for reduction of the assessment on the property of the Piedmont Cable Railway Company was read. It was signed by Chas. R. Bishop and set forth that the valuation of the property of the company at the time the assessment was made was only $82,000. The assessment made by Mr. Dalton amounts to $272,030.

The applications set forth each of the lines owned and operated by the company, more recently known as the Piedmont & Mt. View Railroad Company, all the real estate and improvements thereon in the possession of the concern. The showing was as follows:

The electric line commencing at First and Washington streets, running on Washington to Fourteenth, thence to Peralta, thence to Sixteenth, and thence to the Southern Pacific railroad depot, double tracks, poles and wires, alleged real value $8,000, franchise $1,000, total $9,000; assessed $20,950, franchise $10,000, total $30,950.

Horse line from Fourteenth street on Market to First street, 75-100 of a mile, real value, $250, franchise $50, total $300; assessed $1,125, franchise $500; total $1,625.

Horse line from Market and Fourteenth on Market to Twenty-fourth, to Adeline, 80-100 of a mile, real value $300, franchise $50, total $350; assessed $2,200, franchise $500, total $1,700.

Horse line on Adeline from Seventh to Thirty-second, Hollis, to city limits, 1 82-100 miles, real value $700, franchise $50, total $750; assessed $2,750, franchise $500, total $3,250.

Horse railroad Central avenue, Peralta, Eighth and Wood streets, real value, $75, franchise $50, total $125; assessed $375, franchise $250, total $625.

Cable line, Washington, Fourteenth, Broadway, Elm street to charter line, with wire and poles, double track, 97-100 of a mile, real value $11,000, franchise $500, total $11,500; assessed $30,000, franchise $5,000, total $35,000.

Cable line, Washington, Fourteenth, Clay, Eighth streets, 75-100 of a mile, real value $3,500, franchise $400, total $4,000; assessed $11,450, franchise $5,000, total $16,450.

Cable and electric line, Broadway to Twenty-fourth, to Webster avenue to city limits, double tracks, wires and poles, 73-100 of a mile, real value $3,000, franchise $250, total $3,250; assessed $19,925, franchise $2,500; total $22,425.

Cable road, Elm street, Oakland avenue, Bay street to city limits, 83-100 of a mile, real value $6,000, franchise $250, total $6,250; assessed $22,750, franchise $2,500, total $25,250.

Lots 45 and 46, not assessed to the Piedmont Bath & Power Company, also in Oakland View Homestead and part of lot 36 not assessed to John Allman, excepting therefrom land assessed to the Piedmont Bath & Power Company, real value $2,750, improvements $5,000, total $7,750, assessed $2,750; improvements $20,000, total $22,750.

Lots in Oakland View Homestead, machinery dynamos, cars cable, office furniture, real value, $23,435, assessed $15,000.

Lot 1, block 222, real value, $1,500, improvements $500, total $2,000; assessed $1,500, improvements $1,200, total $2,700.

Peralta and Center street lots 16 and 19, block 561, real value $975, improvements $500, total $1,175; assessed $975, improvements $1,500, total $2,475.

Lots 12 to 22 block 561, Peralta and Center street lands, real value $1,300; assessed $1,000.

Cable line and electric railway, Webster avenue to city limits, to Mt. View cemetery, single line, poles, etc., real value $3,000, franchise $500, total $3,500; assessed $18,250, franchise $5,000, total $23,250.

Cable line from northern boundary of the city, Oakland avenue, Vernal avenue, double track, 1 4-100 miles, real value $2,500; assessed $28,600

Cable line Vernal and May avenues to Blair Park, gravity loop, 75-100 of a mile, real value $1,000; assessed $2,000, franchise $5,000, total $7,000.

Mr. Bishop then goes on to state that prior to November 1st, 1893, all the property described had been unproductive and had not been earning enough to pay the operating expenses; that up to March 19th, 1895 the receipts had been $25,000 less than the cost of operating the road; that the road had gone into the hands of a receiver; that it had been offered for sale and that the affiant bid $82,000 for it and that it was sold to him at that figure, and that the property had been later turned over, for that amount, to the Piedmont & Mountain View Railroad Company. Since March 19, 1895, the affiant goes on and shows that the road has been unable to pay expenses and that the value of the property at the time of the assessment was only $82,000.

Edson F. Adams, John C. Adams, Julia P. A. Prather, and Edson F. Adams and John C. Adams as executors of the will of Hanna J. Adams, deceased, filed an application, which was also read, asking for a reduction of the assessment on the following property: In plot 21, comprising 152 acres, north of the old charter line of the city, from $456,000 to $272,000

The same persons ask for a reduction on the assessment on that portion of plot 21, V. and D. Peralta rancho, lying south of the old charter line of Oakland, containing 14 acres, from $42,000 to $28,000.

Hearing was postponed until 10:30 Wednesday and the Piedmon's protest until 10:30 Friday.

B. Catti of 1120 Center street and J. Calon & Co., of 459 Seventh street have filed applications for liquor licenses.

P. C. Anderson accuses Louis P. Froud of Fruitvale of holding a Newfoundling dog belonging to him and today caused a search warrant to issue for its recovery.

Before the Board of Equalization closed its labors Saturday A. M. Sallinger asked for a reduction of the assessment on the property bounded by Bellevue tract, Peralta avenue, Fruit Vale, Electric road tract and Fruit Vale avenue with improvements from $5,500 to $5,200. He also asked for a reduction of the assessment on property in Wilcox place and Pacific Homestead with improvements from $2,250 to $1,950. Both applications will be heard Wednesday.

A. B. Holland, in behalf of Mrs. E. B. Hitchcock, asked for a reduction on thirty acres divided into lots; in the McLeod tract, Livermore, from $4,900 to $3,500.

Elizabeth Perigo asked in behalf of Elizabeth Atkinson for a reduction in the assessment of the furniture in a one-story house 626 Eighteenth street, from $200 to $50. The request was granted.

THE "GHOST" CHAINED.

City Wharfinger Rutherford Cannot Get His Salary.

He Files a Request for a Mandate on Auditor Snow.

City Wharfinger C. B. Rutherford brought suit today in the Superior Court to recover three months' salary from the city.

The action is the result of Mayor Davie's order directing the auditor not to draw salary warrants in Rutherford's favor. The mayor claims that Rutherford's appointment is illegal.

Rutherford recites that he was duly appointed a wharfinger by the City Council and that the auditor has refused to draw his warrant for April, May and June. The salary is $100 a month and the old gentleman feels that he should have it.

He has also petitioned for a writ of mandate to issue against the auditor compelling him to show cause why the warrants should not be drawn.

The trouble arose over a contention of the mayor that the control of the city front, and the wharves, etc., is given to the Board of Public Works and not to the council. He therefore contends that the appointment of Rutherford was illegal when made by the council. The board appointed a wharfinger to take charge of Grove street wharf, but City Clerk Tompkins refused to recognize the appointment. No action has been taken thus far in that connection.

THE WHEAT CROP.

The Recent Drouth Has Had a Bad Effect on the Grain.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

CHICAGO, July 15.—A dispatch from St. Paul, Minnesota, says:

Dispatches from Big Stone, Grant, Swift and Harley counties, Minn., and several counties west of these in South Dakota, say that the prospects for wheat are not so good by 33 per cent as ten day ago on account of the drouth. That section mentioned has had no rain for eighteen days.

Correspondents report that the yield will not exceed six bushels in Harley and Swift counties but will be but little better in Big Stone county. It is very dry in Chicago, Pine and Wanoka counties—the Minnesota potato belt—and the yield of potatoes will be very small unless rain comes in the next three days

Charles A. Pillsbury, the big miller says:

"I thought on July 1st that Minnesota, North and South Dakota, would yield 140,000,000 bushels of wheat as against about 115,000,000 bushels last year. Now I think the extreme possibility is 125,000,000 bushels, with a strong possibility that we will raise no more than we did a year ago.

BOWERS IN CHICAGO.

His Career Regarded With Much Suspicion by the Citizens.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

CHICAGO, July 15.—Dr. J. Milton Bowers, head of the sensational poisoning case, whose marriage to a fourth wife in Denver has just been made public, in California, is well remembered here by his old Chicago neighbors.

Over twenty years ago Dr. Bowers lived at 813 North Clark street.

One night in October, 1873, the doctor and his family were at a theater when their home on North Clark street burned.

No one was in the house when the fire started and there was always some question about the cause of the blaze.

The spring following after having moved into the house on North Avenue, Mrs. Bowers and her baby died.

The funeral was held and rumors began to float about regarding the cause of the deaths.

The doctor then left the city.

A REVERSE FOR ROBINSON.

The "Stop-Over's" Demurrer Overruled by Judge Sanderson.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 15.—Judge Sanderson in the Superior Court today overruled the demurrer to the complaint of the Southern Pacific Company against "Stop-Over" Robinson and others, who have actions pending against the company for penalty for refusing to accept tickets after a stop-over.

The Southern Pacific had alleged a conspiracy on the part of the defendants to mulct the company and asking that they be compelled to litigate all their suits in one action.

The court will now hear evidence as to the facts and if they are proven as alleged the company's petition will be granted.

RARE RELICS RUINED.

Treasures Destroyed During a Conflagration at Baltimore.

The Celebrated Knowles Collection Made Food for the Flames.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

BALTIMORE, July 15.—A valuable collection of paintings and bronzes belonging to William Humphrey Knowles was destroyed in the burning of his handsome home in the county of Baltimore.

Mr. Knowles says his art treasures were the collections of members of his family for the last 300 years, and includes besides paintings rare tapestries, mosaics and curiosities from all parts of the world. It was impossible for him to place a valuation upon them, but the collection had been roughly estimated to be worth $60,000.

The house was insured, but the art collection was not.

One of the paintings was an original of Alpine scenery representing Lake Geneva with Mount Blanc in the distance painted by the celebrated Italian artist Faselvola. The picture was much admired, and a similar one by the same artist sold recently in New York for $6,000.

There was an ideal wooded scene by the great French master of this class, Gustav Courbet, and there was in the collection a marine scene by the English artist Hardy, and Napoleon at the battle of Austerlitz, by Davids, and original portraits of Mme. Du Bary, and of the celebrated French beauty, Mme Vernet

The loss of two vases, presented to Mr. Knowles' grandfather by Napoleon II, is most deeply deplored by him.

He stated that his tapestry and bric-a-brac consisted mostly of work executed by nuns in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries.

The most valuable piece of statuary was a fine copy of "Truth overcoming Error," the original of which is at the Vatican in Rome.

The Endeavor Societies Have Done Splendid Work.

CLOSING OF THE CONVENTION.

Eloquent Addresses by the Leaders of the Body.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

BOSTON, July 15.—Tonight the fourteenth International Convention of the Young People's Society Christian Endeavor one of the most successful meetings in the history of the society, will close.

The services today are to have a deeper religious feeling than any held since the first day of the convention, probably due to the subsiding of the excitement of the opening days and the impressive character of the exercises.

"Consecration" was the principal subject of the day.

The attendance at all the morning meetings was as large as any day last week.

The addresses of President George A. Gates, D.D., of Iowa College, and President Elbert D. Warfield, L.L. D., of Easton, Pa., in the tent of Williston, were the features of the morning.

The former spoke of the "Consecration of Educated Life," and was followed by his great audience with close attention.

President Warfield's address was on the "Attractions of the Ministry to Educated Men."

At the tent of the Endeavor the address of Robert E. Speer of New York, on missionary service proved a great drawing card.

Speer's great work in missionary fields has made him famous among the Christian Endeavorers.

The morning meetings at both tents were conducted under the general title of the "Scholarship of the World for Christ."

At tent of Williston and Mechanics Hall, encouraging reports concerning religious life in colleges were made and in both tents and the hall a roll of honor, upon which were inscribed the names of the union whose members have been able to give liberally to the cause, was simultaneously unrolled.

Rev. W. C. Bitting, D.D., New York, conducted this exercise in Mechanics Hall; Rev. A. C. Peck, Denver, in Williston, and Rev. Ira Landrith of Nashville, in the Endeavor tent.

The presentation of a banner to the local union for the best work promoting in systematic and proportionate giving was made at the Mechanics' building and the tent of Williston.

Rev. J. W. H. Stuckenberg of Cambridge, Mass., delivered in the Mechanics' building an address on "Christian Personality," that deserved special mention, and the same should be said of the addresses by Rev. A. P. Cobb, D.D., of Springfield, Ill., and Rev. William C. Puddlepot, of South Framingham, Mass.

The praise and song services at the big meetings were as they have been since the opening of the convention, full of snap, energy and earnestness.

The aggregate attendance was about 23,000

DR. BITTING'S ADDRESS.

Rev. W. C. Bitting of New York spoke as follows:

"Men have been crying 'Hard times.' Here is the financial creed of the Christian Endeavor, which would, we believe, tend to relieve the distress among the breadwinners of this great nation:

"We believe that a Christian's living and giving are joined in holy union which none may divorce; that beneficence is an essential evidence of regeneration; that system is the life of the gift; that consecrated gifts have a spiritual power and value that the noblest use of wealth is to lay it at the feet of the Master.

"We believe in a gold standard for those who have gold and a silver standard for those who cannot do better and a double standard for all. We believe in a ration of 16 to 1 as the rate of increase of contributing to the church over that of last year."

The speaker then predicted for the future a great increase in the growth of the society, the church and all Christian work, both foreign and domestic. He concluded:

"I see such a wise economy of force and fund that no society is in the way of another; that the present waste of men and means is stopped; that the agencies now rivals will be allies. I see our present insularity changed by great spiritual upheavals and the dividing seas of thought and organization pierced by a thousand isthmuses that join our hitherto isolated activities and the archipelago of denominationalism becoming continental Christianity."

MANY WANT WORK.

Over a Thousand Men Ask to Work on the Street.

Secretary Kaufman of the Board of Public Works has on file in his office the application of over a thousand men who desire to work in the street department. These applications have all been made since the new administration went into power. It is expected that the council will soon order fifty or 100 men to be placed at work on the streets and sewers. Married men will be given the preference in the applications.

FREE LISTS SUSPENDED.

No More Train Beating to Be Allowed From Here.

The Railroad Officials Grapple With the Tramp Evil.

WEST OAKLAND, July 15.—The day when "hobos" and tramps can beat their way out of this city on the overland trains has passed. The large number of men who have been cheating the Southern Pacific Company of late by riding as "blind baggage" tourists has aroused the company to action. Every night about a dozen tramps would board the outgoing overland trains near the freight house, a short distance north of the Sixteenth street depot. It was an easy matter for them to get on the trains as they pass this point at a very low rate of speed. They were seldom detected and they had little trouble going over the road because it is impossible for the trainmen to see anybody between the baggage cars. There are no doors on the baggage cars leading to the platforms and therefore the "hobos" once on have matters all their own way.

The company has now adopted a plan which is putting an end to this practice. A squad of railroad officers is sent out on every train riding between the baggage cars and they remain on board until it starts up at full speed. They then alight and return to the depot and repeat the performance on each succeeding train. By this method it is utterly impossible to beat the company. The officers are in command of Detective Fogarty and are all expert train-jumpers.

The "hobos" also keep Police Officer Keefe busy, for nearly every night he sends a batch of them to the city prison in the patrol wagon for sleeping in box cars. The other night a tramp dropped a lighted cigarette in one of the cars and set fire to some hay which was extinguished by Detective Fogarty before any damage was done. The fellow was sent to jail. A tramp's life nowadays is not a happy one.

THE JACKSON OBSEQUIES.

The funeral of William Jackson, the railroad employe who died Saturday morning, took place from his late residence on Peralta street, at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon. It was largely attended by friends and acquaintances of the deceased and the floral tokens were many. The remains were borne to the hearse by the following pall bearers: G. D. Bishop, S. A. Deckard, E. A. Caunce, J. L. Barnes, A. C. Partello and J. G. Pettit. The deceased was the father of Robert Jackson, the Southern Pacific ticket agent at the Point station. As is customary when a railroad employe dies a large American flag was flying at half mast at the yards today.

ODDS AND ENDS.

A new time schedule will go into effect tomorrow morning. The only change in time of the passenger service will be that the southern overland will arrive at 4:10 in the afternoon instead of 5:10 as at present.

Sarah McKeown, who is being sued by the Hibernia Savings and Loan Society to foreclose a $1,700 mortgage on her home on William street, near Wood has been served with a summons notifying her of the commencement of the action.

Dr. Huntington is having an addition built to the rear of his pretty home on Adaline street.

A large force of men are at work north of the Sixteenth street depot repairing the lines of the Western Union Telegraph Company.

With the exception of the Los Angeles train, which was an hour and three-quarters late, all trains arrived on time this morning.

Central Lodge, No. 6, A. O. U. W., will hold an important meeting at Kohler hall tonight. New officers will be installed and other business of interest will be transacted.

DRUNK AND DANGEROUS.

An Exciting Time With Samuel Stares on the Estuary.

Samuel Stares, a young man who betrayed on his countenance the indications of an extended debauch, appeared in the Police court this morning to answer charges of drunk and vulgar language. He wanted an attorney and was given until tomorrow to plead.

Yesterday afternoon Stares, who is employed on a pile diver in the estuary and lives with his wife in the old steamer Contra Costa, asked her for money with which to purchase a drink. He knew she had about $100 and he wanted it. She refused to deliver the cash, so he tied a rope around her neck and threw her into the creek. He dragged her back and forth in the water until nearly drowned, she agreed to give him the money. She was then assisted on board by her brutal husband and told him where the money which he wanted was hidden.

Police Officer Clark meantime had heard of the row and he set off in a skiff for the steamer on which the couple live. As he approached Stare appeared with a club and threatened to break the officer's skull if he came on board. The officer drew his pistol and this had a quieting effect on the drunken man. The officer replaced his pistol in his pocket and was proceeding to climb on deck when Stares pointed a pistol at him and cried "I'll kill you if you come on board!" Nothing daunted the officer, and in another moment was grappling with the man and soon had him disarmed. Mrs. Stares was sent to the Receiving Hospital, while her husband found lodging in the city prison. The wife refuses to file a complaint against her husband for battery.

Stares, whose real name is said to be Kohler, is reported to have a criminal record, having served time in States prison for robbing a man in San Francisco.

TRIED TO STARVE.

Mrs. Eliza Scott Is Committed to an Insane Asylum.

Mrs. Eliza Scott, who tried to starve herself to death at the Lillard House on Tenth street, was committed to an insane asylum this afternoon by Judge Ellsworth. Mrs. Brown, landlady of the house, and Mrs. Helen Kelly, Secretary of the Associated Charities, testified to her strange actions. She has two sons, Charles and Bertie, in Chicago. She also has an uncle R. H. Wood, at Ryling at 272 South Peoria street, in that city. He will be notified of her condition.

Mrs. Scott came to Oakland last April. She worked for a time at the Pullman house in West Oakland.

One mile open, Class A, final—H. P. Mosher, Harlem, won. Joe Harrison, Asbury Park, second. C. Hoofer, St. Paul, third. Time, 2 30.

THE COOK CONTEST.

Public Administrator Knight is Petitioning for the Property.

The contest over the estate of the late Elizabeth I. Cook was commenced today in Judge Ellsworth's court. Public Administrator Knight, who has letters of administration on the estate, caused a citation to issue against W. G. Tripp, directing the latter to show cause why he should not surrender the property in his hands belonging to the estate.

He testified in part today that he had known Mrs. Cook for nearly thirty years. Shortly before death she had transferred all her property, both real and personal, to him. He had a deed to her house and lot at 630 Tenth street.

Major Fred Whitney appears for Knight and Tripp has Welles Whitmore and Cary Howard as counsel. The contest is in progress this afternoon.

IS NOT DEAD.

A Baseless Rumor Regarding the Warm Springs Affair.

Sheriff White received a report this afternoon that the young man who was the victim of a serious assault by a young married woman at Warm Springs last week, had succumbed to his injuries.

The report was investigated and found to be without foundation. The injured man's surname is Frank. The physician attending him said he would recover.

Safely Docked.

Not Insane.

John Bradbent, who was arrested on complaint of Curator Strong of the Central Reading room because he annoyed the women patrons of the room, was examined today in the City Prison by Health Officer Mayon who decided that the man was not insane.

Bishop's Bondsmen.

A. W. Bishop surrendered himself into custody this afternoon and was released on giving bonds with J. J. Hanlin and W. G. Palmanteer as sureties.

Died in Mental Darkness.

Robert L. Wilhers died in this city yesterday from softening of the brain. For some time he has been partly demented.

MISSING LINKS FOUND.

Blood-Stained Clothing Was at the Stillwell Place.

Sensational Evidence Given in the Hearne-DeYoung Suit.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

ST. LOUIS, July 15.—A special to the Post from Hannibal, Mo., says:

The depositions of the Hearne-De Young libel suit, growing out of the murder of Amos J. Stillwell in 1888, were of a very sensational nature today.

Saturday Mrs. R. H. Stilwell testified that Mrs. Stilwell, now Mrs. Dr. J. C. Hearne, changed her gown on the night of the murder before she and her husband arrived on the scene.

This morning her statement was strengthened apparently by the evidence of James A. Abbey, employed in the secret service.

He said: "I was employed to try and find out who committed the murder. I searched the privy vault on the Stillwell premises Monday, January 18th, 1889. I got out a good many things, pieces of sheets and men's drawers. The last thing was a plain cotton night-gown. There was blood on it. Wood, the detective, made me put it back."

The finding of a bloody night-gown in a vault a few feet from where the blood-stained ax was found puts a sensational feature in the case which has never been developed before.

WASHINGTON WIRES.

Political and National News Narrated in Brief.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The president has issued a proclamation stating that as Spain extended to American citizens the privileges of copyright as contemplated by our copyright act, Spanish citizens are granted the privileges of the American copyright.

A FAVOR TO RAILROADS.

The Inter-state Commerce Commission today granted an extension of the time within which railroads must equip their cars with secure grab irons and handholds on the ends and sides of cars, from July 1st until December next.

The time for complying with requiring the use of drawbars of standard height on all cars has also been extended until February 15, 1896.

A WELCOME DIVIDEND.

Comptroller of the Treasury Eckels has declared a dividend of 10 per cent in favor of the creditors of the Oregon National Bank, Portland, Oregon.

NO CHANCE YET.

Chief Lawton Is Secure for a Little While, Anyhow.

City Attorney Piersol was asked today if any changes would be likely to take place in the heads of the fire department at the meeting of the Fire and Police Commissioners tomorrow.

"I have not had an opportunity to consult with my associates on the Board," he said, "and until we have a consultation it is not likely that any change will be made."

DR. HOOD'S WIDOW.

The Contest Over the Haywards' Physician's Estate Nearly Ended.

Mrs. Bessie Hood, who claims to be the widow of the late Dr. John Hood of Haywards, was before Judge Ogden this morning with a petition to have the decree of distribution of the dephysician's estate set aside.

She was represented by Attorney W. F. Williams, who claims that his client has a marriage certificate to establish her right to the estate, which was left to A. J. Hassler, a brother of the doctor's second wife.

Dr. Hood married Effie Bassler at Haywards and she died before he did. Max Popper is the executor of Dr. Hood's estate and he secured letters and a decree of distribution. Then the Eastern widow stepped to the front and in behalf of herself and a minor child demanded the estate. The property is valued at several thousand dollars.

Judge Ogden overruled a demurrer of the attorney for the legatee this morning and set the hearing on the petition for next Monday.

TOWN TOPICS.

A regular meeting of the City Board of Education will be held this evening.

John Baoum died at 1421 East Eleventh street yesterday aged 62 years. Death resulted from consumption. He had resided in this city nine years.

While driving to their home, 1815 Alameda avenue, Alameda, Saturday night Mr. and Mrs. M. McMahon were painfully injured by being thrown out of their buggy near the wharfinger's office, on the city wharf, owing to the fact that their horse took fright and started to run away.

Wouldn't Pay Poll Tax.

Poll tax collector John A. Foster asked J. D. Riker, a Washington street expressman, for $3 as poll tax this morning, but Riker refused to pay. Foster then attempted to seize the expressman's horse and a struggle ensued. Foster then swore to a warrant charging Riker with resisting an officer.

Justice Clift tried two unlawful detainer cases today. R. Mullhauff sued J. G. Henninger for the restitution of premises at 1801½ San Pablo avenue and P. Hamal sued E. Lange for premises at 581½ Willow street. Judgment was given for plaintiff in both cases.

A Confidence Operator.

J. W. Harris, ex-watch club sharp, ex-chiropodist, ex-preacher, and late member of the Morosco stock company, San Francisco, who disappeared from the coast about a week ago with about $1,000 belonging to a man named Humphrey in Alameda, has been located in New York city. He has written to a former friend in this city, but maintains a sphinx-like silence regarding Humphrey's money.

The Marital Ceremony.

Justice Clift performed two marriages this morning. He first united Joseph Frittis, aged 51, and Nellie McKenna, aged 21, both of San Francisco, and followed this by making one George D. Dalmas, aged 43, and Mrs. M. T. Pearson, aged 36, both of San Francisco.

State Mortality.

Reports to the State Board of Health from sixty towns, villages and sanitary district, aggregating a population of 492,023, show a mortality during June of 465, a death rate of 1.07 for the month and 12.84 a 1,000 per annum.

FROM PAIN TO PEACE.

Mrs. Emma Adelia Fox Passes to Well-Earned Rest.

Her Hand Was Ever Outstretched to Aid Those in Need.

After many months of suffering Mrs. Emma Adelia Fox passed away on Saturday night at her home on Fifteenth and Jefferson streets.

Mrs. Fox was born in the Province of Quebec, Canada, March 8, 1846. She came to California in 1862, and in 1866 was married to John S. Fox in El Dorado county.

Soon after she removed with her husband to Ohio, remaining there until 1874, when she returned to California and settled in Oakland, where she lived to the time of her death. Besides her husband she leaves two children, Aylmer H. Fox, and Mary Fox-Pierson, who came from her home in the East to be with her mother during her last illness.

Mrs. Fox was a most beautiful Christian character. Though many years an earnest member of the First Methodist Episcopal church, her Christian sympathy was bounded by no sect or creed.

Her spare time was almost wholly devoted to charitable services, including the visiting of prisoners and the carrying of cheer and comfort to the needy and distressed wherever they might be found.

Many in Oakland remember her sympathetic smile and kindly greeting, and her reassuring words as she bade them hope for better things in this world and also in the world to come through Him in whose name she came to give "a cup of cold water."

Mrs. Fox lived a life of "Applied Christianity"—a life of sacrifice of self and of present ease and comfort to the happiness of others. In her long and painful illness she never lost her patience or Christian fortitude.

Her death has closed one of those devoted and helpful lives that make the world better and give all a sweet hope and assurance of something above and beyond the present.

The funeral will take place tomorrow at 10 A. M. from the First Methodist Episcopal church, corner Fourteenth and Clay streets.

CUTTING HIS BILLS.

Sheriff White Protests About the Board of Examiners.

The State Board of Examiners and Sheriff White had a tilt last week at Sacramento over some of the items in bills of his deputies for expenses incurred in taking insane patients to the various State asylums. Sheriff White was represented before the Board by his chief deputy, Will White, who explained that he was willing to have any claims rejected that did not appear to be just.

"We are allowed a day's pay for a deputy and their actual expenses in taking a patient to the asylums at Stockton, Napa, Agnews or Ukiah. In the matter of expenses I have simply followed the precedent established by my predecessors, Hale, Hussey and McKillican. I make nothing out of the bills. It is my opinion that there has been no great harm done. A spirit of economy has swept over the administration. I cannot see how the bills are unjust. The deputy who takes a patient to these asylums is allowed a day's pay by the State. He should be allowed the cost of living for that day. I am informed that the deputy is frequently out of pocket when he goes to Ukiah.

"There are many times small expenses which are unavoidable, and it does not seem fair that the officer should be compelled to stand them in order to insure the safety of his charge. So far as this office is concerned, I do not see anything wrong. There is only one way to settle all this and that is to establish a uniform rate. Then there could be no charges that would not meet the approval of the State Board.

POLICE PRATTLE.

A Medley of Cases Disposed of in Judge Wood's Court.

Warren McGovern chewing gum and looking happy appeared before Judge Wood this morning to render an account of himself since the time of his arrest some months ago. He was taken into custody at that time for neglecting to support a minor child, but since then he has contributed to its maintenance and his case was again continued until August 16th.

The charge of blockading the street against Justin Rice and his wife was continued until the 20th. In the meantime a decision is expected from the Superior court on the Salvation Army cases, which will also determine the Police court cases.

R. C. Lyons, who is accused by W. Secor of stealing a derby hat valued at $2, was given until tomorrow to plead.

The old petty larceny case against Frank J. Cruz was continued until tomorrow for sentence. He is in the county jail awaiting trial for forgery.

The notorius Mary Sawyer was in the police court dock this morning. When the court asked her how she desired to plead to a charge of vagrancy, she raised such a disturbance that it became necessary for Officer Phillips to carry her down stairs.

William Gibbs, Jr., who was accused by J. G. Forhner of obtaining by false pretenses a small sum of money, was tried and the case continued a week in order to permit the parties to settle their troubles.

Estates of the Dead.

Margaret Stogwell was appointed to act as administrix of the estate of the late Maria A. Caldwell by Judge Ogden today. Her bond was fixed at $300. J. B. Richardson is attorney for the estate.

Letters of administration on the estate of William J. McCullon, deceased, were granted to John McCullon in the Superior court this morning. Bonds, $800. Gibson & Whitmore are attorneys for the administrator.

An Unheeded Warning.

Ella O'Connor, who resides near Shell Mound park, warned Mary McGuire not to sell the former's son any liquor. Mrs. McGuire did not heed the warning, however, and a row ensued between the two women. Today Mrs. O'Connor pleaded not guilty to the charge of disturbing the peace before Justice Clift.

A Temescal Blaze.

A fire occurred at Fortieth and Telegraph avenue last evening among a lot of hay belonging to Mrs. McCourtney. Twenty-five tons were destroyed and also a hay press, belonging to William Gregory, valued at $350. The Temescal hose company extinguished the blaze.

Small Fires.

The fire department responded to two alarms yesterday. The first was at 2:45 A. M. for a burning stable on Fallon street below Seventh and the other was at 1:04 P. M. for a roof fire on a house at 927 Thirty-fifth street belonging to Mrs. Stutt. Damage $50.

BUT LITTLE WARNING.

Death Calls at the Maxwell and Glover Homes.

Two Prominent Oaklanders Called to Eternal Rest.

Death called at two adjoining homes in East Oakland yesterday. One of those who passed away was a young man, the other a venerable pioneer of this State.

Frank C. Maxwell, one of the best known and most popular young men of Oakland, died unexpectedly about 1 P. M. at the family residence, 1268 Fourth avenue. About two weeks ago he recovered from a severe attack of pneumonia, and then underwent a surgical operation for stomach trouble. Blood poisoning followed and death resulted. The deceased was born at Rock Island, Ill., 28 years ago, and has resided for the past eleven years with his relatives in this city. He was unmarried. His father, C. L. Maxwell, is a leading hardware dealer in this city and the deceased was associated with him in the business.

About 10:30 o'clock last evening Jas. F. Glover was sitting listening to his daughter playing at the piano. He had just asked her not to play too loud as it might disturb those in the house of mourning near by, when with scarcely a word of warning he expired. Mr. Glover suffered from a slight stroke of paralysis about three weeks ago. It was then thought that the end was near, but the timely arrival of a physician saved him. He was apparently improving in health when death suddenly came upon him.

Mr. Glover was a pioneer, having come to California in the days of the gold excitement. He came around the horn in a vessel from Scotland and first located in San Francisco. Subsequently he engaged in mining and at one time was wealthy. He was well known and a great favorite with a host of friends and acquaintances. Mr. Glover leaves surviving him a wife, four daughters and two boys.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, 202 East Fifteenth street.

ADVANTAGEOUS OFFERS.

Equally Attractive to the Home-seeker, the Cultivator of the Soil, or the Speculator in Land Values.

THE CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY'S LAND DEPARTMENT has in charge and for sale, at reasonable prices and on favorable terms, the lands of the Capay Valley Land Company, the lands and townsites of the Pacific Improvement Company, the lands of the Central Pacific Railroad Company, the lands of the Oregon & California Railroad Company, and the irrigated lands of the Crocker-Huffman Land & Water Company.

THE PACIFIC IMPROVEMENT COMPANY'S PROPERTIES, consisting of town property in 125 townships, and all classes of fruit, agricultural and grazing land, will be sold on reasonable terms,—long time and low rate of interest.

THE CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY has for sale pine and timber lands which will be sold for twenty years, cutting privileges granted in case of fire, or destruction by axe, to purchasers only in advance.

THE CAPAY VALLEY LAND COMPANY'S LANDS are in a rich, fertile valley in the county of Yolo. They are splendid fruit lands, free of the earliest localities of the State, and large in proximity to San Francisco, and terms of payment extend over five years, that is to say, for five years the purchaser pays interest only, at the end of which time the principal or price becomes due. The object of these terms is to give the purchaser an opportunity to pay the purchase price out of the proceeds of the land which it is expected the purchaser will cultivate.

THE CROCKER-HUFFMAN LAND & WATER COMPANY'S irrigated lands at Merced, in the very heart of the State, under splendid climatic conditions, with the free use of water as an appurtenant to the land, for sale for interest only, for five or seven years, at the choice of the purchaser, contingent settlement on the land and cultivation, dating one year from date of purchase, being made incumbent upon the purchasers.

THE CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY'S LAND DEPARTMENT can supply any seeker of investment, or any home seeker, with any variety of land desired at lower prices and on more favorable terms than can be had of any other landed proprietor in California.

The list of land for sale in this Department embraces bodies of from ten to thirty thousand acres, or as small subdivision as may be desired in the form of ten, twenty or forty acre tracts of irrigated land.

SUGAR PINE FORESTED LANDS IN OREGON AND CALIFORNIA, in large or small quantities, will be sold for interest only, for five years, the purchaser agreeing to protect the lands from all destructions. The forested lands of the Central Pacific Railroad Company and the Oregon & California Railroad Company embrace the best and most accessible timber land to be found on the Pacific Coast. They offer special inducements for speculative investment.

COLONY LANDS.

Among the most attractive offerings are the following:

CANTY IS FREE AGAIN.

Judge Ogden Permits Him to Go and See His Children.

He Has Been Passing Thirty Days in Prison for Contempt.

W. J. Canty, the West Oakland politician and railroad man, was released from the county jail this morning by Judge Ogden, where he had been spending thirty days for contempt of court in refusing to pay $15 a month toward the support of his three children.

Canty went on the witness stand this morning and made a strong plea. He said he had been persecuted. He was willing to support his children if he could have their custody, he said. He had not been permitted to see them and that was one reason why he had not obeyed the court's order. A second reason was that he had only earned $90 since he got out last February and $30 of that had gone to pay court expenses in the divorce suit with his wife.

"I have no money nor any property," said Canty in reply to a question of Judge Ogden, "but I can and always have supported my family respectably. Will your honor allow me to see my children?" he pleaded.

Judge Ogden was moved to grant the request and directed the clerk to make the necessary entry. Canty asked for a certified copy of the order. "I might be arrested for disturbing the peace," explained Canty, "if I went there without it."

Canty got his order and left court comparatively happy, for he promised to obey the court and provide for his children, now that he is released from jail.

AROUND THE COURTS.

A Number of Cases Up Before the Superior Judges.

Emma Freeman was arraigned in Judge Ellsworth's court this morning on a charge of petit larceny with numerous prior convictions. She is a notorious shoplifter. Her trial was set for August 8th.

The Holland brothers and Jake Oppenheimer, charged with robbery, were in Judge Ellsworth's court this morning. The former were arraigned. The cases were continued for a week when they will be set for trial.

George Dority, a young colored man, charged with perjury, was arraigned this morning in Judge Ellsworth's court. His attorney entered a demurrer to the complaint. Argument will be heard next Monday.

EXPENSIVE AMENDMENTS.

The Mayor Speaks of the Effect of the Charter Changes.

"I see that the City Attorney and City Engineer have applied for assistants," remarked Mayor Davie today. "Well, that is only another instance of the effects of the charter amendments. The people were induced to vote for the amendments because they were told that it would be in the line of economy, but now it appears that the salary which the commissioners received under the old system will be paid to their assistants, who will do the work instead of the men selected to do it."

Marston Campbell will probably be selected by City Engineer Wilson as his assistant, while a host of young lawyers are after the position under the city attorney.

Library Catalogue.

The Rudolph Indexers are now in use in the free library and are proving a great convenience to patrons. The books, arranged, according to authors, are placed on a roller, which by turning a crank reveals the entire catalogue. On the receipt of a new book at the library a type-written slip giving its name and the author is placed on the roller. It is proposed to print a catalogue to be on hand at the branch libraries from the catalogue already arranged.

Physicians

prescribe Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil and Hypophosphites because they find their patients can tolerate it for a long time, as it does not upset the stomach nor derange the digestion like the plain oil.

Scott's Emulsion is as much easier to digest than the plain oil as milk is easier to digest than butter. Besides, the fish-fat taste is taken out of the oil, and it is almost palatable. The way sickly children, emaciated, anæmic and consumptive adults, gain flesh on Scott's Emulsion is very remarkable.

MONDAY..... JULY 15, 1895.

It has been in the air for some time that Dr. Gunsaulus, the great pulpit and platform orator of Chicago, would receive a call from the First Congregational church of Oakland. It is now reported that the first steps have been taken looking to that result. Dr. Gunsaulus has charge of a prosperous church in Chicago. There is no Congregational church in that city that is as strong in numbers or influence as the church in Oakland. It is the foremost church of that order on the Pacific coast, and one of the two or three largest in the whole country. It would not be a stepping down, but a step upward to come to this church. There are great opportunities here for a builder. Dr. McLean retires in September to take up work in another important field. He has always been a builder. With Dr. Gunsaulus in his old church it is probable that another strong hand might be felt in the enlargement of the Pacific Theological seminary.

Money and Travel.

Besides the every day travel by rail in this country 10,000 young people recently went to Chattanooga; 15,000 teachers went to Denver, and 50,000 representatives of the Christian Endeavor societies went to Boston. These people made these summers tours partly for pleasure as well as for higher ends. They had the money to spend to the extent of a million or more. It was a good way to spend it. What are called the "hard times" do not seem to make much impression upon travel. The summer tourist seeks the best hotels, and is intent on having a good time as long as the money holds out. He has even been known to borrow it rather than miss his outing.

During the present season all the great passenger steamers from New York to European ports have been crowded, every passage having been engaged weeks ahead. During this present month there was not a berth on any steamer that was disengaged. One or more extra ships were put on in order to take up the overflow. Of course hard times do not greatly affect those who are not obliged to calculate closely the expenses of a European journey. Most of them know little and care less about business depressions. They have the money and they spend for it a good time.

Americans will spend this year in European tours, probably fifty to sixty million dollars. Some of the estimates that have been recently made are much higher. These expenditures, on the surface, do not indicate any financial stringency. If they indicate anything as to money, it is that it is within easy reach of this great multitude who go abroad; and yet a considerable proportion of such tourists have no surplus funds. They go abroad as a means of education. Every dollar has been counted and an estimate has been made as to just how far it will go. A thousand dollars will give them 100 days of touring in Europe including the passage across the ocean. Some will do it for less, while a thousand dollars will be hardly more than pin money for rich young fellows. The volume of tourist travel appears to be about as great now as it was in the most prosperous years.

The Man Who Was Caught Napping.

A question arose in Chicago as to the unit value in the original coinage act of 1792. The question was left to the decision of ex-Governor L. Bradford Prince of New Mexico. He put in evidence two silver dollars, one coined in 1795 and the other in 1802. On the edge of these coins where the milling is now done were the words "One dollar or unit. Hundred cents." Then the ex-governor jumped to the conclusion that this weight never varied from the foundation of the government up to the demonetization in 1873. "When the change in ratio was made in 1834 it was the gold coin that was altered, not the silver dollar."

Now comes the Times-Herald of Chicago, and recommends that the umpire should read the coinage act before he goes any deeper into monetary history. "The original silver dollar was the equivalent of the Spanish milled dollar containing 371¼ grains of pure silver, and it was technically called dollar or unit, like the gold dollar or unit, the ratio to gold being 15 to 1. It was legal tender for all purposes, and necessarily in theory 100 cents. By the coinage law of 1834 the ratio was altered to 16.002 to 1, but although it was the gold dollar weight that was changed then the silver weight was changed in 1837 from 416 grains to 412½ grains. The weight of pure silver remained the same, yet, although the dollars bore the government flat, "100 cents," the government proved unable to make the people of the United States or of any other part of the world accept its dictum. The milling or notching was adopted to lessen the risk of abrasion or shaving by which loss of intrinsic value arose."

A Remarkable School Blank.

The city of Napa, claiming a population of about 7,000, has no high school. The small town of Sonoma, with a population not exceeding 800, supports a high school, and efforts are being made to establish a similar school in St Helena. Napa is rich and prosperous—a county seat—and quite the largest place in the county. A citizen writes to the Napa Register, pointing out with much force the disadvantages of such an educational blank. The case is put in this light:

We want it because it would induce many families to remain here who have contemplated a removal for its advantages. We want it to bring back those who have already left us to secure those advantage and are spending their money elsewhere. We want it as an inducement to the settlement of eastern people or any in search of homes, who, finding us thus deficient, may locate where they can find these privileges. We want it because it is an absolute and imperative need to promote the welfare of the rising generation. The lack of it makes it probable that many promising children in Napa having emerged from the common school have got all the education they will ever get, a fact that may prove very unfortunate to them and deplorable to the community. So long as Napa is without a high school she is without the completion of a common school system—a fact we do not care to confess to the people outside of the county seat. To the degree that a corporation neglects educational necessities it chokes ambition, encourages poverty, pensions indolence and pays tribute to crime. We act upon the premise that every omission or aim that tends to affect property value is a blow at one's interest that justifies an attitude of resentment and defense. Does not the want of facilities to complete our ordinary educational finish affect property value?

There is not another county seat in the State as large as Napa that has not a high school. In some large counties there are two or three small towns having 1,000 inhabitants which support a school of this class, and have even erected handsome school buildings. The Napa man points out that the absence of such a school in that city has been the removal of several families to places where better school advantages could be enjoyed. What is the matter with the bright and prosperous city of Napa that it does not care enough about the future of the youth of that place to establish a high school?

Street Paving With Wood.

George W. Bell's pamphlet entitled "Street Paving in Sydney," has attracted some attention in this vicinity. The case for wood paving is very well made out for Australia. The method is not new. Some years ago wood paving had a run in San Francisco. It was mostly done under the "Nicholson" patent. It was a very costly failure for several reasons. In the first place, the blocks were laid on wet sand, or on board surface covering the sand. The blocks were of soft wood, mostly fir, although cedar and some hard woods were occasionally used. But the pavement bulged in wet weather; there were deep depressions and decaying wood. A "Nicholson" pavement was a sorry sight. The blocks were not laid upon concrete, and if they had been laid in that way the pavement would have failed from the rapid decay of the wood.

In Sydney these wood blocks are laid on a solid foundation of concrete, at a cost of $3.30 a square yard, or about 37 cents a square foot. The estimated duration is twenty years. The total cost of taking up the blocks, squaring the worn ends, is 57 cents a square yard. These blocks are of several varieties of eucalyptus wood. There is no wood of these varieties grown in California that has such wearing quality. The blue gum, red gum and iron bark—the latter quite the best—decay rapidly. In short, the whole range of eucalyptus trees from which so much has been expected from timber, is worthless for anything but fire wood. The oak of this country is not much better.

As long as the experiment of wood pavements is fresh in the minds of citizens here, they will never resort to that method of paving streets. No doubt the Australian experiment has been satisfactory. There is one kind of eucalyptus tree grown there that is nearly as hard as iron. It weighs nearly as much in the cubic foot as granite. Small quantities have been imported. Some of the Arctic whalers are fitted out with stems, or cut waters, of this wood. In London there are said to be blocks of wood pavement on crowded business streets that have given good satisfaction.

The pavement that gives the greatest promise of permanence here is the asphalt, sometimes called bitumen. But many of these pavements have been a disappointment because they have been constructed of poor material and the work has been poorly done. A great deal of bituminous rock sold in these markets is not fit for paving, unless it is used as a composition. There is no trouble in obtaining a scientific formula for making this composition. A standard of excellence ought to be established and no street contractor under any circumstances permitted to depart from it. If this were done and the material laid on a concrete foundation, there would be little complaint about the wearing qualities of bituminous pavements.

A Political Waterloo.

The rout of the English and Irish Liberals is one of the notable events of the day. There are a number of factions which are designated under the general head of Liberal-Unionists. There was little expectation that this party would have a majority in the next House. There were many strong men who would make up an influential minority. It looks as if nearly every member of Rosebery's cabinet would be defeated. Sir William Harcourt went down with a crash.

The Liberal party has been a disappointment in many ways. It was made up of many subdivisions. These seldom worked in harmony. Gladstone, the one great leader, tried for years to secure Home Rule for Ireland. He failed because the Irish members did not stand by him as a unit. When he retired the Liberal party lost its hold on the country. There was a day of settlement. It is not a great calamity that the party has met with a defeat. The Tories, drawing to them a large conservative element, will have their day. Home Rule in Ireland has been delayed for many years by the very men who professed the greatest zeal to bring it about at once. The Liberal party will eventually reorganize and become stronger than ever. A season of adversity is often the very best discipline for a political party.

Fourth of July in Honolulu.

The American element in Hawaii has never failed to celebrate the Fourth of July. This year the celebration was accentuated by some novel features. There was the formal declaration of the Hawaiian republic. Then there was the remarkable address of Joseph Cook, dogmatist, lecturer, heresy hunter and an all-round religious pugilist. Care had been taken in consideration that Minister Willis should preside on the occasion no one should tread on his soft corns. Some things could be said and other things suppressed on account of the delicacy of the situation. In short, it was an occasion for tact and a wise discretion.

Whether Cook was advised that nothing should be said to disturb the harmony of the occasion does not appear in the report. He sailed right in, throwing hooks to the right and left until Minister Willis called him down and admonished him that it was not in order to make a partisan tirade of that kind. The mistake was in asking Cook to make an address on such an occasion.

He is nothing if not vituperative and rasping in expression. Minister Willis was not there to hear an indictment against the administration whose servant he was. But Joseph Cook was there for that very purpose. He was there to say the very things that on such an occasion should have been left unsaid. He succeeded as far as possible in spoiling a national celebration by his irritating words, and in arousing attention to himself as the only object of human interest.

Ordinarily free speech is to be tolerated on such an occasion. But there are always limitations. In this country, if a Fourth of July orator were to launch out on such an occasion in a hot partisan speech where citizens of all shades of political opinion are assembled, he would be promptly called down. There was less occasion for such an assault at Honolulu. It was a time for concord, for the utterance of patriotic sentiments that had no sting in them. Minister Willis for once took the conceit out of Cook, and he went on his way to the steamer limp, and moody while the Hawaiians went right on with their celebration. There may be other rumbles of the Cook thunder in the antipodes.

NOTES AND EXCERPTS.

An unusual number of agents from Western and Southern States are stationed in New York this year for the purpose of inducing immigrants to settle in the States which they represent. Even Wisconsin and California are desirous of attracting newcomers.

The "bicycle face" of anxiety or despair is never seen on the boys who have learned to ride the wheel. Little chaps with smiling faces may be seen riding gracefully and easily without a sign of any disturbance of the spirit. Those who acquire a thorough knowledge of the art of wheeling in their early youth possess a great advantage over the people who take their first lessons in it after the muscles have hardened.

A colonizing scheme which contemplates bringing some 5,000 families, comprising about 30,000 persons, from Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, and other Western States, to settle in Georgia, is said to be near fruition, and it is expected that by next September the backward tide of emgration from the West to the Southwest will be well under way. The land to be settled is in Wilcox and Irwin counties, Ga., and has already been purchased. The colonizing company numbers about 7,000 stockholders, very many of whom will be settlers. The colony is to include artisans and fruit growers, as well as farmers, and it is contemplated to at some time to build a town, with schools and factories, if the scheme turns out as well as is anticipated.

Trolley parties have become amazingly popular in Philadelphia, and so great is the demand for cars to accommodate the excursionists that orders have to be booked several days ahead. Six or eight private excursions are run every fine evening from the city to some of the pleasant suburban places reached by the new electric lines that have in the past few months been built like a spider's web over the region round about Philadelphia. The parties are organized by clubs, church and social organizations, or often by a company of mutual friends. Special cars have been fitted up with illuminations in colored electric light, and with conveniences for serving ice cream and cake en route, and usually the parties take a band, or at least a handful of string musicians, along. In size the parties run from one to as much as eight car loads. "Trolleyists" is the name that has been given to the craze.—New York Sun.

A raft containing over seven million feet of lumber, mostly white pine, is on its way down the Mississippi to St. Louis. It is believed to be the biggest raft ever floated down the river. Carried by rail the lumber would make four and a half miles of carloads.

Another egg of the great auk has been sold in London. It was found in Iceland 65 years ago, came into Baron d'Hamonville's collection, and as it is slightly cracked brought $325.

Our habit of reading the Declaration of Independence on the Fourth of July is derived from the old English custom of having the Magna Charta read twice a year in the cathedrals. The bishops not only read it, but excommunicated those who broke it.

The American copy of Poe's "Tamerlane" now sells for $2,500, and it has been bound in a $500 cover. It was recently owned by a firm of publishers who would probably have charged Poe at least $500 for printing it.

Since the earthquakes Florence has turned with renewed devotion to the "tabernacoli" or shrines in the streets, containing figures of the Madonna or some saint. Besides the hanging lamp that burns all night, these are now adorned with candles, wreaths, and flowers.

Major John writes in the United Service Magazine that while he was employed between Port Said and Kantara he saw the waters of the Lake Menzaleh "driven beyond the horizon" by a violent wind, so that the natives walked about where the day before they were fishing. This convinced him that he had seen exactly what happened when the Israelites passed dryshod through the Red Sea.

It took six visits to a presentation of the danse du ventre by Turkish girls at Atlantic City, N. J., to convince the Councilmen of that town that the dance was improper. Several residents of the town protested to the Council that the exhibition was immoral, and the Mayor and Council promptly went in a body to see it for themselves. Half of the city fathers were unable to decide on the first visit, and they went to see it again on four succeeding evenings, and even then one Councilman remained unconvinced, and could not decide that the exhibition should be suppressed until he had seen it yet once more. The show was closed on the eve of the Fourth.

A correspondent of a London daily newspaper writes that the Queen of Madagascar is a handsome woman and unusually so for a Queen. She has a graceful, well-formed head, good features, an attractive figure and an agreeable smile. She received the correspondent in a pink silk dress trimmed with fine white silk lace, and at her throat, holding her lace collar, she wore a valuable diamond cluster brooch. Her carrings were the work of Malagasy goldsmiths.

Captain Henry Bundy, now 67, is one of the most interesting characters on the Great Lakes. He is known as the "sailor evangelist," and for twenty years has been doing missionery work among the large mariners. He distributes tracts, sells Bibles, and, when a family is unable to purchase a Bible he presents it with one.

Miss Remie Londonderry, of Boston, the-round-the-world bicyclist, has declined over 150 offers of marriage. She says she has saved $1,500. It isn't every girl who has wheels who can do that.

Galen Clark, who in 1857 discovered the big trees near the Yosemite Valley, is still guardian of that valley. When he left New Hampshire in 1853 he did not expect to live a year. But in California he spent his time hunting and fishing, bareheaded and barefooted, and today he is as hale and vigorous a man of 80 as one can encounter anywhere.

The Countess Gleanoti, second lady of honor of waiting on the Queen of Italy for some years, worked in Newark, N. J., as a cigarette-maker. She was born in Genoa twenty-two years ago and came to this country with her father, Carmine Giennoti, when she was a little girl. She returned to Italy at the age of 15, where she attracted the fancy of the queen and was made a personal servant. She speedily became a favorite and eventually was made a countess.

The ingredients in a pound of Royal Baking Powder have been determined to cost 50 per cent more than those in a pound of any other brand. This indicates so much greater strength and real value. Yet a pound of Royal Baking Powder costs the consumer no more than many of the inferior alum-made powders.

A stranger who was walking through Jackson Park the other day and noting the changes that time and the South Park Commissioners are gradually making in the historic locality was observed to stop under one of the trees, glance at the Wooded Island, squint at the statue of the Republic in the distance, and carefully examine the tree itself.

Then he slowly nodded his head several times, emitted a sigh, and softly said to a bystander:

"I shall always look on this spot where I am standing now as the dearest spot on earth."

"It was here, perhaps," ventured the other, "that you met the young lady to whom you were afterward—er—"

"It was here," said the stranger dreamily, "that I paid $1.50 for a bowl of cold soup, a piece of asbestos beefsteak, a slab of baker's bread and four swallows of coffee."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

GRAFTED A SHEEP'S BONE.

Remarkable Surgical Operation Performed in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., July 4.—One of the most extraordinary bone-grafting operations ever recorded was performed at the Hahnemann Hospital in this city yesterday, surgeons substituting a portion of a sheep's leg for a diseased bone in the leg of 15-year-old Boyd Folwell. The physicians say today that their patient is doing well, although it is too early to determine whether the operation will prove a success.

Some time ago young Folwell received an injury which resulted in necrosis or rotting of the right shin bone. A few days ago it was decided that amputation of the limb would be necessary to save the boy's life. But at the last moment Dr. Viescher, one of the staff surgeons, decided that bone-grafting might save the limb. Accordingly a sheep was procured. The boy was placed under the influence of ether, and the part of the bone of the right leg, for several inches above the ankle joint, was carefully cut away. The sheep in the meantime had been chloroformed and the surgeons cut away a portion of its foreleg to the exact measurement of the place which it was to take. As soon as the bone was taken from the sheep it was fitted in the gap, and the joints of the boy's bone were covered with exudations from the sheep's bone in order to afford the proper nourishment.

The operation was carried on under the strictest antiseptic treatment, and as soon as the sheep had served its purpose its throat was cut. If the operation comes up to the expectations of the surgeons, Folwell will walk and run as well as he ever did.

Cycling French Girls.

Now that cycling is so much the fashion with young girls and pretty women it is revolutionizing dress and much else besides. French doctors prescribe it as a means for keeping the balance true between the nerves and the muscles. The one thing studied now in ordering a cycling costume for a young girl is convenience. If that is secured, sightliness will follow. All the great universal provider shops have now cycle tailors. What a long time ago it seems since the Prince Imperial used to be called "Le Jeune Velocipede," and along with King Alphonso rattled round the private gardens of the Tuileries on a tall bicycle, innocent of India rubber tires. Some of the greatest industries of Paris are now connected with cycling. The cycle tax is becoming a great resource of the Exchequer. Sleepy Hollows in the country are coming again to life and prosperity through the cycle. Their inns are crowded whenever the weather is favorable. As France has such good roads and fairly equable climate, it would fast become the cycling ground of Europe if the Government gave cyclists, with their steel horses, the freedom of the custom houses.—Special Dispatch to Globe Democrat.

IN COMPETENT HANDS.

Changes in the Local Bureaus of the San Francisco Papers.

Conners Takes the Examiner, Sheridan the Chronicle, Booth the Call.

A revolution took place today in the Oakland bureaus of the San Francisco morning newspapers, the correspondence in every instance passing into new hands.

The Examiner will in future be represented here by John F. Conners, formerly of the Chronicle and Tribune. Mr. Conners is one of the most popular and wide-awake newspaper men in this part of the country. During his seven years' connection with the Tribune he scored a long list of the much-envied "scoops," and has always ranked as one of the most valuable newsgatherers that Alameda county has ever turned out. "Jack," as his friends know him, is as popular as he is clever, and there are few young men in this community who have a larger circle of staunch friends. He is an ardent Democrat, and his loyalty has never been questioned in any path in which he has walked. All are glad to see his steady advancement in his chosen profession, and he takes up his new duties today with the best wishes of every one who knows him.

The Chronicle correspondence falls to the lot of Ed Sheridan, late of the Times. Mr. Sheridan comes of a family that has turned out three good newspaper men, for one of his brothers, Sol N. Sheridan, is assistant telegraph editor of the Examiner, and another, Frank Sheirdan represents the Bulletin here. The Chronicle has secured a first-class man in Ed Sheridan, for he is faithful, never "falls down," and has a wide circle of friends in this section.

The Call correspondence has been entrusted to Stuart Booth, recently of the Examiner, before which he was city editor of the Oakland Times. Mr. Booth is thoroughly competent in every way to fulfill the duties to which he has been assigned. His extensive acquaintance in Oakland and the ability which he has displayed so signally during his connection with the local press bespeak his success.

A Missing Hotel Man.

Emil M. Adams, a hotelkeeper at Danville, Contra Costa county, has been missing for several days, and his family are greatly worried over his absence. He left his home in a buggy in company with a man who said he was a solicitor for stone monuments, to drive to Hook's ranch, near Martnez, and none of the parties have been heard from since. Adams is known to have had $96 on his person and foul play is feared.

"A TOUCH OF NATURE."

"The Old Homestead" Will Be Presented Here Tonight.

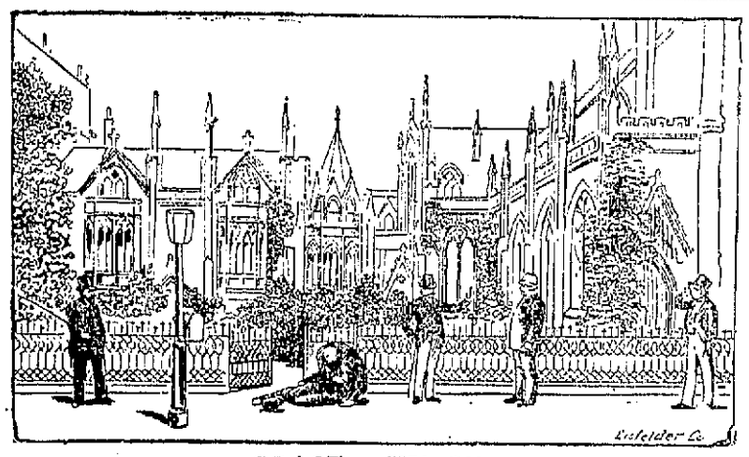

It Is a Charming Study of Life on an Old-Time Farm.

"The Old Homestead," Denman Thompson's beautiful play, will entertain the patrons of the Macdonough tonight. The engagement is for four nights and an extra matinee.

"The Old Homestead," the best of rural dramas, and without doubt the best beloved by theater goers throughout this broad land, comes for a limited engagement only. No play of New England life has yet managed to capture the hearts of city and country folks alike so effectually. Perhaps it is in the name, so reminding of some spot dear to everyone, picturing a loveable old couple surrounded by happy young faces and warm-hearted, snowy-haired friends, with whom they have toiled through life and hope to spend their last days.

All have seen human griefs and gladness, and it is "The Old Homestead" pictures that bring up other pictures made by holy association, and to laugh at the first is an excuse to mourn or rejoice with the second. The story of "The Old Homestead" is a delightful picture of rural simplicity, and the characters are lined with the striking acuteness of a silhouette. The presentation this week will have entirely new scenery and appointments and realistic effects. The double male quartette and church choir will be composed of the best of talents, and many of the new musical numbers are new.

The entire company are all people with whom the public are familiar, and some of the names will be remembered at former engagements. The musical portion of the programme is stronger than any that has ever supported the play. Dick Jose, accompanied by "The Old Homestead" famous double male quartette, will render "Just Fifty Years Ago" and "Day After Day." The full musical strength of the company, 20 voices, will sing the beautiful Palms choral service in the Grace church scene.

The company bring with them an entirely new equipment of scenery and appointments, prepared for the present season. A different view of the old farm yard is shown in the first act. The view of Grace church, New York city, will be the most realistic of any that has yet been presented. The latest developments are given in stage illumination, and the most realistic summer storm ever given on any stage, full of thunder, lightning and rain shower that is seen as well as heard will be introduced in the farm yard scene. A matinee will be given on Wednesday.

THE ALCAZAR.

There will be sufficient laughter at the Alcazar theater this week to satisfy the most exacting. This evening the popular comedian, Thos. C. Leary, who has been identified with the Tivoli for some time past, and Jas F. Post, of "U and I" fame, will open in the screaming comedy, "Mulcahy's Visit," a satire on domestic Celtic life. Messrs. Leary and Post are both great favorites, and being of distinctly opposite styles, they should prove highly entertaining. The piece is exceedingly funny, both in dialogue and situation and is pleasantly sprinkled with singing and dancing.

The public are continually in search of laughter and mirth, and "Mulcahy's Visit" will satisfy their wants perfectly.

Manager W. R. Dalley is to be tendered a rousing testimonial benefit by his friends at the Alcazar theater on Tuesday evening, July 23rd, when a lengthy programme will be rendered by volunteers.

CUT DOWN HIS BILL.

Dr. W. F. McNutt's Claim Against the Steele Estate Reduced.

Dr. W. F. McNutt of San Francisco had a claim for $1000 against the estate of the late E. L. G. Steele for an operation performed upon the deceased capitalist some time prior to his death. The claim was presented to the widow who is the executrix of the estate and she chopped $200 off and allowed a bill for $800. This morning Judge Ogden approved the allowance. The operation was that of trephining the skull.

A STORM WATER SEWER.

One Is to Be Constructed on the Northern Outskirts.

City Engineer Wilson is preparing an ordinance to submit to the council this evening appropriating money to construct a storm water sewer along Thirty-fourth and B streets from Telegraph avenue to the bay. The cost of this work will be about $40,000 and is a much needed improvement in that section of the city, which is overflowed to some extent annually during the heavy rainfalls.

BONDS COMING DUE.

A Special Election to Be Called to Refund the Indebtedness.

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held this evening. Among the matters that will come up for a first reading is an ordinance calling a special election and submitting to the qualified electors of this city the question of refunding the bonded indebtedness of 1883, issuing bonds for the same and providing for their payment. The sum of $140,000 in bonds falls due on October 1st.

The Week's Failures.

The Bradstreet Mercantile Agency reports fourteen failures in the Pacific coast states and territories for the week ending Saturday, as compared with seventeen for the previous week and twelve for the corresponding week of 1894. The failures for the past week are divided among the trade as follows: Two saloon, 1 foundry, 1 clothing, 1 hardware, 1 feed mill, 1 stationary, 1 harness, 1 confectionary, 1 varieties, 1 livery, 1 grocer, 1 dry goods and 1 produce.

HE LEFT NO WILL.

The Public Administrator Acts Regarding Whiting's Property.

It Is Shown That the Unfortunate Professor Died Intestate.

Public Administrator Knight is making an investigation of the affairs of the late Professor Harold Whiting of Berkeley who, with his entire family, perished in the Colima wreck.

Knight has been informed that Professor Whiting left no will. In that event, Knight will apply for letters of administration upon the estate. It is understood that Professor Whiting left some property in this county. He had no relatives here, but there are brothers of the ill-fated collegian in Massachusetts.

A very pretty romance was woven around the loss of the family. When the news first reached here it was said that Professor Whiting had a forewarning of the impending disaster and had mailed a will disposing of his property, to legal representatives in the East. Subsequently inquiry was made by friends in Berkeley and San Francisco and it was ascertained that the Eastern lawyers had no knowledge of the existence of any will. It has been pretty well determined that Professor Whiting left no will and for that reason the public administrator will shortly make an application for letters of administration on the estate. The more recent developments in the case are what has decided Knight to proceed as outlined.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL.

George Klugel, a well know young man, formerly of this city, has just passed through a very serious surgical operation successfully. He returned to Oakland some weeks ago from Hawaii where he has lived for the past few years. He is now well on the road to recovery.

Dr. Russell Cool of this city is receiving congratulations over the honor conferred on him by his election as first vice president of the California State Dental Association. He nearly got the presidency, receiving 36 votes to the successful man's 38. Dr. Cool's prominence in dental circles is due to the unflagging interest he takes in his profession.

The wedding of C. E. Harraman, formerly of Oakland, now of Cincinnati, and Miss Daisy Hammond of the latter city, has been announced. The bride is the daughter of Professor Charles G. Hammond of Newport, Ky. Mr. and Mrs. Harriman will live in Covington.

Don Juan Fernando Conners has returned from Santa Cruz. He brings with him the fishing record of the season, having captured forty salmon with a net in 32 minutes. He had affidavits to prove this statement but they were stolen from his sealskin overcoat on his way home. During his stay at Santa Cruz he swam over to Monterey towing en route a sailing ship which had become becalmed in the bay.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Plum Jr. have returned to San Francisco, having spent several weeks in Oakland.

The marriage of Professor C. A. Seifert and Mrs. Dora Werner took place last Wednesday evening at the home of the bride in East Oakland. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Willett of Pilgrim Congregational church. Promptly at 8 o'clock Dr. Willett and the bridegroom took their places in the bay window, which was a floral bower, and awaited the bridal procession, which advanced to the strains of Lohengrin played by Miss Mabel Oakes. It was led by two little girls, Maud Hampton and Geneva Peer daintily dressed in white, bearing bouquets of white and pink sweet peas. Following came the bride, leaning upon the arm of her son, Carl Werner, who acted as best man. After the ceremony, congratulations were showered upon the happy couple and an elaborate supper was served at tete-a-tete tables. Mr. and Mrs. Seifert received many handsome gifts which were viewed by the guests. On Thursday they departed for Southern California. A CENTRAL CYCLERY.

B. C. Lund Is an Expert at the Wheel Business.

Everybody remembers the doleful "Song of the Shirt" and how it was succeeded by the merry carol of the sewing machine. In the same way, the whirr of the flying bicycle has caused to be forgotten the clack and rattle of the "one-horse shay," and put a quietus upon the man who was forever telling how tired he was, and, the other man who had walked fifty miles, more or less without stopping, and was "ready to drop" from exhaustion.

B. C. Lund of this city has done, through his magnificent Central Cyclery, Central Bank building, Fourteenth street, opposite the Macdonough theater entrance, more than any other man in the business to bring about this change. He has sold hundreds of bicycles of the Cleveland, Ben Hur and Tribune pattern at the lowest rates. He is ready to sell anything and do any kind of work required on the bicycle.

WOMAN'S CROWNING GLORY

How the Hair Can Be Kept Beautiful and Strong.

Preparations by Which the Color Can Be Easily Changed.

The value of a beautiful head of hair is prehistoric. Nations have differed in their standards of the beauty of every feature of the face, but they have agreed always, apparently, as St. Paul says: "If a woman have long hair it is a glory to her." The Biblical praise of the hair of Absolom, the son of David, makes it appear to have been considered equally beautiful when unusually long and luxurious in either sex.

Baldness, unless the hair roots are absolutely dead, can be cured and a new growth of hair will usually repay the time and patience required in producing it. The hair roots are like those of a tree, capable of coaxing back to life and strength so long as there is anything to work upon. Of course, once really dead, it is useless. When the hair falls out after a long illness, or from grief, care, anxiety, or from too profound study, the best course is the heroic—cut it off and cast it away from you, literally. Then, advises the New York World, wash the head with warm water and soap every other day, rinsing and drying thoroughly and applying twice each day the following hair tonic:

A TONIC FOR THE HAIR.

Glycerine, one ounce; eau de cologne, (strongest) one-quarter pint; liquor of ammonia (S80-882), one fluid dram; oil of organum, oil of rosemary, of each, one-half fluid dram, tincture of cantharides, one fluid ounce. Briskly agitate them together for eight or ten minutes, then add of camphor julep (strongest) one-half pint

Electricity properly applied will often do wonders toward restoring vitality to the hair. In the case of a young girl who had lost her hair in spots after an attack of typhoid fever, a hair specialist advised stopping and electricity applied through a good sized sponge, three times a week, in conjunction with the above wash. The treatment resulted within three months in a beautiful head of new hair. The hair should be kept short at least a year under the above or similar circumstances.

Properly speaking, one should not grow grey until long after middle age. In this country, however, it is almost the exceptional man or woman who passes the thirty-fifth year without the discovery of a silvery hair or two among the brown or gold. The gray hairs generally appear first about the temples, indeed, the word temple is derived from the Latin word tempa, because it is there time first stamps it ravages.

WHEN PREMATURELY GRAY.

Gray hair at this age certainly seems premature. While its progress may be arrested, nothing has ever been invented which will restore the hair already silvered.

Gray hair can only be changed in color by a dye or stain. Some of these dyes are effective and many are relatively harmless. They should be sold as stains or dyes, not as restoratives, regenerators, etc. In general, however, the use of dyes should not be recommended. But as there is an honest difference of opinion on the subject, several of the leading formulas are given:

TO CREATE A TITIAN RED.

The vegetable hair dyes are quite inoffensive. Unfortunately, however, they fade very soon, and the color they impart to the hair, is, as the French say, "doubtful;" that is to say, one cannot to a certainty count on the exact shade. The best of all the vegetable hair dyes is henna, which is the preparation used to create the Titian red hair now so much in vogue. Indeed, there is little doubt that Titian's models themselves derived their wonderful red bronze tresses from the henna leaves, which have been used for this purpose for centuries and centuries.

In England a decoction of the henna or alkanna plant may be bought of any chemists, and of some chemists in this country. The henna may be reduced in strength until it produces the shade desired. It will stain the skin and scalp, but such stains are readily removed if washed at once with soap and water without in any way affecting the color the henna has given the hair. In Turkey the henna is rubbed into the hair in the form of a paste. A decoction may be made at home by simply brewing the leaves as one would tea. To produce the various shades of brown, the following is the best stain known. It is the basis of most of the rogenerators, restorers, etc.

TO PRODUCE BLACK OR BROWN.

Pyrogallic acid, one-quarter ounce; distilled water, hot, one and one-half ounces, dissolve, and when the solution has cooled gradually add of rectified spirits, one-half fluid ounce. It may be made weaker or stronger if desired.

Years ago a celebrated hair restorative was analyzed in a laboratory in Paris. It was advertised as possessing qualities little short of miraculous. It proved to be a decoction of green walnut shells scented with oil of rosemary. This is really one of the oldest of hair stains and is made as follows:

Make a strong decoction of green walnut shells and water. Add enough alcohol to preserve it, also a few bruised cloves. Let it stand for a week and filter. Lighten the color by adding water. Recollect that the walnut shells will stain the scalp, which must be immediately washed before they become set.

For producing golden hair the safest and best agent is peroxide of hydrogen. To produce any shade of golden hair, pour a little peroxide of hydrogen in a saucer. Apply with a soft tooth brush evenly to the roots only—the hair must be perfectly clean and quite dry.

While it is true that there is no such bondage as the use of any of these hair dyes or stains entails, yet there are women who are determined to have hair of this or that shade. Before applying any of the above cosmetics, the hair should be carefully washed and freed from all oily substances. If it is naturally greasy, throw a small lump of washing soda into the first water and rinse carefully after or use this shampoo:

SHAMPOO LIQUID.

Rum, three quarts; alcohol, one pint; water, one pint; tincture of cantharides, half an ounce; carbonate of ammonia, half an ounce; carbonate of potassium, one ounce. Dissolve the carbonates in the water and add the solution to the other ingredients mixed together, and shake up well.

Never permit a hair dresser to "prepare" hair for a change of color, be it auburn, brown, or any other shade, by first bleaching it. Bleaching means taking all the coloring matter out of it—the vitality of the hair goes with the color, and frequently bleaching will rot the hair and utterly destroy its texture. Of course the new hair that comes after the dyeing process, will have its original color, and its appearance makes another application of the stain necessary. Usually there will be a difference in the shade because the new growth is one color and the other has been artificially changed.

Thus we see the woman with restored locks sometimes looking as though she were trying an entire scale of color on her head. The hair, which has been suddenly turned gray by grief or sickness; sometimes regains its old vitality. There was once a woman of thirty-four, whose hair on one side of her head only turned quite white from anxiety and fear lest she should lose her daughter. The daughter's health being entirely restored, her mother was surprised by the gradual appearance of the old color of the gray hair.

WHEN THE HAIR FALLS OUT.

For falling hair and indeed for baldness any of the preparations made from cosmoline or vaseline may be used successfully. The active principle of cosmoline is coal oil than which, properly used, nothing is better as a hair grower. The following is a good vaseline formula:

Yellow vaseline..... 50 grammes
Cocoanut oil..... 30 grammes
Gallic acid..... 6 grammes
Essence of rosemary..... 12 drops

Rub well into the hair every night.

It is a mistaken idea that washing the hair frequently is injurious to it. On the contrary, cleanliness has never been other than healthful. The extreme length of some women's hair makes it a great labor to wash it frequently, and a delicate woman should have assistance in drying it after washing.

Brushing the hair gently and thoroughly is of the greatest importance. Even long hair should be washed at least once a week, and where there is much exposure to dust, or much dandruff, it should be washed every other day. There is no danger of catching cold so long as the hair is properly dried and all draughts during this process are avoided. Wetting the hair with bay rum, cologne water or alcohol, contrary to general belief, increases the tendency to catch cold unless the head be lightly covered to prevent the effects of rapid evaporation.

FOR EXCESSIVE DANDRUFF.

Scurf or dandruff is, unless in a most aggravated form, not a disease—it is the result of neglect, or, in plain English—uncleanliness. Any ordinary case of dandruff may be cured by perfect cleanliness of the scalp. Scurf, or furfura, is a natural and healthy formation, and very frequently it is produced by rapidly growing and very luxuriant hair. You may keep dandruff from accumulating, but you cannot prevent its formation. When the scurf is excessive despite great cleanliness, it denotes an unhealthy condition of the scalp. Try the following in such cases, but always in conjunction with very frequent washings, with plenty of rinsing:

Extract of rosemary..... 1 dram
Tincture of cantharides..... 1 dram
Solution carbonate potassium..1½ drams
Distilled water..... 4 fluid ounces

Apply with small soft sponge daily.

Where there is great physical debility and a general failure of health combined with falling hair or irritation of the scalp a course of tonic medicines taken internally is often very serviceable. In such cases a good tonic for external application to the roots of the hair is:

When the Baby Is Cutting Teeth

Be sure and use the old and well-tried remedy, Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

A Few Tips for Anglomaniacs on the Correct Thing.

How the Satin Bow Cuff Fad Was Made All the Rage.

Leaders of men's fashions in London decided over six months ago that the cuff button, the time-honored ornamental yet useful cuff button, must go. Prince George, of the royal household, came out on Rotten Row one day with the liberal cuffs which he always wears tied together with an inch-wide black satin ribbon made into a bow, and the ends dangling four inches from his wrists in a most ladylike manner. Within 24 hours the Prince's set had discarded the creations of gold, silver and precious stones, with which their cuffs had been held together, and appeared on "The Row" with dangling satin ribbons at their wrists. The departure was of course promptly adopted by the ultra-fashionable dudes of London Town, then by the would-be fashionables, and in less than six months the ridiculous and effeminate style has become so common as to attract but the most passing attention.

The cuff bows are de rigeur, be it understood, only with correct morning or promenading costume, and in connection with the fancy-colored evening dress coats, with which certain London beaux have, for several years, been endeavoring to supplement the conventional spike-tailed garment of funeral black.

New York's nice young men, the young men who expect to go to England when they die, have been a little slow in adopting this latest freak of fashion, says the World. Three dear creatures who were the glass of fashion appeared on the Fifth avenue promenade last Sunday morning holding their canes behind their backs with both hands, so as to give the pretty satin ribbon the most graceful possible droop. They were not exactly the pioneers of the new style of cuff decoration in this city, however. Vesta Tilley, a famous London concert hall singer, who is depended upon by her audiences over there to be the first to show anything new in men's attire, has been for six weeks exhibiting this invention of Prince George's valet at a Fourteenth street music hall. The ribbons are worn with long frock coat, pearl gray trousers and high silk hat, the correct Roten Row promenade attire for 1895.

The three young men who sauntered up Fifth avenue as far as the Savoy and back as far as the Waldorf were, as a cockney would say, "bloomink well stared at," but what cared they for the sneers and derisive smiles of the majority? Were they not rewarded by the open-eyed wonder and envy of sundry "Gussies," "Freddies" and "Algies" who at once recognized that the style was English?

Next day there was a mad rush upon the fashionable Broadway and Fifth avenue dealers in "gents' furnishings" the new cuff decorations, don't you know. It just so happened that no dealer in the city had imported any of the new cuff bows. Some of them were frank enough to admit that they had never heard of the style. For this they were given a glance of commiseration and scorn and were glad to be partially forgiven when they promised to cable at once for a supply. Being English, all other considerations against this most radical departure in men's drapery will not count and the fad will run its course at Newport and in New York during the summer. It may increase in extravagance. It is a step back towards the flowing lace cuffs worn with men's ceremonial dress for centuries, and displaced by the laundered linen cuff less than one hundred years ago

ONLY THE FASHIONABLE.

A young gentleman at the Waldorf who has just returned from London said that he had noticed that the cuff bows on the promenades were worn only by very fashionable men, and had seen them displayed in the fashionable haberdasher's shops in a variety of styles. The fashionable youth who is dressed like a child by his valet, uses the satin ribbon, cut in proper length. The paterns of cuffs worn are the open varieties designed for link buttons. The ribbons are passed through the buttonholes, and the valets vie with each other in the grace and originality of design that they impart to "Me Lud's" cuff bow.

The English manufacturer, quick to grasp the idea that any fad in fashion indorsed by the golden youth of the metropolis would be in demand, have promptly placed on the market link buttons with a small base, to the face of which are attached a made bow with the pendent ribbon. These naturally preserve their shape, and really make up better than the hand-tied bow. Should, however, one of the Prince's set be convicted of wearing a pair of the made-up bows the shock to society would be great and the penalty nothing less than ostracism.

There would be a serious side to this fad were there any probability that it had come to stay. It is the most radical and revolutionary departure in fashion of the century. Hats, coats and trousers vary in height, length and width, curl or cut, but still they are hats, coats and trousers. Only a person very fond of statistics of incomprehensible magnitude would undertake to even estimate the millions of dollars invested in sleeve buttons. The jeweler gives to the designing of these buttons his best talents. Men who are opposed to vulgar or ostentatious display will allow themselves an expensive pair of cuff buttons. Young men of wealth pride themselves on the variety and extent of their collection of cuff holders.

WHAT OTHERS THINK.

A Broadway jeweler said "I do not believe that this fad will amount to to anything. It will never become popular in New York. A few score Murray Hill Anglo-maniacs may take it up for a while. They would walk about in their stocking feet if assured that it is English—but I don't believe that the dangling satin ribbons will make any more headway than did the fad among the lady-like young men who gave pink teas wearing bangles on their slender wrists several years ago There might be some excuse for a style like this on occasions. A quiet show up to good effect during the modest drapery of this kind would stately and ceremonious movements of the cotillon or a minuet. It is not altogether out of taste in connection with a promenading costume, although nine people out of ten would pronounce it effemenate. That objection would however cut no figure with the class of young men who are likely to wear the ribbons. But there is not the remotest probability that the cuff button will ever be supplanted by anything as impracticable as this. The cuff button is as much an article of necessity as the coat or trousers button, and has come to stay. These little departures hurt no established industry; serve the purpose only of creating a new and original demand for something that would remain unsold. The would-be leader of style in his ambition to design something new is a great benefit to the tradesman."

Mr. Berry Wall was asked what he thought of the departure and he briefly replied: "Those dangling ribbons will never become a part of a well-dressed gentleman's dress. The effect is graceful as seen in a photograph, but we object in dressing a man is to preserve the distinctiveness of the masculine garb. The ladies have drawn liberally from the masculine styles, but we have never drawn from them!"

POLL TAX NOTICE.

OAKLAND, March 4, 1895.

PUBLIC NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the State Poll Tax of two dollars for the year 1895, is now due and payable at my office, room 1, Courthouse, or to a Deputy Assessor.

Sec. 3839 of the Political Code reads as follows:

Every male inhabitant of the State over twenty-one and under sixty years of age, except paupers, insane persons and Indians, not taxed, must annually pay a Poll Tax of two dollars, provided the same be paid between the first Monday in March and the first Monday in July, then it shall be three dollars.

Sec. 3846 of the Political Code makes it the duty of the Assessor to "demand Poll Tax of every person liable therefor, and on the neglect or refusal of such persons to pay, he must collect by seizure and sale of any personal property owned by such person."

Under sections 429 and 435 every person who refuses to give his own name or the name of any person in his employ, or who in any manner obstructs the Assessor or any of his deputies in the collection of the State Poll Tax, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and liable to a fine of $500 or imprisonment in the County Jail, or both such fine and imprisonment.

Only those persons under twenty-one or over sixty years are exempt. Poll Tax must be paid on demand.

HENRY P. DALTON,
Assessor of Alameda County.

OFFICE OF THE Assessor of Alameda County.

NOTICE TO TAX PAYERS.

OAKLAND, March 4, 1895.

ALL PERSONS, FIRMS, COMPANIES, corporations and associations are required to deliver at the Assessor's office at the Court house, City of Oakland, County of Alameda, immediately, a statement under oath of all the property, both real and personal, owned or claimed by him, her or them, or in their possession or held in trust for others, at 12 o'clock meridian on the FIRST MONDAY OF MARCH, 1895, in accordance with the New Constitution.

Refusal or neglect to make a sworn statement of all the property owned or held in trust will subject the person so refusing or neglecting to make such sworn statements to the full penalty of the law—one hundred dollars fine and guilty of misdemeanor.

All persons owning real estate that has heretofore been assessed in the wrong name on the Real Estate Assessment Book, or who have purchased real estate within the last year, are requested to appear, with their deeds, at the Assessor's office and have the proper changes made for the year 1895. Immediate attention is necessary, as work on the book has already been commenced.

Proper blanks may be obtained at the Assessor's office.

—FOR THE—

REQUIRED BY THE VARIOUS DEPARTMENTS OF THE COUNTY GOVERNMENT.

SEALED PROPOSALS WILL BE RECEIVED by the Board of Supervisors of Alameda county at the board rooms in the annex to the Hall of Records in the city of Oakland, County of Alameda, State of California, until 12 o'clock M., on Monday, July 15, 1895, (at which time and place they will be opened in the presence of the bidders) for furnishing and delivering at such times and in such places and in such quantities as may be required, supplies for the Alameda County Infirmary, the various departments of the County Government, Hall of Records, at the County Jail and Receiving Hospital of the County of Alameda, consisting of fish, drugs and medicines, stationery, etc., and other staple supplies, from date of contract to June 30th, 1896, inclusive, as per specifications and provisions of schedules to be furnished by the Clerk of this Board, adopted by this Board this day, and according to the conditions and requirements of such schedules contained. The County of Alameda, through the Board of Supervisors, reserves the right to use in the several departments of the County Government greater or less quantities than enumerated in the proposals and schedules should the public interests so require, and to accept the lowest bid on each article of each class.

The Board of Supervisors also in considering said bids reserves the right to accept or reject all or any of them or accept a part of any bid or proposal presented. Samples of all staple articles are to be presented for examination by the Board of Supervisors at the board room, the same to be properly marked with name of bidder and schedule number.

All supplies and materials furnished to be subject to the approval of the department ordering the same and to the satisfaction of the Board of Supervisors of Alameda county. No bid will be considered unless made upon said schedules nor unless accompanied by certified check payable to the order of Frank C. Jordan, clerk of the Board of Supervisors, certified to by some responsible bank for an amount which shall not be less than 10 per cent of the aggregate amount of the proposal or proposals which accompanies. Said check to be forfeited to the County of Alameda, as agreed and liquidated damages, should the party or parties to whom the contract shall be awarded fail to enter into the contract within ten (10) days after the award, or fail to give a bond required by the Board for the faithful performance of the contract. Payment for all supplies will be made in the manner prescribed by the Legislature of the State of California. All bids must be inclosed in sealed envelopes, addressed to the Board of Supervisors of Alameda County, and be indorsed on the envelopes furnished by the Clerk, "Proposals for furnishing supplies for the County of Alameda required by the various departments of the County Government," giving the general name and number as on the schedules or as otherwise provided in schedules.

Dated, July 1, 1895.

HIRAM BAILEY,
Chairman Board of Supervisors Alameda County, California.
(Seal) Frank C. Jordan, Clerk.

PROBATE NOTICE.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Alameda, State of California.

In the matter of the estate of Hannah Simmons, sometimes called Hannah B. Simmons, deceased.

Notice of time set for proving will, etc.

Notice is hereby given, that a petition for the probate of the will of Hannah Simmons, sometimes called Hannah B. Simmons, deceased, and for the issuance to James Edwin Simmons of letters testamentary thereon has been filed in this court, and that Monday, the 29th day of July, A. D., 1895, at 10 o'clock A. M. of said day, at the courtroom of Department No. 1, of said court, at the Court House in the City of Oakland, in the County of Alameda, has been set for the hearing of said petition, when and where any person interested may appear and contest the same.

Dated, July 11, 1895.

FRANK C. JORDAN, Clerk.
By F. D. ADAMS, Deputy Clerk.

A WASTE OF WATER.

WAS THE SUPPLY SUFFICIENT?

Noah's Ark as Compared to the Dimensions of a Warship.

How the Story Harmonizes With the Teachings of Religion.

The Church of the Advent in East Oakland is attracting much attention nowadays owing to the religio-scientific discourses of the Rev. V. Marshall Law. The doctor is a man of much research and has undertaken the great task of bridging the gulf which has heretofore separated science from religion. His logic is good and his arguments clear, and the abstruse problem of making the discoveries of science harmonize with the teachings of the Bible becomes almost an easy task in his hands. He has already taken his congregation through the stages of the creation of the world and the origin of man, and yesterday he undertook to explain the deluge. This is how he did it.

The story of the deluge which is found in Genesis is that of the drowning of the earth in a great flood of waters as a visitation upon a wicked and degenerate people. The subject happily cannot be a dry one, and we shall expect to find it juicy as well as wet before we reach the ascription.

The story runs that men grew so desperately wicked that it repented God that He had created them, and that He, in consequence decided to drown him out of the world, so that Noah and his family, the only righteous ones remaining, might have an opportunity to recover the fallen fortunes of the race by giving it another start de novo. So the dimensions of a great ship were given to Noah by the Lord, and Noah at once began to prepare for the flood amid the jeers of the wicked about him. The ship he was commanded to build, in the light of the evidence of the most accomplished modern shipwrights was a most seaworthy craft of about 42,413 tons burthen. The ordinary man-of-war is only about 2,500 to 3,000 tons burthen, so we see that Noah's ark was something like fourteen to nineteen times the size of the average man-of-war. Upon most careful computation, several eminent authorities have shown that this vessel was ample for all the different animals which it was necessary for Noah to take along with him, including their food. Those unbelievers who argue that no ship could be made large enough to accomplish the purposes for which the ark was made, are reminded that in proportion as the theory is true, the number of animals which it was necessary for Noah to save becomes reduced, since from a much fewer primal types could the earth again be restocked. Skeptics are quite prone to use these weapons which have a double cutting edge without noticing their dangerous character until somebody gets hurt.

When everything was in readiness, Genesis tells us "the foundations of the great deep were broken up and the windows of heaven were opened," and that the rain fell in torrents for forty days and forty nights and the water rose over the highest hill-tops and drowned all animals that breathed the air and lived on the dry land. We find upon consulting the maps that during the flood the ark was borne away to the north, showing that the phenomena of destruction was accompanied by a strong current setting in that direction. You must remember this fact, for it cuts no small figure in that which is to follow. When Noah and his family came out of the Ark God told them that he had set his bow in the clouds for a perpetual "token" of His promise not to again drown the world.

At this juncture we hear skeptics, infidels and agnostics break into a loud guffaw and exclaim that such a story is perfectly absurd. They say, and truly, indeed, that the laws of reflection and refraction of light were in existence before the flood and that there must have been rainbows, too, if it ever rained at all in those days. They also tell us that there is not enough water to cover all the "highest hills under the whole face of the heavens," and that there is no evidence worth mentioning that such an occurrence ever took place. Let us clear away a little of this Tom Paine and William Denton rubbish before we proceed.

As for the rainbow, it certainly existed before the deluge. But what was to prevent God's "appointing it," or setting it in the clouds for the "token of a promise" immediately after the deluge. This is exactly what He did do, and all that Genesis says He did. The word translated "set" in this connection has the sense of "appointed," and excellent authorities so translate it, among whom may be mentioned Thomas Hartwell Horne in his great critical work on the Scriptures published some years ago, to say nothing of many later lights. (See "Horne's Introduction," vol. i, p. 76.) From the time the ark landed on Ararat man was to remember for all the future that the rainbow was henceforth to be the reminder of a promise that God would not again drown the world for the sins of the people. This seems peculiarly fitting, if you recall that whenever the proper conditions exist for a rainbow, the clouds are exceedingly dark and threatening and might give rise to fears of another flood. Every time I see a rainbow I remember this promise of God, and thousands of others do the same, and thus it continues fulfilling its mission of reminding man of God's promise, although before the deluge no such signification attached to it. So much for the bow.

THE WATER SUPPLY.

The next objection is that there is not enough water on the globe to cover "the highest hills under the whole heavens." Fortunately science, to which latterly the biblical scholar is becoming more and more indebted, by actual measurements in deep sea soundings, which are continually going on, and in which our government, through the agency of the cultured men of our navy, is taking an illustrious part off the coast of Japan, some of the results of which have recently been published in the English papers at Yokohama, come to our assistance here. And what is the general verdict?

Data has already sufficiently accumulated through these deep sea soundings to show that if God were to take a great smoothing iron and level down all the mountains and hills of both dry land and the ocean floors, so that the earth were smooth and one perfect sphere, there is water enough on the globe to cover the whole world to the depth of two miles! O, how timely is that providence of God, which makes the findings of science with which scoffers have been wont to malign the word of God, veritable boomerangs in destroying the batteries of the very men who shot them forth. Not water enough to produce a general deluge? We can cover the whole earth now to the depth of two miles, and the soundings of the next few years may demonstrate that there is enough to inundate it to a depth of ten miles! O, those persons who roll the word "science" as a sweet morsel under their tongues, while they chew the cud of agnosticism shall have plenty of it before this hour's work is finished!

Having seen that there was, because there is, water enough to make a universal deluge, the next question is, was there a deluge?

To those who have tested the internal evidences of the Scriptures, the simple statement of the Hebrew Scriptures that there was a deluge is quite sufficient. Having tried the efficacy of revelation upon their own sinful natures, they are ready to accept any of the statements found therein without further question. But a large number of people, for divers reasons, crave evidence of the truth of Scripture, other than the internal evidences, so we pass on to the external proofs of the flood. Prof. Huxley, the great king infidel of this century has said, "at the present time it is quite difficult to persuade serious scientific enquirers to occupy themselves in any way with the Noachian deluge. They look at you with a smile and a shrug," etc. The "smile and the shrug," are, to say the least, not very scientific ways of meeting any question, and those with whom the "sneer" is such a potent means of debate will find that the question of whether there was really a deluge or not cannot be settled in that way. What has tradition to say upon the subject?

A LEGEND FOR ALL.

If there never was a great inundation corresponding to the Noachian deluge it is utterly impossible to account for the universality of the traditions which have prevailed among the most ancient peoples and nations in regard to such an event. They have been found in every quarter of the globe and among the wildest races. By accepting the deluge as an established historical fact, and the survivors of that catastrophe as the ancestors of modern man, these traditions can be accounted for, and in no other way. These traditions are so numerous and so united in regard to all the salient points of the story, that the account substantially as we have it in Genesis could be produced had there never been any Hebrew scriptures.

The Chaldeans, the Egyptians and the Assyrians, the Greeks and the Romans, the Hindoos, the Persians and the Burmans, the Chinese and the Japanese, the Mexicans, the Peruvians, the Brazilians, the Nicaraguans and the Western Caledonians, the ancient Goths and Druids, the Cree Indians in the Polar regions of North America, the Otaheitans and Sandwich Islanders before their conversion to Christianity, and numerous other nations and tribes in widely separated quarters of the globe, combine in their traditions in voicing the existence at one time of a great flood corresponding in all essential particulars with that described in the Hebrew Scriptures. Ovid's description of Ducalion's Flood is so well known and remembered by every scholar that it is needless to point out to anyone who has received the least tincture of letters that it is identical with Noah's flood. Lucian, also, describes Ducalion's flood in such a way that it leaves no ground for doubting that Ducalion and Noah were one and the same. In order that you may better judge of the nature of this similarity, I will here reproduce Lucian's description which when it begins and when it ends he professes to have received from the Greeks, so he cannot be suspected of having borrowed from the Scripture. Here it is.

"The present race of men was not the first, but the former generation was all destroyed, this second race sprung from Ducalion; the former was a wicked and profligate generation, for which reason this great calamity befell them; the earth gave forth abundance of water, great showers of rain fell and the rivers increased, and the sea swelled to such a degree that all things were water, and all men perished. Ducalion alone was left for a second generation on account of his prudence and piety, and he was preserved in this manner: He built a great ark and entered it with his wife and children, and to him swine and horses and lions and serpents and all other creatures which the earth maintains came in pairs. He received them all and they hurt him not; on the contrary, there was by divine instinct great friendship among them, and they sailed together in the ark as long as the waters prevailed."

"Lenormant in his 'Beginnings of History,' page 490, Ed. of 1880, thus summarizes in regard to the traditions of the flood:

"The long review to which we have just applied ourselves warrants our affirming that the tale of the deluge is an universal tradition among all branches of the human family, excepting, however, the blacks. But a remembrance prevailing everywhere so concise and so concordant cannot be that of a myth arbitrarily invented. No religious or cosmogonic myth presents such a character of universality. It must of necessity be a recollection of a great and terrible occurrence, which impressed the imaginations of the ancestors of our race so powerfully as never to have been forgotten by their descendants. That cataclysm took place at a spot near the primeval cradle of humanity."

The scriptures then first say there was a flood, and we have found that tradition supports the statement. Now what says science?

An inundation of the dimensions described in Genesis ought certainly to have left its mark upon the earth so that it could not be mistaken. Whether such evidences are to be found we shall call upon the rocks to answer. In the early days of geology the fossil remains found in the rocks were too hastily attributed to the deluge. This conclusion proved to be so unscientific that it resulted in turning everybody against efforts to find physical evidences of the flood, even when they might reasonably be looked for. But lately as the glacial age is coming nearer and nearer to our own time with the general advancement in geologic research we have suddenly discovered that the earth is filled with the most unmistakable evidences of a great and quite universal inundation.

THE GLACIAL EPOCH.

It is the united testimony of geologists that there has been a great ice age, during which the earth seems to have been elevated at the poles, thereby lifting a part of the ocean beds in their vicinity so that the Gulf stream and such other warm currents as are known to temper the climate in northern latitudes were cut off and stopped, converting the present temperate zones into polar temperatures. Vast sheets of ice, which in England and other countries reached a thickness of 6,000 feet or upwards of a mile, went walking about the world of their own sweet will. This elevation of the land was followed by the great submergence, so that the ice was not only melted away, but the sea actually covered the mountain tops thereby destroying a number of the larger animals whose remains are still to be found. Man who first appears just before this great catastrophe, was certainly a witness to it, and some of our most reliable geologists tell us he actually became a victim to it and perished in the icy waters of that geological convulsion. But his instruments, vessels, weapons and remains are still to be found in the debris which accumulated during these changes.

I do not ask you to accept my unaided statement in regard to these changes, because the evidence of many geologists is, in the main, right to the point and quite accessible. Let us hear a few of their latest conclusions. Prof. A. Geike, not only the greatest English geologist of the present day, but the greatest and most competent one in the whole world at the present time, in his text book of geology p. 861, says: "Among the last and very latest changes of the globe was a great extension to the south of the conditions of climate known as glacial. During part of that time and almost certainly during the very last part of it—or even since it ended—there was, over some great part at least of the northern hemisphere a great submergence of the land under the waters of the sea."

Mr. Skertchley of the geological survey of England and one of His Majesty's most celebrated geologists, says: "It seems clear to me that man could not possibly have lived at the time when these great floods swept the country, but must have been a prior occupant whose discarded relics were swept up with the other surface matter to form sandy deposits."—Popular Science Monthly for May, 1891.

Sir William Dawson, the great Canadian geologist, says: "Let it be observed, in conclusion, that this inundation, flood or deluge, of whatever origin, occurred at the close of the Pliocene or Pleistocene period and was connected with the disappearance of the men and many of the larger animals of that period, and that it was followed by the advent of modern animals and men, whose descendents still survive."

From the Parallel roads of Glen Roy in the West Highlands 2,000 feet up the mountain side stands one of the celebrated geologists of England. He has the leisure and the taste to spend much time with his chosen pastime geology. It is the Duke of Argyle. With geologic hammer in hand His Grace pauses and, with alpine stock leaning against his left shoulder, his facile pen publishes to the world this message: "Here under my feet 2,000 above the level of the sea, are the shells and fossils and remains of marine life. Over this whole district of country the evidence of the 'great submergence' is as striking as it is ubiquitous. Old ocean has been here very recently, for the marine remains to be found here are all of species yet living hereabouts. In my opinion the great submergence is among the very latest geological operations which have been at work upon our globe."—Popular Science Monthly for May, 1891, p. 61.

Anything more from the West Highlands? The vision of a man of mighty intellect arises. In spectral loneliness he stands upon the same mountain 1280 feet above the sea. It is the late lamented Charles Darwin. With note book in hand he makes careful record of the "great submergence" and his observations have become a part of the transactions of the Royal Society of England, where you may read them if you choose. He, too, has noted the presence of marine shells and fossils high above the level of the sea, and estimates the minimum depth of the great inundation at not less than 1280 feet.

Suddenly we are transported to Patagonia, the extreme southern state of South America, which you will observe is in the other half of the globe and suggests a universal submergence. Away up the Andes we behold again the shade of Charles Darwin, and there, too, he is noting the presence of marine shells and fossils high above the surrounding sea. Old ocean has been high up on the rocky ribs of the Andes, too, and that very recently, he says, as you may read in his "Naturalist's Voyage," page 170.

"On the wings of light we repair to the Snowden range in Wales. One thousand one hundred and thirty feet above the sea on the declivities of the Snowden mountains comes more evidence of the "great submergence." There, too, are marine shells and fossils of a recent epoch, and we know that the briny billows of the complaining sea have lately washed over the Welsh mountains.

Prof. Presowich, the greatest English authority on pleistocene geology, says the waters of the ocean have been over the tops of the mountains all over Wales, Ireland, Scotland and England, as you may see by reading the Proceedings of the Royal Society, No. 196.

The mountains of Russia and of all Northern Germany down to Holland have been likewise drowned in the surging billows of the ocean, for shells and fossils which are only known to live in the salt waters and belonging to species still in existence everywhere abound on their rocky surfaces.

From Calabria in Italy and from the Island of Sicily, away up the mountains 2,400 feet above the blue Mediterranean comes the same story of a "great submergence" for Italian geologists have also found the shells and fossils remains of marine species now living, on the peaks which pierce the soft Italian skies.

A CLINCHING ARGUMENT.

All over New England, the mountains tell the same story as many of you know. And westward on the mighty Rockies, as I myself know and have personally seen, are oyster and other marine shells by the acre. Old ocean has been on these mid-continent mountains too.

And now comes the crowning achievement of geology and the greatest geological triumph of Scripture, in the discovery by Prof. Prestwich in England, of the lowest stratum or base bed of the Quaternary Series, which is but another name for the Glacial Series, and what is it? A thick stratum of marine gravel containing marine shells and fossils, overlying an old terrestrial surface on which mammalia now extinct, lived and graced and were destroyed. This bed stretches up the valley of the Thames till it reaches elevations 850 feet above the level of the sea—and alone records a depression of the land great enough to swamp, not only the greater part of Europe, but the entire part of the habitations of man all over the globe. You may read all about it in the Quarterly Journal of the Geological Society, published in February of 1890, page 85.

Genesis, then, tells us of a deluge, great enough to cover all the "high hills under the face of the whole heavens." Tradition goes the bond of the statements in Genesis, and last of all, science joins hands with these two and proclaims in thunder tones that a flood, a deluge, a "great submergence" actually did take place, and she hammers this truth home by making mallets of nearly every mountain range on the earth.

The only question which remains for us to discuss is the probability that the Noachian deluge was the same event about which geology has been telling us so graphically and satisfactorily.

The "great submergence" of which the hills have spoken, whereby the moutains of the earth were covered with shells and fossils of a bygone age, took place in the latter part or at the close of the Glacial Age. And when was the Glacial Age? Only last Sunday I explained to you in detail how we knew the Glacial Age occurred not longer ago than about 7,000 years, and possibly much more recently. (Age and origin of man.) But I omitted then to tell you that the findings of the Geodetic Surveyors of New York had been more lately most singularly verified by scientists. Five or six years ago the American Association for the advancement of science met at Niagara, and Mr. G. K. Gilbert of the United States geological survey in company with Mr. R. S. Woodward of Washington made a careful study and measurement of the gorge and its rate of increase, and science in their hands has settled beyond a reasonable doubt that that gorge which began to excavate immediately after the close of the Glacial Age, in which this "great submergence" that covered all the mountain tops formed a part occurred not more than 7,000 years ago with probabilities that it was even a less time than that in wearing away.

This brings the great geological inundation, on which I have been laying so much stress, down to a period sufficiently recent to correspond to the time of the deluge mentioned in Genesis.

So Niagara thunders them one event! St. Anthony's Falls at Minneapolis votes them one and the same! The recent investigations of Prof. Wright based upon the old bed of the Ohio river proclaim the "great submergence" to have been not more than 7,000 years ago—and thus we see that the deluge of Scripture and tradition telescope and become one event. Sir William Dawson in his 'Natural Science and Bible Lands," published six years ago, records his conviction as to their identity page 164, and the Duke of Argyle in language just as forcible and unmistakable repeats the refrain in the Nineteenth Century for 1891, while Mr. Howorth, a member of the English Parliament, in his learned work on the "Mammoth and the Flood," page 483, says that in his judgment, based upon the palaeontological evidence along with the traditions of the deluge, that the whole points unmistakably "to a widespread calamity, involving a flood on a great scale. I do not see how the historian the archaeologist and the palaeontologist can avoid making this conclusion in future a prime factor in their discussions, and I venture to think that before long it will be accepted as unanswerable."

HOW IT WAS DONE.

How was the deluge brought about? Prof. Huxley says that the heaping of the waters of the ocean over any particular part of the globe is a physical impossibility, and that we have no evidence of anything more than a little local flood in Mesopotamia. When Prof. Huxley admits that much in regard to anything in Holy Scripture you may be sure he has capitulated.

In the first place, no one claims that the ocean ever "heaped" itself over the land in which Noah dwelt, nor it is worth while to stop for a single moment to consider the difficulties of those who think that the Bible says that forty days and nights of rain was sufficient "to cover the high hills under the whole heaven," for the Bible makes no such statement. It says distinctly, first, that "the fountains of the great deep were broken up," which could be nothing less than the raising of the ocean floors near the equator with a corresponding depression of the elevations of land about the poles, by which means the waters of the ocean flowed over all the lands inhabited by man, producing all the phenomena hinted at in Scripture and fully proved in detail by Geology. "The fountains of the great deep were broken up," and in the meteorological disturbances which most certainly followed, the rain fell in torrents from very necessity, wild, fierce hurricanes swept the ocean and the end of all things seem to be at hand.

No, the sea did not "heap itself" over any one place, but the hills went down into the sea, and while they were there the shells and animal life of the great deep were scattered all over their surfaces, in order that the scientists of this day and age might come to the rescue of the word of God. The waters of the Indian ocean rose form their bed and flowed northward over lower Mesopotamia, (have you remembered what the maps told you?) carrying the ark northward on its turbulent bosom, until it landed at last on Mount Ararat. O, when I think how the ranks of skepticism and infidelity have made furious onslaughts on the Holy Scriptures, and when I recall how theologians have stood immovable in their serried ranks with lances of the spirit poised in faith alone to receive these deadly attacks, and then how the enemies of God, one after the other, have gone down and their weapons have dropped from nerveless hands only to be seized by the friends of revelation and turned against the foes of the Bible, my heart sings to God for very joy and my lips shall ever exclaim "Holy, holy, holy Lord God of hosts: heaven and earth are full of Thy glory; glory to Thee O Lord most high."

"RIGHTEOUSNESS."

A Thoughtful Discourse by the Rev. William Rader.

Righteousness was the theme on which Rev. Dr Rader preached at the First Congregational church yesterady taking has his text "Thy right hand is full of righteousness." Ps. 48.10.

He said: "Prof. Huxley, the dreamer economist, scientist and agnostic is dead.

"I speak of him because he represented the school of thought which tried the impossible task of separating virtue from religion, righteousness from God. It would have been an easier task to remove the Alps from their foundations.

"The text is a noble contradiction of the theory that righteousness comes from the dust. The Psalmist traces it up to the Deity.

"In the old pictures of the gods Neptune holds a trident, Apollo arrows, Mercury a wand, Minerva a scroll, Venus a golden apple. The Deity of David holds aloft amid all the centuries which have and will be, the eternal righteousness of God.

"It is an old word. It is spoken in all languages. Before Moses was born it was uttered in Egypt. It is the one word of which contains the ideal of life.

"Originally it meant straight or true to a rule. When some ancient Mason constructed a city wall, or cathedral, and found his work answering to the plumb line, he said 'rectus.' It conformed to a perfect standard.

"In the moral world, it is precisely the same. It is being morally plumb, square to the obligation right with God. Rightness is righteousness.

"That which the Psalmist saw in the right hand of God was the mightiest thing in the world. It was power. The dynamo force of righteousness has never been measured. It is unexhaustible. Napoleon was wrong when he said God was on the side of the heaviest battallions. Gideon would not agree with Napoleon. A small company shall put ten thousand to flight. Righteousness is power.

"Their strength is as the strength of ten because their hearts are pure.

"It was law. In the hand was laws' millenum. There was justice and judgment. Righteousness is always and everywhere judgment. Julia Warde Howe expressed the same thought in the lines:

'He hath loosed the fateful lightnings
of his terrible swift sword,
His truth is marching on.'

"It was this law of political justice which blazed in the camp fires along the Delaware, and rolled in heroic thunder from the continental drums.

"It was courage. It is righteousness that has made statesmen great, and given them an iron purpose. It made Moses the sublime Puritan leader of the people. It gave Harryden to England and Washington to America. It caused Henry Clay to say 'I would rather be right than be president.' It put a diamond point upon the holy pen of Lincoln. In St. Gauden's Puritan we see this unflinching courage in the broad brow and firm set lips.

"It was heroism. The kiss which held the head of the dying, and lead in the Roman arena, that enters jails and hospitals, and suffers with the suffering, and surrenders itself to the pitiless scourge of famine or war. It nerved the arm of Grace Darling as she ploughed a pathway through the surf and gave inspiration to every heroic deed the world has ever known.

"It was freedom. No man is entirely free until he ceases to care what will happen in this world or in the next, as long as he does right. The righteous man is alone free.

"It was character. Religion is measured by character. A man has as much religion as character. If he is six feet in character, he measures that in religion. The one is always to be tested by the other. A prayer may be a blessing. Religion is an emotion, righteousness a springing up in the rich soil of the soul, but character is ripe fruit without a worm in it.

"Whatever may be given as the definition of religion it is forever true that religion and righteousness are one. Religion is an emotion, righteousness a reality. Religion creates righteousness, and both center in God. Neither springs from the clod. Both came from God. They are God.

"Edward Burke says 'Religion is the foundation of society,' and Benjamin Kidd calls the religion the chief factor of the world's progress. The God of religion is the God of righteousness.

"Religion creates righteousness by its outlook. As men go up on Mt. Hamilton at night and look through the Lick telescope at other worlds, so does the soul come to religion to see other worlds, to hear some footfall of angel feet, to gaze into the ineffable glory on the other side of the grave. The vast vision of religion is a motive to live a righteous life.

"The literature of religion is the Bibble. The Bible did not make religion. Religion made the Bible. It was the divine artist which placed in its gallery of immortals the matchless models of righteousness. The Bible invites a desire to be righteous. If your Bible. The Bible did not make religsomething wrong. If you do not feel a deep desire to be a better man after reading your Bible, you are radically wrong. The gospel is the power of God unto salvation.

"By incarnation of Jesus Christ, He gathered this righteousness in His own bosom, and came down to flash it upon the world to teach men the character of God to fulfill this righteousness, and to demonstrate its power. The Psalmist saw it in the uplifted hand, but we believed it manifested in the person of Christ. He reveals it to the world and the world in accepting Him realizes this righteousness.

EVANGELIST VARLEY.

The English Revivalist on the Effect of Sin.

There was a large audience in the First Baptist church last night to listen to the Rev. Henry Varley, the English revivalist, who made so many friends here several months ago. He spoke from the text, "But God forbid that should glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom the world was crucified unto me and I unto the world."

The words of the text, he claimed, are addressed to the church of God. "As some of you are aware," he said, "there is being held in England a general election for the purpose of government. Such an election is going on here now for the government in the time to come. It is the Lord's dispensation. When the choice is complete then the fullness of time, which has been delineated, will be consummated. I hope that many of my hearers have been chosen. God has chosen and patterned His children after His Son, Jesus Christ; they are all to be represented in the government beyond and are all described as the heirs of God."

Speaking about the prevalence and enormity of sin, he said, "Sensuality is reigning rampant everywhere in San Francisco. If any man here loves the sin-feted world, so well, the lust of flesh, the lust of the eye and the pride of life; if you sanction these things the love of the Father is not in you. I will tell you the true meaning of the word 'cross.' It is not the jet black ornament that ladies wear or the transverse wooden piece upon your pulpits. It does not mean the afflictions or trials that some people call crosses. It means nothing but the sacrifice of the Son of God. I do not believe the Holy Spirit ever meant that it should mean anything else.

"Your personality is the worst enemy you have. It is not the wrong that you do, but the wrong that you know is in your nature. This cross alone can save you from yourself and resurrect you. I am glad that I am dead to the world and my past life buried. There are too many unburied Christians in Oakland. You cannot play fast and loose with God."

CHURCH CHAT.

Personals About Pastors and News of the Parishes.

The committee of the First Congregational church to whom has been referred the matter of recommending names from which to select a pastor to succeed Rev. Dr. McLean, is working earnestly on the subject. The names of several clergymen are now under consideration, among them being that of Rev. Wm. Rader, who is now and has been for several years the associate pastor of the church. Mr. Rader is warmly supported by many of the leading members of the society and his friends are working earnestly in his behalf.

Rev. James Small who, for several weeks past, has been filling, in a satisfactory manner, the pulpit of the First Christian church, has gone to Tacoma for the purpose of bringing his wife to this city. He has not as yet accepted the pastorate of the church and will not until after he shall have returned and established his home here. After the congregation had listened to Mr. Small's sermons for several weeks they unanimously extended to him a call to assume the pastorate charge of the church.

Rev. Walter Frear of Oakland lectured at the Sumner school at Cazadero recently on "Missionary Work in Turkey."

The regular weekly meeting of the Institute of Applied Christianity will be held this evening as usual in the lower assembly room of Asbury church, corner Clay and Fifteenth streets. These meetings are always open to the general public and a cordial invitation is extended to all who are interested to attend as frequently as possible. No admission fees. No collections. The topic this evening is "Laws of Social Development." President Rader will give the paper, after the reading of which there will be opportunity for full discussion.

KILLING TWO BIRDS.

The Supervisors Are Doubling Up on Their Work.

COUNTY AFFAIRS TRANSACTED.

Assessment Protests Come Before the Board.

THE PIEDMONT LINE APPEALS.

It Is Claimed That the Figures Are Much too High.

The session of the Supervisors this morning was characterized by the reading of a number of communications and the opening of bids on drugs, stationery and fish for county offices and county institutions.

Applications for relief were disposed of as follows: Mrs. Nettie Scott, 606 East Fifteenth street, 45 years old, native of Mississippi, widow, two children, referred to Supervisor Johnston; Mrs. Mary Hyland, for Mrs. Mary Conbey, corner of Twenty-second and Filbert, 97 years of age, referred to Supervisor Pelouze, from Albert Kayser and Theodore Cler for W. Sauter, aged 70 years, native of Germany, an old soldier, residing at Ninth and Franklin streets, referred to Supervisor Church.

Applications for liquor licenses were filed as follows: David Hagerty, San Leandro road and Fruit Vale avenue; Leon Faure, northeast corner of Hopkins street and Fruitvale avenue. These were referred to the Judiciary Committee.

A requisition was read from Janitor Lynch asking that the carpets of the Hall of Records be taken up and cleaned and that the chimneys be swept. He claimed that they had not been cleaned for five years. The matter was referred to the Building Committee.

A communication was received from Hugh Dimond and several others asking for the opening of a county road from Thirteenth avenue through the Moss Ranch, near Joaquin Miller's property and through Springer and Simpson's property to the county road.

Rev. J. B. McNally said that Mr. Springer had granted right of way for the proposed road nine or ten years ago, but that that formed only a part of the road desired. He did not think there would be any obstacle in the way of the opening of the proposed road, because he thought that property owners are in favor of the proposed improvement. On motion of Supervisor Church the communication was referred to the County Surveyor.

County Surveyor Nusbaumer reported that the fall in the line at Sunol for the purpose of filling watering tanks is 30 feet and the distance covered 2,000 feet. The pipe considered thus far for this purpose only is two inches in diameter, which will discharge only 20 gallons of water a minute, and, as a consequence, it would require 30 minutes to fill one tank. Supervisor Johnston suggested that the pipe to be used ought to be three inches in diameter. The communication was filed.

A BAD ROAD.

J. W. Unfug, of Brooklyn Township, sent in a communication speaking about the bad condition of the road from Grass Valley to San Leandro, claiming that it could not be used for the shipping of the farmers' crop. He requested the Board to take action and open the road suggested last winter, extending through Redwood Canyon to San Leandro, claiming that it would afford the relief desired. The communication was filed.

Jos. F. Cardozo complained through a communication of a defective bridge at Sunol, on which his horse had become frightened while crossing, throwing Cardozo, his wife and wagon into the creek, injuring himself and wife and smashing the vehicle, involving an outlay of $42 for doctor's fees and wagon repairs. He thought the bill should be paid by the county. The communication was filed.

A resolution was introduced paying Echoes Publishing Company, in accordance with official rates, 75 cents per square for the first insertion and 50 cents per square for the second and subsequent insertions for advertising "notice to taxpayers" and "poll tax notice" ordered by the County Assessor from March 16th, 1895, to June 29th, 1895, on the ground that the work had been ordered by the Assessor before the same work had been ordered by the Board of Supervisors at a cost not to exceed $15 for each paper publishing the same.

The clerk indorsed the resolution as "filed." The Supervisors say they will not pay the bill, because it amounts to $60, which is $45 more than the amount allowed to other papers for the same work.

E. E. Potter, of the Sunol Land & Improvement Company sent in a complaint to the effect that the Southern Pacific Railroad Company has fenced off lots in proximity to the property of that company, which has been open for the past twenty years, and the closing of which impedes passage to the company's lands. He requested that the lots in question be opened. The request was referred to the District Attorney.

A requisition from the County Assessor for blanks was referred to the Building Committee.

Supervisor Bailey was authorized to build two cisterns and dig wells in Centerville for road sprinkling at a cost not to exceed $350.

Saloon licenses were granted as follows: H. A. Thomford, Castro Valley; Geo. C. Fisher, Niles.

W. Brophy, Justice of the Peace of Murray township, reported that his fees from January to June amounted to $175.25. Filed.

AFTER CONTRACTS.

Bids for the county supplies were opened as follows:

Drugs—P. H. & E. C. Reilly, $1,149.-77½; I. Tobriner, $1,381.99; Osgood Brothers, $1,096.83.

Stationery—I. Tobriner, $1,814.61; G. B. Daniels & Co., $1,707.93; E. P. Taylor, $1,533.99.

Fish—Camilloni & Lagoria, $2,207.60; James Lamb, $2,207.75; Combs & Fisher, $1,621.20.

There is a great reduction in these bids over those rejected by the Supervisors two weeks ago.

Tobriner enclosed the check for drugs in the bid for stationery, and vice versa, but as he is not the lowest bidder in either case the mistake will not affect the bid, unless other irregularities should be discovered in the lower bids.

The bids were referred to the county expert, the clerk and the committee of the whole.

AS EQUALIZERS.

The Board Continues the Work of Considering the Protests.

The County Board of Equalizers met this afternoon and a voluminous application for reduction of the assessment on the property of the Piedmont Cable Railway Company was read. It was signed by Chas. R. Bishop and set forth that the valuation of the property of the company at the time the assessment was made was only $82,600. The assessment made by Mr. Dalton amounts to $272,650.

The applications set forth each of the lines owned and operated by the company, more recently known as the Piedmont & Mt. View Railroad Company, all the real estate and improvements thereon in the possession of the concern. The showing was as follows:

The electric line commencing at First and Washington streets, running on Washington to Fourteenth, thence to Peralta, thence to Sixteenth, and thence to the Southern Pacific railroad depot, double tracks, poles and wires, alleged real value $8,000, franchise $1,000, total $9,000; assessed $20,950, franchise $10,000, total $30,950.

Horse line on Peralta street, Central avenue, Wood, Goss and Pine streets, 50-100 of a mile, real value, $175, franchise $50, total $225; assessed $750, franchise $500, total $1,250.

Horse line from Fourteenth street on Market to First street, 75-100 of a mile, real value, $250, franchise $50, total $300; assessed $1,125, franchise $500; total $1,625.

Horse line from Market and Fourteenth on Market to Twenty-fourth, to Adeline, 89-100 of a mile, real value $300, franchise $50, total $350; assessed $1,200, franchise $500, total $1,700.

Horse line on Adeline from Seventh to Thirty-second, Hollis, to city limits, 1 82-100 miles, real value $700, franchise $50, total $750; assessed $2,750, franchise $500, total $3,250.

Horse railroad Central avenue, Peralta, Eighth and Wood streets, real value, $75, franchise $50, total $125; assessed $375, franchise $250, total $625.

Cable line, Washington, Fourteenth, Broadway, Elm street to charter line, with wire and poles, double track, 97-100 of a mile, real value $11,000, franchise $500, total $11,500; assessed $30,000, franchise $5,000, total $35,000.

Cable line, Washington, Fourteenth, Clay, Eighth streets, 79-100 of a mile, real value $4,500, franchise $400, total $4,000, assessed $11,450, franchise $5,000, total $16,450.

Cable and electric line, Broadway to Twenty-fourth, to Webster avenue to city limits, double tracks, wires and poles, 73-100 of a mile, real value $3,000, franchise $250, total $3,250; assessed $19,325, franchise $2,500; total $22,425.

Cable road, Elm street, Oakland avenue, Bay street to city limits, 83-100 of a mile, real value $6,000, franchise $250, total $6,250; assessed $22,750, franchise $2,500, total $25,250.

Lots 45 and 46, not assessed to the Piedmont Bath & Power Company, also in Oakland View Homestead and part of lot 36 not assessed to John Allman, excepting therefrom land assessed to the Piedmont Bath & Power Company, real value $2,750. Improvements $5,000, total $7,750; assessed $2,750; improvements $20,000, total $22,750.

Lots in Oakland View Homestead, machinery dynamos, cars, cable, office furniture, real value, $23,435, assessed $13,000.

Lot 1, block 222, real value, $1,500, improvements $500, total $2,000; assessed $1,500, improvements $1,200, total $2,700.

Peralta and Center street lots 16 and 19, block 581, real value $975, improvements $500, total $1,475; assessed $975, improvements $1,500, total $2,475.

Lots 12 to 22, block 581, Peralta and Center street lands, real value $1,-300; assessed $1,000.

Cable line and electric railway, Webster avenue to city limits, to Mt. View cemetery, single line, poles, etc., real value $3,000, franchise $500, total $3,500; assessed $18,250, franchise $5,000, total $23,250.

Cable line from northern boundary of the city, Oakland avenue, Vernal avenue, double track, 1 4-100 miles, real value $2,500; assessed $28,600.

Cable line Vernal and May avenues to Blair Park, gravity loop, 75-100 of a mile, real value $1,000; assessed $2,000, franchise $5,000, total $7,000.

Mr. Bishop then goes on to state that prior to November 1st, 1893, all the property described had been unproductive and had not been earning enough to pay the operating expenses; that up to March 19th, 1895 the receipts had been $25,000 less than the cost of operating the road; that the road had gone into the hands of a receiver; that it had been offered for sale and that the affiant bid $82,000 for it and that it was sold to him at that figure, and that the property had been later turned over, for that amount, to the Piedmont & Mountain View Railroad Company. Since March 19, 1895, the affiant goes on and shows that the road has been unable to pay expenses and that the value of the property at the time of the assessment was only $82,000.

Edson F. Adams, John C. Adams, Julia P. A. Prather, and Edson F. Adams and John C. Adams as executors of the will of Hanna J. Adams, deceased, filed an application, which was also read, asking for a reduction of the assessment on the following property: In plot 21, comprising 152 acres, north of the old charter line of the city, from $456,000 to $272,000.

The same persons ask for a reduction on the assessment on that portion of plot 21, V. and D. Peralta rancho, lying south of the old charter line of Oakland, containing 14 acres, from $42,000 to $28,000.

Hearing was postponed until 10:30 Wednesday and the Piedmon's protest until 10 30 Friday.

B. Catti of 1120 Center street and J. Calon & Co., of 459 Seventh street have filed applications for liquor licenses.

P. C. Anderson accuses Louis P. Froud of Fruitvale of holding a Newfoundling dog belonging to him and today caused a search warrant to issue for its recovery.

Before the Board of Equalization closed its labors Saturday A. M. Salinger asked for a reduction of the assessment on the property bounded by Bellevue tract, Peralta avenue, Fruit Vale, Electric road tract and Fruit Vale avenue with improvements from $5,500 to $5,200. He also asked for a reduction of the assessment on property in Wilcox place and Pacific Homestead with improvements from $2,250 to $1,950. Both applications will be heard Wednesday.

A. B. Holland, in behalf of Mrs. E. B. Hitchcock, asked for a reduction on thirty acres divided into lots, in the McLeod tract, Livermore, from $4,900 to $3,500.

Elizabeth Perigo asked in behalf of Elizabeth Atkinson for a reduction in the assessment of the furniture in a one-story house 626 Eighteenth street, from $200 to $50. The request was granted.

THE "GHOST" CHAINED.

City Wharfinger Rutherford Cannot Get His Salary.

He Files a Request for a Mandate on Auditor Snow.

City Wharfinger C. B. Rutherford brought suit today in the Superior Court to recover three months' salary from the city.

The action is the result of Mayor Davie's order directing the auditor not to draw salary warrants in Rutherford's favor. The mayor claims that Rutherford's appointment is illegal.

Rutherford recites that he was duly appointed a wharfinger by the City Council and that the auditor has refused to draw his warrant for April, May and June. The salary is $100 a month and the old gentleman feels that he should have it.

He has also petitioned for a writ of mandate to issue against the auditor compelling him to show cause why the warrants should not be drawn.

The trouble arose over a contention of the mayor that the control of the city front, and the wharves, etc., is given to the Board of Public Works and not to the council. He therefore contends that the appointment of Rutherford was illegal when made by the council. The board appointed a wharfinger to take charge of Grove street wharf, but City Clerk Tompkins refused to recognize the appointment. No action has been taken thus far in that connection.

THE WHEAT CROP.

The Recent Drouth Has Had a Bad Effect on the Grain.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

CHICAGO, July 15.—A dispatch from St. Paul, Minnesota, says:

Dispatches from Big Stone, Grant, Swift and Harley counties, Minn., and several counties west of these in South Dakota, say that the prospects for wheat are not so good by 33 per cent as ten day ago on account of the drouth. That section mentioned has had no rain for eighteen days.

Correspondents report that the yield will not exceed six bushels in Harley and Swift counties but will be but little better in Big Stone county. It is very dry in Chicago, Pine and Wanoka counties—the Minnesota potato belt—and the yield of potatoes will be very small unless rain comes in the next three days.

Charles A. Pillsbury, the big miller says:

"I thought on July 1st that Minnesota, North and South Dakota, would yield 140,-000,000 bushels of wheat as against about 115,000,000 bushels last year. Now I think the extreme possibility is 125,000,000 bushels, with a strong possibility that we will raise no more than we did a year ago.

BOWERS IN CHICAGO.

His Career Regarded With Much Suspicion by the Citizens.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

CHICAGO, July 15.—Dr. J. Milton Bowers, head of the sensational poisoning case, whose marriage to a fourth wife in Denver has just been made public, in California, is well remembered here by his old Chicago neighbors.

Over twenty years ago Dr. Bowers lived at 813 North Clark street.

One night in October, 1873, the doctor and his family were at a theater when their home on North Clark street burned.

No one was in the house when the fire started and there was always some question about the cause of the blaze.

The spring following after having moved into the house on North Avenue, Mrs. Bowers and her baby died.

The funeral was held and rumors began to float about regarding the cause of the deaths.

The doctor then left the city.

A REVERSE FOR ROBINSON.

The "Stop-Over's" Demurrer Overruled by Judge Sanderson.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 15.—Judge Sanderson in the Superior Court today overruled the demurrer to the complaint of the Southern Pacific Company against "Stop-Over" Robinson and others, who have actions pending against the company for penalty for refusing to accept tickets after a stop-over.

The Southern Pacific had alleged a conspiracy on the part of the defendants to mulct the company and asking that they be compelled to litigate all their suits in one action.

The court will now hear evidence as to the facts and if they are proven as alleged the company's petition will be granted.

RARE RELICS RUINED.

Treasures Destroyed During a Conflagration at Baltimore.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

BALTIMORE, July 15.—A valuable collection of paintings and bronzes belonging to William Humphrey Knowles was destroyed in the burning of his handsome home in the county of Baltimore.

Mr. Knowles says his art treasures were the collections of members of his family for the last 300 years, and includes besides paintings rare tapestries, mosaics and curiosities from all parts of the world. It was impossible for him to place a valuation upon them, but the collection had been roughly estimated to be worth $60,000.

The house was insured, but the art collection was not.

One of the paintings was an original of Alpine scenery representing Lake Geneva with Mount Blanc in the distance painted by the celebrated Italian artist Fascivola. The picture was much admired, and a similar one by the same artist sold recently in New York for $6,000.

There was an ideal wooded scene by the great French master of this class, Gustav Courbet, and there was in the collection a marine scene by the English artist Hardy, and Napoleon at the battle of Austerlitz, by Davids, and original portraits of Mme. Du Bary, and of the celebrated French beauty, Mme. Vernet.

The loss of two vases, presented to Mr. Knowles' grandfather by Napoleon II, is most deeply deplored by him.

He stated that his tapestry and bric-a-brac consisted mostly of work executed by nuns in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries.

The most valuable piece of statuary was a fine copy of "Truth overcoming Error," the original of which is at the Vatican in Rome.

The Endeavor Societies Have Done Splendid Work.

CLOSING OF THE CONVENTION.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

BOSTON, July 15.—Tonight the fourteenth International Convention of the Young People's Society Christian Endeavor one of the most successful meetings in the history of the society, will close.

The services today are to have a deeper religous feeling than any held since the first day of the convention, probably due to the subsiding of the excitement of the opening days and the impressive character of the exercises.

"Consecration," was the principal subject of the day.

The attendance at all the morning meetings was as large as any day last week.

The addresses of President George A. Gates, D.D., of Iowa College, and President Elbert D. Warfield, L.L. D., of Easton, Pa., in the tent of Williston, were the features of the morning.

The former spoke of the "Consecration of Educated Life," and was followed by his great audience with close attention.

President Warfield's address was on the "Attractions of the Ministry to Educated Man."

At the tent of the Endeavor the address of Robert E. Speer of New York, on missionary service proved a great drawing card.

Speer's great work in missionary fields has made him famous among the Christian Endeavorers.

The morning meetings at both tents were conducted under the general title of the "Scholarship of the World for Christ."

At tent of Williston and Mechanics Hall, encouraging reports concerning religious life in colleges were made and in both tents and the hall a roll of honor, upon which were inscribed the names of the union whose members have been able to give liberally to the cause, was simultaneously unrolled.

Rev. W. C. Bitting, D.D., New York, conducted this exercise in Mechanics Hall; Rev. A. C. Peck, Denver, in Williston, and Rev. Ira Landrith of Nashville, in the Endeavor tent.

The presentation of a banner to the local union for the best work promoting in systematic and proportionate giving was made at the Mechanics' building and the tent of Williston.

Rev. J. W. H. Stuckenberg of Cambridge, Mass., delivered in the Mechanics' building an address on "Christian Personality," that deserved special mention, and the same should be said of the addresses by Rev. A. P. Cobb, D.D., of Springfield, Ill., and Rev. William C. Puddlepot, of South Farmingham, Mass.

The praise and song services at the big meetings were as they have been since the opening of the convention, full of snap, energy and earnestness.

The aggregate attendance was about 23,000.

DR. BITTING'S ADDRESS.

Rev. W. C. Bitting of New York spoke as follows:

"Men have been crying 'Hard times.' Here is the financial creed of the Christian Endeavor, which would, we believe, tend to relieve the distress among the breadwinners of this great nation:

"We believe that a Christian's living and giving are joined in holy union which none may divorce; that beneficience is an essential evidence of regeneration; that system is the life of the gift; that consecrated gifts have a spiritual power and value; that the noblest use of wealth is to lay it at the feet of the Master.

"We believe in a gold standard for those who have gold and a silver standard for those who cannot do better and a double standard for all. We believe in a ration of 16 to 1 as the rate of increase of contributing to the church over that of last year."

The speaker then predicted for the future a great increase in the growth of the society, the church and all Christian work, both foreign and domestic. He concluded:

"I see such a wise economy of force and fund that no society is in the way of another; that the present waste of men and means is stopped; that the agencies now rivals will be allies. I see our present insularity changed by great spiritual upheavals and the dividing seas of thought and organization pierced by a thousand isthmuses that join our hitherto isolated activities and the archipelago of denominationalism becoming continental Christianity."

MANY WANT WORK.

Over a Thousand Men Ask to Work on the Street.

Secretary Kaufman of the Board of Public Works has on file in his office the application of over a thousand men who desire to work in the street department. These applications have all been made since the new administration went into power. It is expected that the council will soon order fifty or 100 men to be placed at work on the streets and sewers. Married men will be given the preference in the appointments.

FREE LISTS SUSPENDED.

The Railroad Officials Grapple With the Tramp Evil.

WEST OAKLAND, July 15.—The day when "hobos" and tramps can beat their way out of this city on the overland trains has passed. The large number of men who have been cheating the Southern Pacific Company of late by riding as "blind baggage" tourists has aroused the company to action. Every night about a dozen tramps would board the outgoing overland trains near the freight house, a short distance north of the Sixteenth street depot. It was an easy matter for them to get on the trains as they pass this point at a very low rate of speed. They were seldom detected and they had little trouble going over the road because it is impossible for the trainmen to see anybody between the baggage cars. There are no doors on the baggage cars leading to the platforms and therefore the "hobos" once on have matters all their own way.

The company has now adopted a plan which is putting an end to this practice. A squad of railroad officers is sent out on every train riding between the baggage cars and they remain on board until it starts up at full speed. They then alight and return to the depot and repeat the performance on each succeeding train. By this method it is utterly impossible to beat the company. The officers are in command of Detective Fogarty and are all expert train-jumpers.

The "hobos" also keep Police Officer Keefe busy, for nearly every night he sends a batch of them to the city prison in the patrol wagon for sleeping in box cars. The other night a tramp dropped a lighted cigarette in one of the cars are set fire to some hay which was extinguished by Detective Fogarty before any damage was done. The fellow was sent to jail. A tramp's life nowadays is not a happy one.

THE JACKSON OBSEQUIES.

The funeral of William Jackson, the railroad employe who died Saturday morning, took place from his late residence on Peralta street, at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon. It was largely attended by friends and acquaintances of the deceased and the floral tokens were many. The remains were borne to the hearse by the following pall bearers: G. D. Bishop, S. A. Deckard, E. A. Caunce, J. L. Barnes, A. C. Partello and J. G. Pettit. The deceased was the father of Robert Jackson, the Southern Pacific ticket agent at the Point station. As is customary when a railroad employe dies a large American flag was flying at half mast at the yards today.

ODDS AND ENDS.

A new time schedule will go into effect tomorrow morning. The only change in time of the passenger service will be that the southern overland will arrive at 4:10 in the afternoon instead of 5:10 as at present.

Sarah McKeown, who is being sued by the Hibernia Savings and Loan Society to foreclose a $1,700 mortgage on her home on William street, near Wood, has been served with a summons notifying her of the commencement of the action.

Dr. Huntington is having an addition built to the rear of his pretty home on Adeline street.

A large force of men are at work north of the Sixteenth street depot repairing the lines of the Western Union Telegraph Company.

With the exception of the Los Angeles train, which was an hour and three-quarters late, all trains arrived on time this morning.

Central Lodge, No. 6, A. O. U. W., will hold an important meeting at Kohler hall tonight. New officers will be installed and other business of interest will be transacted.

DRUNK AND DANGEROUS.

An Exciting Time With Samuel Stares on the Estuary.

Samuel Stares, a young man who bedrayed on his countenance the indications of an extended debauch, appeared in the Police court this morning to answer charges of drunk and vulgar language. He wanted an attorney and was given until tomorrow to plead.

Yesterday afternoon Stares, who is employed on a pile diver in the estuary and lives with his wife in the old steamer Contra Costa, asked her for money with which to purchase a drink. He knew she had about $100 and he wanted it. She refused to deliver the cash, so he tied a rope around her neck and threw her into the creek. He dragged her back and forth in the water until nearly drowned, she agreed to give him the money. She was then assisted on board by her brutal husband and told him where the money which he wanted was hidden.

Police Officer Clark meantime had heard of the row and he set off in a skiff for the steamer on which the couple live. As he approached Stare appeared with a club and threatened to break the officer's skull if he came on board. The officer drew his pistol and this had a quieting effect on the drunken man. The officer replaced his pistol in his pocket and was proceeding to climb on deck when Stares pointed a pistol at him and cried "I'll kill you if you come on board!" Nothing daunted the officer, and in another moment was grappling with the man and soon had him disarmed. Mrs. Stares was sent to the Receiving Hospital, while her husband found lodging in the city prison. The wife refuses to file a complaint against her husband for battery.

Stares, whose real name is said to be Kohler, is reported to have a criminal record, having served time in States prison for robbing a man in San Francisco.

TRIED TO STARVE.

Mrs. Eliza Scott Is Committed to an Insane Asylum.

Mrs. Eliza Scott, who tried to starve herself to death at the Lillard House on Tenth street, was committed to an insane asylum this afternoon by Judge Ellsworth. Mrs. Brown, landlady of the house, and Mrs. Helen Kelly, Secretary of the Associated Charities, testified to her strange actions. She has two sons, Charles and Bertie, in Chicago. She also has an uncle, R. H. Wood, all living at 272 South Peoria street, in that city. He will be notified of her condition.

Mrs. Scott came to Oakland last April. She worked for a time at the Pullman house in West Oakland.

THE COOK CONTEST.

Public Administrator Knight is Petitioning for the Property.

The contest over the estate of the late Elizabeth I. Cook was commenced today in Judge Ellsworth's court. Public Administrator Knight, who has letters of administration on the estate, caused a citation to issue against W. G. Tripp, directing the latter to show cause why he should not surrender the property in his hands belonging to the estate.

He testified in part today that he had known Mrs. Cook for nearly thirty years. Shortly before death she had transferred all her property, both real and personal, to him. He had a deed to her house and lot at 680 Tenth street.

Major Fred Whitney appears for Knight and Tripp has Welles Whitmore and Cary Howard as counsel. The contest is in progress this afternoon.

IS NOT DEAD.

A Baseless Rumor Regarding the Warm Springs Affair.

Sheriff White received a report this afternoon that the young man who was the victim of a serious assault by a young married woman at Warm Springs last week, had succumbed to his injuries.

The report was investigated and found to be without foundation. The injured man's surname is Frank. The physician attending him said he would recover.

MISSING LINKS FOUND.

Blood-Stained Clothing Was at the Stillwell Place.

Sensational Evidence Given in the Hearne-DeYoung Suit.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

ST. LOUIS, July 15.—A special to the Post from Hannibal, Mo., says:

The depositions of the Hearne-De Young libel suit, growing out of the murder of Amos J. Stilwell in 1888 were of a very sensational nature today.

Saturday Mrs. R. H. Stilwell testified that Mrs. Stilwell, now Mrs. Dr. J. C. Hearne, changed her gown on the night of the murder before she and her husband arrived on the scene.

This morning her statement was strengthened apparently by the evidence of James A. Abbey, employed in the secret service.

He said: "I was employed to try and find out who committed the murder. I searched the privy vault on the Stillwell premises Monday, January 18th, 1889. I got out a good many things, pieces of sheets and men's drawers. The last thing was a plain cotton night-gown. There was blood on it. Wood, the detective, made me put it back."

The finding of a bloody night-gown in a vault a few feet from where the blood-stained ax was found puts a sensational feature in the case which has never been developed before.

WASHINGTON WIRES.

Political and National News Narrated in Brief.

By Associated Press to The Tribune.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The president has issued a proclamation stating that as Spain extended to American citizens the privileges of copyright as contemplated by our copyright act, Spanish citizens are granted the privileges of the American copyright.

A FAVOR TO RAILROADS.

The Inter-state Commerce Commission today granted an extension of the time within which railroads must equip their cars with secure grab irons and handholds on the ends and sides of cars, from July 1st until December next.

The time for complying with requiring the use of drawbars of standard height on all cars has also been extended until February 15, 1896.

A WELCOME DIVIDEND.

Comptroller of the Treasury Eckels has declared a dividend of 10 per cent in favor of the creditors of the Oregon National Bank, Portland, Oregon.

NO CHANGE YET.

Chief Lawton Is Secure for a Little While, Anyhow.

City Attorney Piersol was asked today if any changes would be likely to take place in the heads of the fire department at the meeting of the Fire and Police Commissioners tomorrow.

"I have not had an opportunity to consult with my associates on the Board," he said, "and until we have a consultation it is not likely that any change will be made."

DR. HOOD'S WIDOW.

The Contest Over the Haywards' Physician's Estate Nearly Ended.

Mrs. Bessie Hood, who claims to be the widow of the late Dr. John Hood of Haywards, was before Judge Ogden this morning with a petition to have the decree of distribution of the dephysician's estate set aside.

She was represented by Attorney W. F. Williams, who claims that his client has a marriage certificate to establish her right to the estate, which was left to A. J. Hassler, a brother of the doctor's second wife.

Dr. Hood married Effie Hassler at Haywards and she died before he did. Max Popper is the executor of Dr. Hood's estate and he secured letters and a decree of distribution. Then the Eastern widow stepped to the front and in behalf of herself and a minor child demanded the estate. The property is valued at several thousand dollars.

Judge Ogden overruled a demurrer of the attorney for the legatee this morning and set the hearing on the petition for next Monday.

TOWN TOPICS.

A regular meeting of the City Board of Education will be held this evening.

John Bacum died at 1421 East Eleventh street yesterday aged 62 years. Death resulted from consumption. He had resided in this city nine years.

While driving to their home, 1315 Alameda avenue, Alameda, Saturday night Mr. and Mrs. M. McMahon were painfully injured by being thrown out of their buggy near the wharfinger's office, on the city wharf, owing to the fact that their horse took fright and started to run away.

Wouldn't Pay Poll Tax.

Poll tax collector John A. Foster asked J. D. Riker, a Washington street expressman, for $3 as poll tax this morning, but Riker refused to pay. Foster then attempted to seize the expressman's horse and a struggle ensued. Foster then swore to a warrant charging Riker with resisting an officer.

Justice Clift tried two unlawful detainer cases today. R. Mulhauft sued J. G. Henninger for the restitution of premises at 1801½ San Pablo avenue and P. Hamal sued E. Lange for premises at 916½ Willow street. Judgment was given for plaintiff in both cases.

A Confidence Operator.

J. W. Harris, ex-watch club sharp, ex-chiropodist, ex-preacher, and late member of the Morosco stock company, San Francisco, who disappeared from the coast about a week ago with about $1,000 belonging to a man named Humphrey in Alameda, has been located in New York city. He has written to a former friend in this city, but maintains a sphinx-like silence regarding Humphrey's money.

The Marital Ceremony.

Justice Clift performed two marriages this morning. He first united Joseph Frittli, aged 51, and Nellie McKenna, aged 21, both of San Francisco, and followed this by making one George D. Daimas, aged 43, and Mrs. M. T. Pearson, aged 36, both of San Francisco.

FROM PAIN TO PEACE.

Mrs. Emma Adelia Fox Passes to Well-Earned Rest.

Her Hand Was Ever Outstretched to Aid Those In Need.

After many months of suffering Mrs. Emma Adelia Fox passed away on Saturday night at her home on Fifteenth and Jefferson streets.

Mrs. Fox was born in the Province of Quebec, Canada, March 8, 1846. She came to California in 1862, and in 1865 was married to John S. Fox in El Dorado county.

Soon after she removed with her husband to Ohio, remaining there until 1871, when she returned to California and settled in Oakland, where she lived to the time of her death. Besides her husband she leaves two children, Aylmer H. Fox, and Mary Fox-Pierson, who came from her home in the East to be with her mother during her last illness.

Mrs. Fox was a most beautiful Christian character. Though many years an earnest member of the First Methodist Episcopal church, her Christian sympathy was bounded by no sect or creed.

Her spare time was almost wholly devoted to charitable services, including the visiting of prisoners and the carrying of cheer and comfort to the needy and distressed wherever they might be found.

Many in Oakland remember her sympathetic smile and kindly greeting, and her reassuring words as she bade them hope for better things in this world and also in the world to come through Him in whose name she came to give "a cup of cold water."

Mrs. Fox lived a life of "Applied Christianity"—a life of sacrifice of self and of present ease and comfort to the happiness of others. In her long and painful illness she never lost her patience or Christian fortitude.

Her death has closed one of those devoted and helpful lives that make the world better and give all a sweet hope and assurance of something above and beyond the present.

The funeral will take place tomorrow at 10 A. M. from the First Methodist Episcopal church, corner Fourteenth and Clay streets.

CUTTING HIS BILLS.

Sheriff White Protests About the Board of Examiners.

The State Board of Examiners and Sheriff White had a tilt last week at Sacramento over some of the items in bills of his deputies for expenses incurred in taking insane patients to the various State asylums. Sheriff White was represented before the Board by his chief deputy, Will White, who explained that he was willing to have any claims rejected that did not appear to be just.

"We are allowed a day's pay for a deputy and their actual expenses in taking a patient to the asylums at Stockton, Napa, Agnews or Ukiah. In the matter of expenses I have simply followed the precedent established by my predecessors, Hale, Hussey and McKillican. I make nothing out of the bills. It is my opinion that there has been no great harm done. A spirit of economy has swept over the administration. I cannot see how the bills are unjust. The deputy who takes a patient to these asylums is allowed a day's pay by the State. He should be allowed the cost of living for that day. I am informed that the deputy is frequently out of pocket when he goes to Ukiah.

"There are many times small expenses which are unavoidable, and it does not seem fair that the officer should be compelled to stand them in order to insure the safety of his charge. So far as this office is concerned, I do not see anything wrong. There is only one way to settle all this and that is to establish a uniform rate. Then there could be no charges that would not meet the approval of the State Board.

POLICE PRATTLE.

A Medley of Cases Disposed of in Judge Wood's Court.

Warren McGovern chewing gum and looking happy appeared before Judge Wood this morning to render an account of himself since the time of his arrest some months ago. He was taken into custody at that time for neglecting to support a minor child, but since then he has contributed to its maintenance and his case was again continued until August 15th.

The charge of blockading the street against Justin Rice and his wife was continued until the 29th. In the meantime a decision is expected from the Superior court on the Salvation Army cases, which will also determine the Police court cases.

R. C. Lyons, who is accused by W. Secor of stealing a derby hat valued at $2, was given until tomorrow to plead.

The old petty larceny case against Frank J. Cruz was continued until tomorrow for sentence. He is in the county jail awaiting trial for forgery.

The notorious Mary Sawyer was in the police court dock this morning. When the court asked her how she desired to plead to a charge of vagrancy, she raised such a disturbance that it became necessary for Officer Phillips to carry her down stairs.

William Gibbs, Jr., who was accused by J. G. Forhner of obtaining by false pretenses a small sum of money, was tried and the case continued a week in order to permit the parties to settle their troubles.

Estates of the Dead.

Margaret Stogwell was appointed to act as administrix of the estate of the late Maria A. Caldwell by Judge Ogden today. Her bond was fixed at $200. J. B. Richardson is attorney for the estate.

Letters of administration on the estate of William J. McCullon, deceased, were granted to John McCullon in the Superior court this morning. Bonds, $500. Gibson & Whitmore are attorneys for the administrator.

An Unheeded Warning.

Ella O'Conner, who resides near Shell Mound park, warned Mary McGuire not to sell the former's son any liquor. Mrs. McGuire did not heed the warning, however, and a row ensued between the two women. Today Mrs. O'Connor pleaded not guilty to the charge of disturbing the peace before Justice Clift.

A Temescal Blaze.

A fire occurred at Fortieth and Telegraph avenue last evening among a lot of hay belonging to Mrs. McCourtney. Twenty-five tons were destroyed and also a hay press, belonging to William Gregory, valued at $350. The Temescal hose company extinguished the blaze.

Small Fires.

The fire department responded to two alarms yesterday. The first was at 2:45 A. M. for a burning stable on Fallon street below Seventh and the other was

BUT LITTLE WARNING.

Death Calls at the Maxwell and Glover Homes.

Death called at two adjoining homes in East Oakland yesterday. One of those who passed away was a young man, the other a venerable pioneer of this State.

Frank C. Maxwell, one of the best known and most popular young men of Oakland, died unexpectedly about 4 P. M. at the family residence, 1268 Fourth avenue. About two weeks ago he recovered from a severe attack of pneumonia, and then underwent a surgical operation for stomach trouble. Blood poisoning followed and death resulted. The deceased was born at Rock Island, Ill., 28 years ago, and has resided for the past eleven years with his relatives in this city. He was unmarried. His father, C. L. Maxwell, is a leading hardware dealer in this city and the deceased was associated with him in the business.

About 10:30 o'clock last evening Jas. F. Glover was sitting listening to his daughter playing at the piano. He had just asked her not to play too loud as it might disturb those in the house of mourning near by, when with scarcely a word of warning he expired. Mr. Glover suffered from a slight stroke of paralysis about three weeks ago. It was then thought that the end was near, but the timely arrival of a physician saved him. He was apparently improving in health when death suddenly came upon him.

Mr. Glover was a pioneer, having come to California in the days of the gold excitement. He came around the horn in a vessel from Scotland and first located in San Francisco. Subsequently he engaged in mining and at one time was wealthy. He was well known and a great favorite with a host of friends and acquaintances. Mr. Glover leaves surviving him a wife, four daughters and two boys.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, 202 East Fifteenth street.

CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY'S LAND DEPARTMENT

ADVANTAGEOUS OFFERS.

Equally Attractive to the Home-seeker, the Cultivator of the Soil, or the Speculator in Land Values.

THE CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY'S LAND DEPARTMENT has in charge and for sale, at reasonable prices and on favorable terms, the lands of the Capay Valley Land Company, the lands and townsites of the Pacific Improvement Company, the lands of the Central Pacific Railroad Company, the lands of the Oregon & California Railroad Company, and the irrigated lands of the Crocker-Huffman Land & Water Company.

THE PACIFIC IMPROVEMENT COMPANY'S PROPERTIES, consisting of town property in 125 townsites, and all classes of fruit, agricultural and grazing land, will be sold on reasonable terms,—long time and low rate of interest.

THE CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY has agricultural, grazing and timber lands, which will be sold for twenty per cent of the purchase price paid in cash, with six per cent interest for five years, payable annually in advance.

THE CAPAY VALLEY LAND COMPANY'S LANDS are located in the rich, fertile valley in the western portion of Yolo County, California. They are splendid fruit lands, in one of the earliest localities of the State, and range in price from $25 an acre upward, and on terms of interest only, for five years; that is to say, for five years the purchaser pays interest only, at the end of which time the purchase price becomes due. The object of these terms is to give the purchaser an opportunity to pay the purchase price out of the proceeds of the land. Cultivation is required of all purchasers.

THE CROCKER-HUFFMAN LAND & WATER COMPANY'S irrigated lands at Merced, in the very heart of the State, under splendid climatic conditions, with the free use of water as an appurtenant to the land, for sale for interest only, for five or seven years, at the choice of the purchaser, eventual settlement on the land and cultivation, dating one year from date of purchase, being made incumbent upon the purchasers.

THE CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY'S LAND DEPARTMENT can supply any seeker of investment, or any home-seeker, with any variety of land desired, at lower prices and on more favorable terms than can be had of any other landed proprietor in California.

The list of land for sale in this Department embraces bodies of from ten to thirty thousand acres, or as small subdivisions as may be desired in the form of five, ten, twenty or forty acre tracts of irrigated land.

SUGAR PINE FORESTED LANDS IN OREGON AND CALIFORNIA, in large or small quantities, will be sold for interest only, for five years, the purchaser agreeing to protect the lands from all depredations. The forested lands of the Central Pacific Railroad Company and the Oregon & California Railroad Company embrace the best and most accessible timber land to be found on the Pacific Coast. They offer special inducements for speculative investment.

COLONY LANDS.

Among the most attractive offerings are the following:

34,000 acres of oak forest, farming and fruit land in the heart of California. Irrigation practicable. Railroad operated to the center of the tract.

11,000 acres of splendid villa property "down by the sea," sloping to the surf of the Pacific Ocean; in part covered with pine forest; in part fine garden and fruit land under irrigation.

12,000 acres of Sacramento Valley plain land, suitable for general farming. All for sale in subdivisions or as a whole.

Fruit Lands! Timber Lands! Farming Lands! Grazing Lands! Townsite Properties!

Real Estate for every known use, on terms attractive to both the speculator and the home-seeker.

CANTY IS FREE AGAIN.

Judge Ogden Permits Him to Go and See His Children.

He Has Been Passing Thirty Days in Prison for Contempt.

W. J. Canty, the West Oakland politician and railroad man, was released from the county jail this morning by Judge Ogden, where he had been spending thirty days for contempt of court in refusing to pay $15 a month toward the support of his three children.

Canty went on the witness stand this morning and made a strong plea. He said he had been persecuted. He was willing to support his children if he could have their custody, he said. He had not been permitted to see them and that was one reason why he had not obeyed the court's order. A second reason was that he had only earned $90 since the order was made last February and $40 of that had gone to pay court expenses in the divorce suit with his wife.

"I have no money nor any property," said Canty in reply to a question of Judge Ogden, "but I can and always have supported my family respectably. Will your honor allow me to see my children?" he pleaded.

Judge Ogden was moved to grant the request and directed the clerk to make the necessary entry. Canty asked for a certified copy of the order. "I might be arrested for distrubing the peace," explained Canty, "if I went there without it."

Canty got his order and left court comparatively happy, for he promised to obey the court and provide for his children, now that he is released from jail.

AROUND THE COURTS.

A Number of Cases Up Before the Superior Judges.

Emma Freeman was arraigned in Judge Ellsworth's court this morning on a charge of petit larceny with numerous prior convictions. She is a notorious shoplifter. Her trial was set for August 8th.

The Holland brothers and Jake Openheimer, charged with robbery, were in Judge Ellsworth's court this morning. The former were arraigned. The cases were continued for a week when they will be set for trial.

George Dority, a young colored man, charged with perjury, was arraigned this morning in Judge Ellsworth's court. His attorney entered a demurrer to the complaint. Argument will be heard next Monday.

EXPENSIVE AMENDMENTS.

The Mayor Speaks of the Effect of the Charter Changes.

"I see that the City Attorney and City Engineer have applied for assistants," remarked Mayor Davie today. "Well, that is only another instance of the effects of the charter amendments. The people were induced to vote for the amendments because they were told that it would be in the line of economy, but now it appears that the salary which the commissioners received under the old system will be paid to their assistants, who will do the work instead of the men selected to do it."

Marston Campbell will probably be selected by City Engineer Wilson as his assistant, while a host of young lawyers are after the position under the city attorney.

Library Catalogue.

The Rudolph indexers are now in use in the free library and are proving a great convenience to patrons. The books, arranged, according to authors, are placed on a roller, which, by turning a crank reveals the entire catalogue. On the receipt of a new book at the library a type-written slip giving its name and the author is placed on the roller. It is proposed to print a catalogue to be on hand at the branch libraries from the catalogue already arranged.

Physicians

prescribe Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil and Hypophosphites because they find their patients can tolerate it for a long time, as it does not upset the stomach nor derange the digestion like the plain oil.

Scott's Emulsion is as much easier to digest than the plain oil as milk is easier to digest than butter. Besides, the fish-fat taste is taken out of the oil, and it is almost palatable. The way sickly children, emaciated, anæmic and consumptive adults, gain flesh on Scott's Emulsion is very remarkable.

MONDAY.....JULY 15, 1895.

It has been in the air for some time that Dr. Gunsaulus, the great pulpit and platform orator of Chicago, would receive a call from the First Congregational church of Oakland. It is now reported that the first steps have been taken looking to that result. Dr. Gunsaulus has charge of a prosperous church in Chicago. There is no Congregational church in that city that is as strong in numbers or influence as the church in Oakland. It is the foremost church of that order on the Pacific coast, and one of the two or three largest in the whole country. It would not be a stepping down, but a step upward to come to this church. There are great opportunities here for a builder. Dr. McLean retires in September to take up work in another important field. He has always been a builder. With Dr. Gunsaulus in his old church it is probable that another strong hand might be felt in the enlargement of the Pacific Theological seminary.

Money and Travel.

Besides the every day travel by rail in this country 10,000 young people recently went to Chattanooga; 15,000 teachers went to Denver, and 50,000 representatives of the Christian Endeavor societies went to Boston. These people made these summers tours partly for pleasure as well as for higher ends. They had the money to spend to the extent of a million or more. It was a good way to spend it. What are called the "hard times" do not seem to make much impression upon travel. The summer tourist seeks the best hotels, and is intent on having a good time as long as the money holds out. He has even been known to borrow it rather than miss his outing.

During the present season all the great passenger steamers from New York to European ports have been crowded, every passage having been engaged weeks ahead. During this present month there was not a berth on any steamer that was disengaged. One or more extra ships were put on in order to take up the overflow. Of course hard times do not greatly affect those who are not obliged to calculate closely the expenses of a European journey. Most of them know little and care less about business depressions. They have the money and they spend for it a good time.

Americans will spend this year in European tours, probably fifty to sixty million dollars. Some of the estimates that have been recently made are much higher. These expenditures, on the surface, do not indicate any financial stringency. If they indicate anything as to money, it is that it is within easy reach of this great multitude who go abroad; and yet a considerable proportion of such tourists have no surplus funds. They go abroad as a means of education. Every dollar has been counted and an estimate has been made as to just how far it will go. A thousand dollars will give them 100 days of touring in Europe including the passage across the ocean. Some will do it for less, while a thousand dollars will be hardly more than pin money for rich young fellows. The volume of tourist travel appears to be about as great now as it was in the most prosperous years.

The Man Who Was Caught Napping.

A question arose in Chicago as to the unit value in the original coinage act of 1792. The question was left to the decision of ex-Governor L. Bradford Prince of New Mexico. He put in evidence two silver dollars, one coined in 1795 and the other in 1802. On the edge of these coins where the milling is now done were the words "One dollar or unit. Hundred cents." Then the ex-governor jumped to the conclusion that this weight never varied from the foundation of the government up to the demonetization in 1873. "When the change in ratio was made in 1834 it was the gold coin that was altered, not the silver dollar."

Now comes the Times-Herald of Chicago and recommends that the umpire should read the coinage act before he goes any deeper into monetary history. "The original silver dollar was the equivalent of the Spanish milled dollar containing 371¼ grains of pure silver, and it was technically called dollar or unit, like the gold dollar or unit, the ratio to gold being 15 to 1. It was necessarily in theory 100 cents. By the coinage law of 1834 the ratio was altered to 16.002 to 1, but although it was the gold dollar weight that was changed then the silver weight was changed in 1837 from 416 grains to 412½ grains. The weight of pure silver remained the same, yet, although the dollars bore the government flat, "100 cents," the government proved unable to make the people of the United States or of any other part of the world accept its dictum. The milling or notching was adopted to lessen the risk of abrasion or shaving by which loss of intrinsic value arose."

A Remarkable School Blank.

The city of Napa, claiming a population of about 7,000, has no high school. The small town of Sonoma, with a population not exceeding 800, supports a high school, and efforts are being made to establish a similar school in St. Helena. Napa is rich and prosperous—a county seat—and quite the largest place in the county. A citizen writes to the Napa Register, pointing out with much force the disadvantages of such an educational blank. The case is put in this light:

We want it because it would induce many families to remain here who have contemplated a removal for its advantages. We want it to bring back those who have already left us to secure those advantage and are spending their money elsewhere. We want it as an inducement to the settlement of eastern people or any in search of homes, who, finding us thus deficient, may locate where they can find these privileges. We want it because it is an absolute and imperative need to promote the welfare of the rising generation. The lack of it makes it probable that many promising children in Napa having emerged from the common school have got all the education they will ever get, a fact that may prove very unfortunate to them and deplorable to the community. So long as Napa is without a high school she is without the completion of a common school system—a fact we do not care to confess to the people outside of the county seat. To the degree that a corporation neglect educational necessities it chokes ambition, encourages poverty, pensions indolence and pays tribute to crime. We act upon the premise that every omission or aim that tends to affect property value is a blow at one's interest that justifies an attitude of resentment and defense. Does not the want of facilities to complete our ordinary educational finish affect property value?

There is not another county seat in the State as large as Napa that has not a high school. In some large counties there are two or three small towns having 1,000 inhabitants which support a school of this class, and have even erected handsome school buildings. The Napa man points out that the absence of such a school in that city has been the removal of several families to places where better school advantages could be enjoyed. What is the matter with the bright and prosperous city of Napa that it does not care enough about the future of the youth of that place to establish a high school?

Street Paving With Wood.

George W. Dell's pamphlet entitled "Street Paving in Sydney," has attracted some attention in this vicinity. The case for wood paving is very well made out for Australia. The method is not new. Some years ago wood paving had a run in San Francisco. It was mostly done under the "Nicholson" patent. It was a very costly failure for several reasons. In the first place, the blocks were laid on wet sand, or on board surface covering the sand. The blocks were of soft wood, mostly fir, although cedar and some hard woods were occasionally used. But the pavement bulged in wet weather; there were deep depressions and decaying wood. A "Nicholson" pavement was a sorry sight. The blocks were not laid upon concrete, and if they had been laid in that way the pavement would have failed from the rapid decay of the wood.

In Sydney these wood blocks are laid on a solid foundation of concrete, at a cost of $3.30 a square yard, or about 37 cents a square foot. The estimated duration is twenty years. The total cost of taking up the blocks, squaring the worn ends, is 57 cents a square yard. These blocks are of several varieties of eucayliptus wood. There is no wood of these varieties grown in California that has such wearing quality. The blue gum, red gum and iron bark—the latter quite the best—decay rapidly. In short, the whole range of eucayliptus trees from which so much has been expected from timber, is worthless for anything but fire wood. The oak of this country is not much better.

As long as the experiment of wood pavements is fresh in the minds of citizens here, they will never resort to that method of paving streets. No doubt the Australian experiment has been satisfactory. There is one kind of eucayliptus tree grown there that is nearly as hard as iron. It weighs nearly as much in the cubic foot as granite. Small quantities have been imported. Some of the Arctic whalers are fitted out with stems, or cut waters, of this wood. In London there are said to be blocks of wood pavement on crowded business streets that have given good satisfaction.

The pavement that gives the greatest promise of permanence here is the asphalt, sometimes called bitumen. But many of these pavements have been a disappointment because they have been constructed of poor material and the work has been poorly done. A great deal of bituminous rock sold in these markets is not fit for paving, unless it is used as a composition. There is no trouble in obtaining a scientific formula for making this composition. A standard of excellence ought to be established and no street contractor under any circumstances permitted to depart from it. If this were done and the material laid on a concrete foundation, there would be little complaint about the wearing qualities of bituminous pavements.

A Political Waterloo.

The rout of the English and Irish Liberals is one of the notable events of the day. There are a number of factions which are designated under the general head of Liberal-Unionists. There was little expectation that this party would have a majority in the next House. There were many strong men who would make up an influential minority. It looks as if nearly every member of Sir William Harcourt went down with a crash.

The Liberal party has been a disappointment in many ways. It was made up of many subdivisions. These seldom worked in harmony. Gladstone, the one great leader, tried for years to secure Home Rule for Ireland. He failed because the Irish members did not stand by him as a unit. When he retired the Liberal party lost its hold on the country. There was a day of settlement. It is not a great calamity that the party has met with a defeat. The Tories, drawing to them a large conservative element, will have their day. Home Rule in Ireland has been delayed for many years by the very men who professed the greatest zeal to bring it about at once. The Liberal party will eventually reorganize and become stronger than ever. A season of adversity is often the very best discipline for a political party.

Fourth of July in Honolulu.

The American element in Hawaii has never failed to celebrate the Fourth of July. This year the celebration was accentuated by some novel features. There was the formal declaration of the Hawaiian republic. Then there was the remarkable address of Joseph Cook, dogmatist, lecturer, heresy hunter and an all-round religious pugilist. Care had been taken in consideration that Minister Willis should preside on the occasion no one should tread on his soft corns. Some things could be said and other things suppressed on account of the delicacy of the situation. In short, it was an occasion for tact and a wise discretion.

Whether Cook was advised that nothing should be said to disturb the harmony of the occasion does not appear in the report. He sailed right in, throwing rocks to the right and left until Minister Willis called him down and admonished him that it was not in order to make a partisan tirade of that kind. The mistake was in asking Cook to make an address on such an occasion.

He is nothing if not vituperative and rasping in expression. Minister Willis was not there to hear an indictment against the administration whose servant he was. But Joseph Cook was there for that very purpose. He was there to say the very things that on such an occasion should have been left unsaid. He succeeded as far as possible in spoiling a national celebration by his irritating words, and in arousing attention to himself as the only object of human interest.

Ordinarily free speech is to be tolerated on such an occasion. But there are always limitations. In this country, if a Fourth of July orator were to launch out on such an occasion in a hot partisan speech where citizens of all shades of political opinion are assembled, he would be promptly called down. There was less occasion for such an assault at Honolulu. It was a time for concord, for the utterance of patriotic sentiments that had no sting in them. Minister Willis for once took the conceit out of Cook, and he went on his way to the steamer limp and moody, while the Hawaiians went right on with their celebration. There may be other rumbles of the Cook thunder in the antipodes.

NOTES AND EXCERPTS.

An unusual number of agents from Western and Southern States are stationed in New York this year for the purpose of inducing immigrants to settle in the States which they represent. Even Wisconsin and California are desirous of attracting newcomers.

The "bicycle face" of anxiety or despair is never seen on the boys who have learned to ride the wheel. Little chaps with smiling faces may be seen riding gracefully and easily without a sign of any disturbance of the spirit. Those who acquire a thorough knowledge of the art of wheeling in their early youth possess a great advantage over the people who take their first lessons in it after the muscles have hardened.

A colonizing scheme which contemplates bringing some 5,000 families, comprising about 30,000 persons, from Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, and other Western States, to settle in Georgia, is said to be near fruition, and it is expected that by next September the backward tide of emgration from the West to the Southwest will be well under way. The land to be settled is in Wilcox and Irwin counties, Ga., and has already been purchased. The colonizing company numbers about 7,000 stockholders, very many of whom will be settlers. The colony is to include artisans and frut growers, as well as farmers, and it is contemplated to at some time to build a town, with schools and factories, if the scheme turns out as well as is anticipated.

Trolley parties have become amazingly popular in Philadelphia, and so great is the demand for cars to accommodate the excursionists that orders have to be booked several days ahead. Six or eight private excursions are run every fine evening from the city to some of the pleasant suburban places reached by the new electric lines that have in the past few months been built like a spider's web over the region round about Philadelphia. The parties are organized by clubs, church and social organizations, or often by a company of mutual friends. Special cars have been fitted up with illuminations in colored electric light, and with conveniences for serving ice cream and cake en route, and usually the parties take a band, or at least a handful of string musicians, along. In size the parties run from one to as much as eight car loads. "Trolliosis" is the name that has been given to the craze.—New York Sun.

A raft containing over seven million feet of lumber, mostly white pine, is on its way down the Mississippi to St. Louis. It is believed to be the biggest raft ever floated down the river. Carried by rail the lumber would make four and a half miles of carloads.

Another egg of the great auk has been sold in London. It was found in Iceland 65 years ago, came into Baron d'Hamonville's collection, and as it is slightly cracked brought $825.

Our habit of reading the Declaration of Independence on the Fourth of July is derived from the old English custom of having the Magna Charta read twice a year in the cathedrals. The bishops not only read it, but excommunicated those who broke it.

The American copy of Poe's "Tamerlane" now sells for $2,500, and it has been bound in a $500 cover. It was recently owned by a firm of publishers who would probably have charged Poe at least $500 for printing it.

Since the earthquakes Florence has turned with renewed devotion to the "tabernacoli" or shrines in the streets, containing figures of the Madonna or some saint. Besides the hanging lamp that burns all night, these are now adorned with candles, wreaths, and flowers.

It took six visits to a presentation of the danse du ventre by Turkish girls at Atlantic City, N. J., to convince the Councilmen of that town that the dance was improper. Several residents of the town protested to the Council that the exhibition was immoral, and the Mayor and Council promptly went in a body to see it for themselves. Half of the city fathers were unable to decide on the first visit, and they went to see it again on four succeeding evenings, and even then one Councilman remained unconvinced, and could not decide that the exhibition should be suppressed until he had seen it yet once more. The show was closed on the eve of the Fourth.

A correspondent of a London daily newspaper writes that the Queen of Madagascar is a handsome woman and unusually so for a Queen. She has a graceful, well-formed head, good features, an attractive figure and an agreeable smile. She received the correspondent in a pink silk dress trimmed with fine white silk lace, and at her throat, holding her lace collar, she wore a valuable diamond cluster brooch. Her carrings were the work of Malagasy goldsmiths.

Captain Henry Bundy, now 67, is one of the most interesting characters on the Great Lakes. He is known as the "sailor evangelist," and for twenty years has been doing missionery work among the large mariners. He distributes tracts, sells Bibles, and, when a family is unable to purchase a Bible he presents it with one.

Miss Remle Londonderry, of Boston, the-round-the-world bicyclist, has declined over 150 offers of marriage. She says she has saved $1,500. It isn't every girl who has wheels who can do that.

But in California he spent his time hunting and fishing, bareheaded and barefooted, and today he is as hale and vigorous a man of 80 as one can encounter anywhere.

The Countess Glennoti, second lady of honor of waiting on the Queen of Italy for some years, worked in Newark, N. J., as a cigarette-maker. She was born in Genoa twerty-two years ago and came to this country with her father, Carmine Glennoti, when she was a little girl. She returned to Italy at the age of 15, where she attracted the fancy of the queen and was made a personal servant. She speedily became a favorite and eventually was made a countess.

The ingredients in a pound of Royal Baking Powder have been determined to cost 50 per cent more than those in a pound of any other brand. This indicates so much greater strength and real value. Yet a pound of Royal Baking Powedr costs the consumer no more than many of the inferior alum-made powders.

HUMOROUS.

"Yes, it's just to awful to think I've got to grow so old that gents won't make room for me in the cars!"—Life.

Citticus—I wonder how it is that so few women stutter when they talk?

Witticus—They haven't time.—Tammany Times.

He (consulting tea cup)—Ah, you are to be married soon.

"Mercy me! To whom?"

"To me; I came today on purpose to tell you."—Life.

"What makes you think he cares for you?"

"Why mamma talked to him for more than hour last night, and he seemed to enjoy it."—Punch

"Great fun in bowling along on a bicycle, isn't there?"

"That is just where you are wrong. Bowling is barred. You have to be plumb sober to manage one of 'em."—Indianapolis Journal.

"But papa," pleaded the passionate maiden, "he is the only man I love."

"That's right," replied the brutal old man; "I'm glad that a daughter of mine does not love more than one man at a time."—Household Words.

Johnnie (surveying his small piece of pie)—I'm blamed glad I'm not twins.

Mamma—Why?

Johnnie—'Cause there's not enough pie even for half a twin.—Lewiston Journal.

A stranger who was walking through Jackson Park the other day and noting the changes that time and the South Park Commissioners are gradually making in the historic locality was observed to stop under one of the trees, glance at the Wooded Island, squint at the statue of the Republic in the distance, and carefully examine the tree itself.

Then he slowly nodded his head several times, emitted a sigh, and softly said to a bystander:

"I shall always look on this spot where I am standing now as the dearest spot on earth."

"It was here, perhaps," ventured the other, "that you met the young lady to whom you were afterward—er—"

"It was here," said the stranger dreamily, "that I paid $4.50 for a bowl of cold of baker's bread and four swallows of coffee."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Mrs. Newed—How are the biscuits, George?

Newed—A trifle heavy, dearest.

Mrs. N.—And the soup?

N.—Too much seasoning in it.

Mrs. N.—And the duck?

N.—Done a little too much.

Mrs. N.—I'm sorry dear, that your dinner does not suit you. Your mother prepared it.

GRAFTED A SHEEP'S BONE.

Remarkable Surgical Operation Performed in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., July 4.—One of the most extraordinary bone-grafting operations ever recorded was performed at the Hahnemann Hospital in this city yesterday, surgeons substituting a portion of a sheep's leg for a diseased bone in the leg of 15-year-old Boyd Folwell. The physicians say today that their patient is doing well, although it is too early to determine whether the operation will prove a success.

Some time ago young Folwell received an injury which resulted in necrosis or rotting of the right shin bone. A few days ago it was decided that amputation of the limb would be necessary to save the boy's life. But at the last moment Dr. Viescher, one of the staff surgeons, decided that bone-grafting might save the limb. Accordingly a sheep was procured. The boy was placed under the influence of ether, and the part of the bone of the right leg, for several inches above the ankle joint, was carefully cut away. The sheep in the meantime had been chloroformed and the surgeons cut away a portion of its foreleg to the exact measurement of the place which it was to take. As soon as the bone was taken from the sheep it was fitted in the gap, and the joints of the boy's bone were covered with exudations from the sheep's bone in order to afford the proper nourishment.

The operation was carried on under the strictest antiseptic treatment, and as soon as the sheep had served its purpose its throat was cut. If the operation comes up to the expectations of the surgeons, Folwell will walk and run as well as he ever did.

Cycling French Girls.

Now that cycling is so much the fashion with young girls and pretty women it is revolutionizing dress and much else besides. French doctors prescribe it as a means for keeping the balance true between the nerves and the muscles. The one thing studied now in ordering a cycling costume for a young girl is convenience. If that is secured, sightliness will follow. All the great universal provider shops have now cycle tailors. What a long time ago it seems since the Prince Imperial used to be called "Le Jeune Velocipede," and along with King Alphonso rattled round the private gardens of the Tuileries on a tall bicycle, innocent of India rubber tires. Some of the greatest industries of Paris are now connected with cycling. The cycle tax is becoming a great resource of the Exchequer. Sleepy Hollows in the country are coming again to life and prosperity through the cycle. Their inns are crowded whenever the weather is favorable. As France has such good roads and fairly equable climate, it would fast become the cycling ground of Europe if the Government gave cyclists, with their steel horses, the freedom of the custom houses.—Special Dispatch to Globe Democrat.

IN COMPETENT HANDS.

Conners Takes the Examiner, Sheridan the Chronicle, Booth the Call.

A revolution took place today in the Oakland bureaus of the San Francisco morning newspapers, the correspondence in every instance passing into new hands.

The Examiner will in future be represented here by John F. Conners, formerly of the Chronicle and Tribune. Mr. Conners is one of the most popular and wide-awake newspaper men in this part of the country. During his seven years' connection with the Tribune he scored a long list of the much-envied "scoops," and has always ranked as one of the most valuable newsgatherers that Alameda county has ever turned out. "Jack," as his friends know him, is as popular as he is clever, and there are few young men in this community who have a larger circle of staunch friends. He is an ardent Democrat, and his loyalty has never been questioned in any path in which he has walked. All are glad to see his steady advancement in his chosen profession, and he takes up his new duties today with the best wishes of every one who knows him.

The Chronicle correspondence falls to the lot of Ed Sheridan, late of the Times. Mr. Shendan comes of a family that has turned out three good newspaper men, for one of his brothers, Sol N. Sheridan, is assistant telegraph editor of the Examiner, and another, Frank Sheirdan represents the Bulletin here. The Chronicle has secured a first-class man in Ed Sheridan, for he is faithful, never "falls down," and has a wide circle of friends in this section.

The Call correspondence has been entrusted to Stuart Booth, recently of the Examiner, before which he was city editor of the Oakland Times. Mr. Booth is thoroughly competent in every way to fulfill the duties to which he has been assigned. His extensive acquaintance in Oakland and the ability which he has displayed so signally during his connection with the local press bespeak his success.

"A TOUCH OF NATURE."

"The Old Homestead" Will Be Presented Here Tonight.

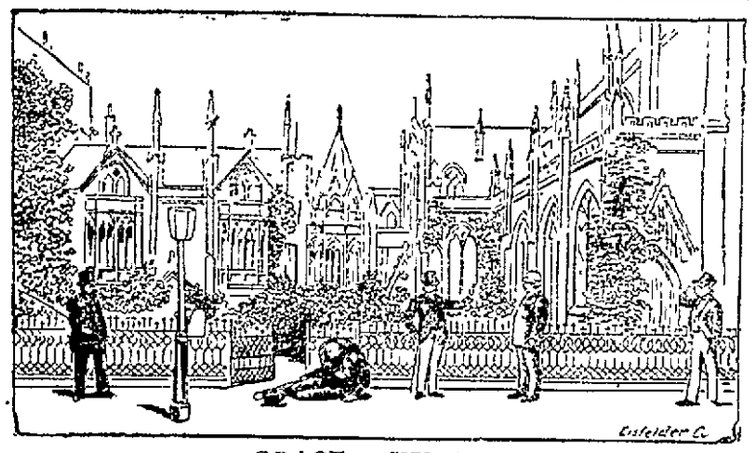

It Is a Charming Study of Life on an Old-Time Farm.

"The Old Homestead." Denman Thompson's beautiful play, will entertain the patrons of the Macdonough tonight. The engagement is for four nights and an extra matinee.

"The Old Homestead," the best of rural dramas, and without doubt the best beloved by theater goers throughout this broad land, comes for a limited engagement only. No play of New England life has yet managed to capture the hearts of city and country folks alike so effectually. Perhaps it is in the name, so remindful of some spot dear to everyone, picturing a loveable old couple surrounded by happy young faces and warm-hearted, snowy-haired friends, with whom they have toiled through life and hope to spend their last days.

All have seen human griefs and gladness, and it is "The Old Homestead" pictures that bring up other pictures made by holy association, and to laugh at the first is an excuse to mourn or rejoice with the second. The story of "The Old Homestead" is a delightful picture of rural simplicity, and the characters are lined with the striking acuteness of a silhouette. The presentation this week will have entirely new scenery and appointments and realistic effects. The double male quartette and church choir will be composed of the best of talents, and many of the new musical numbers are new.

The entire company are all people with whom the public are familiar, and some of the names will be remembered at former engagements. The musical portion of the programme is stronger than any that has ever supported the play. Dick Jose, accompanied by "The Old Homestead" famous double male quartette, will render "Just Fifty Years Ago" and "Day After Day." The full musical strength of the company, 20 voices, will sing the beautiful Palms choral service in the Grace church scene.

The company bring with them an entirely new equipment of scenery and appointments, prepared for the present season. A different view of the old farm yard is shown in the first act. The view of Grace church, New York city, will be the most realistic of any that has yet been presented. The latest developments are given in stage illumination, and the most realistic summer storm ever given on any stage, full of thunder, lightning and rain shower that is seen as well as heard will be introduced in the farm yard scene. A matinee will be given on Wednesday.

THE ALCAZAR.

There will be sufficient laughter at the Alcazar theater this week to satisfy the most exacting. This evening the popular comedian, Thos. C. Leary, who has been identified with the Tivoli for some time past, and Jas F. Post, of "U and I" fame, will open in the screaming comedy, "Mulcahy's Visit," a satire on domestic Celtic life Messrs. Leary and Post are both great favorites, and being of distinctly opposite styles, they should prove highly entertaining. The piece is exceedingly funny, both in dialogue and situation and is pleasantly sprinkled with singing and dancing.

The public are continually in search of laughter and mirth, and "Mulcahy's Visit" will satisfy their wants perfectly.

Manager W. R. Dailey is to be tendered a rousing testimonial benefit by his friends at the Alcazar theater on Tuesday evening, July 23rd, when a lengthy programme will be rendered by volunteers.

CUT DOWN HIS BILL.

Dr. W. F. McNutt's Claim Against the Steele Estate Reduced.

Dr. W. F. McNutt of San Francisco had a claim for $1000 against the estate of the late E. L. G. Steele for an operation performed upon the deceased capitalist some time prior to his death. The claim was presented to the widow who is the executrix of the estate and she chopped $200 off and allowed a bill for $800. This morning Judge Ogden approved the allowance. The operation was that of trephining the skull.

A STORM WATER SEWER.

One Is to Be Constructed on the Northern Outskirts.

City Engineer Wilson is preparing an ordinance to submit to the council this evening appropriating money to construct a storm water sewer along Thirty-fourth and B streets from Telegraph avenue to the bay. The cost of this work will be about $40,000 and is a much needed improvement in that section of the city, which is overflowed to some extent annually during the heavy rainfalls.

BONDS COMING DUE.

A Special Election to Be Called to Refund the Indebtedness.

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held this evening. Among the matters that will come up for a first reading is an ordinance calling a special election and submitting to the qualified electors of this city the question of refunding the bonded indebtedness of 1882, issuing bonds for the same and providing for their payment. The sum of $140,000 in bonds falls due on October 1st.

The Week's Failures.

The Bradstreet Mercantile Agency reports fourteen failures in the Pacific coast states and territories for the week ending Saturday as compared with seventeen for the previous week and twelve for the corresponding week of 1894. The failures for the past week are divided among the trade as follows: Two saloon, 1 foundry, 1 clothing, 1 hardware, 1 feed mill, 1 stationary, 1 harness, 1 confectionary, 1 varieties, 1 livery, 1 grocer, 1 dry goods and 1 produce.

HE LEFT NO WILL.

The Public Administrator Acts Regarding Whiting's Property.

It Is Shown That the Unfortunate Professor Died Intestate.

Public Administrator Knight is making an investigation of the affairs of the late Professor Harold Whiting of Berkeley who, with his entire family, perished in the Colima wreck.

Knight has been informed that Professor Whiting left no will. In that event, Knight will apply for letters of administration upon the estate. It is understood that Professor Whiting left some property in this county. He had no relatives here, but there are brothers of the ill-fated collegian in Massachusetts.

A very pretty romance was woven around the loss of the family. When the news first reached here it was said that Professor Whiting had a forewarning of the impending disaster and had mailed a will disposing of his property, to legal representatives in the East. Subsequently inquiry was made by friends in Berkeley and San Francisco and it was ascertained that the Eastern lawyers had no knowledge of the existence of any will. It has been pretty well determined that Professor Whiting left no will and for that reason the public administrator will shortly make an application for letters of administration on the estate. The more recent developments in the case are what has decided Knight to proceed as outlined.

A CENTRAL CYCLERY.

B. C. Lund Is an Expert at the Wheel Business.

Everybody remembers the doleful "Song of the Shirt," and how it was succeeded by the merry carol of the sewing machine. In the same way, the whirr of the flying bicycle has caused to be forgotten the clack and rattle of the "one-horse shay," and put a quietus upon the man who was forever telling how tired he was, and, the other man who had walked fifty miles, more or less without stopping, and was "ready to drop" from exhaustion.

B. C. Lund of this city has done, through his magnificent Central Cyclery, Central Bank building, Fourteenth street, opposite the Macdonough theater entrance, more than any other man in the business to bring about this change. He has sold hundreds of bicycles of the Cleveland, Ben Hur and Tribune pattern at the lowest rates. He is ready to sell anything and do any kind of work required on the bicycle.

WOMAN'S CROWNING GLORY

How the Hair Can Be Kept Beautiful and Strong.

Preparations by Which the Color Can Be Easily Changed.

The value of a beautiful head of hair is prehistoric. Nations have differed in their standards of the beauty of every feature of the face, but they have agreed always, apparently, as St. Paul says: "If a woman have long hair it is a glory to her." The Biblical praise of the hair of Absolom, the son of David, makes it appear to have been considered equally beautiful when unusually long and luxurious in either sex.

Baldness, unless the hair roots are absolutely dead, can be cured and a new growth of hair will usually repay the time and patience required in producing it. The hair roots are like those of a tree, capable of coaxing back to life and strength so long as there is anything to work upon. Of course, once really dead, it is useless. When the hair falls out after a long illness, or from grief, care, anxiety, or from too profound study, the best course is the heroic—cut it off and cast it away from you, literally. Then, advises the New York World, wash the head with warm water and soap every other day, rinsing and drying thoroughly and applying twice each day the following hair tonic:

A TONIC FOR THE HAIR.

Glycerine, one ounce; eau de cologne, (strongest) one-quarter pint; liquor of ammonia (880-882), one fluid dram; oil of origanum, oil of rosemary, of each, one-half fluid dram; tincture of cantharides, one fluid ounce. Briskly agitate them together for eight or ten minutes, then add of camphor julep (strongest) one-half pint.

Electricity properly applied will often do wonders toward restoring vitality to the hair. In the case of a young girl who had lost her hair in spots after an attack of typhoid fever, a hair specialist advised cropping and electricity applied through a good sized sponge, three times a week, in conjunction with the above wash. The treatment resulted within three months in a beautiful head of new hair. The hair should be kept short at least a year under the above or similar circumstances.

Properly speaking, one should not grow grey until long after middle age. In this county, however, it is almost the exceptional man or woman who passes the thirty-fifth year without the discovery of a silvery hair or two among the brown or gold. The gray hairs generally appear first about the temples; indeed, the word temple is derived from the Latin word temps, because it is there time first stamps it ravages.

WHEN PREMATURELY GRAY.

Gray hair at this age certainly seems premature. While its progress may be arrested, nothing has ever been invented which will restore the hair already silvered.

Gray hair can only be changed in color by a dye or stain. Some of these dyes are effective and many are relatively harmless. They should be sold as stains or dyes, not as restoratives, regenerators, etc. In general, however, the use of dyes should not be recommended. But as there is an honest difference of opinion on the subject, several of the leading formulas are given:

TO CREATE A TITIAN RED.

The vegetable hair dyes are quite inoffensive. Unfortunately, however, they fade very soon, and the color they impart to the hair, is, as the French say, "doubtful;" that is to say, one cannot to a certainty count on the exact shade. The best of all the vegetable hair dyes is henna, which is the preparation used to create the Titian red hair now so much in vogue. Indeed, there is little doubt that Titian's models themselves derived their wonderful red bronze tresses from the henna leaves, which have been used for this purpose for centuries and centuries.

In England a decoction of the henna or alkanna plant may be bought of any chemists, and of some chemists in this country. The henna may be reduced in strength until it produces the shade desired. It will stain the skin and scalp, but such stains are readily removed if washed at once with soap and water without in any way affecting the color the henna has given the hair. In Turkey the henna is rubbed into the hair in the form of a paste. A decoction may be made at home by simply brewing the leaves as one would tea. To produce the various shades of brown, the following is the best stain known. It is the basis of most of the regenerators, restorers, etc.

TO PRODUCE BLACK OR BROWN.

Pyrogallic acid, one-quarter ounce; distilled water, hot, one and one-half ounces; dissolve, and when the solution has cooled gradually add of rectified spirits, one-half fluid ounce. It may be made weaker or stronger if desired.

Years ago a celebrated hair restorative was analyzed in a laboratory in Paris. It was advertised as possessing qualities little short of miraculous. It proved to be a decoction of green walnut shells scented with oil of rosemary. This is really one of the oldest of hair stains and is made as follows:

Make a strong decoction of green walnut shells and water. Add enough alcohol to preserve it, also a few bruised cloves. Let it stand for a week and filter. Lighten the color by adding water. Recollect that the walnut shells will stain the scalp, which must be immediately washed before they become set.

For producing golden hair the safest and best agent is peroxide of hydrogen. To produce any shade of golden hair, pour a little peroxide of hydrogen in a saucer. Apply with a soft tooth brush evenly to the roots only—the hair must be perfectly clean and quite dry.

While it is true that there is no such bondage as the use of any of these hair dyes or stains entails, yet there are women who are determined to have hair of this or that shade. Before applying any of the above cosmetics, the hair should be carefully washed and freed from all oily substances. If it is naturally greasy, throw a small lump of washing soda into the first water and rinse carefully after or use this shampoo:

SHAMPOO LIQUID.

Rum, three quarts; alcohol, one pint; water, one pint; tincture of cantharides, half an ounce; carbonate of ammonia, half an ounce; carbonate of potassium, one ounce. Dissolve the carbonates in the water and add the solution to the other ingredients mixed together, and shake up well.

Never permit a hair dresser to "prepare" hair for a change of color, be it auburn, brown, or any other shade, by first bleaching it. Bleaching means taking all the coloring matter out of it—the vitality of the hair goes with the color, and frequently bleaching will rot the hair and utterly destroy its texture. Of course the new hair that comes after the dyeing process, will have its original color, and its appearance makes another application of the stain necessary. Usually there will be a difference in the shade because the new growth is one color and the other has been artificially changed.

Thus we see the woman with restored locks sometimes looking as though she were trying an entire scale of color on her head. The hair, which has been suddenly turned gray by grief or sickness; sometimes regains its old vitality. There was once a woman of thirty-four, whose hair on one side of her head only turned quite white from anxiety and fear lest she should lose her daughter. The daughter's health being entirely restored, her mother was surprised by the gradual appearance of the old color of the gray hair.

WHEN THE HAIR FALLS OUT.

For falling hair and indeed for baldness any of the preparations made from cosmiline or vaseline may be used successfully. The active principle of cosmoline is coal oil than which, properly used, nothing is better as a hair grower. The following is a good vaseline formula:

Yellow vaseline.....50 grammes
Cocoanut oil.....30 grammes
Gallic acid.....6 grammes
Essence of rosemary.....12 drops

Rub well into the hair every night.

It is a mistaken idea that washing the hair frequently is injurious to it. On the contrary, cleanliness has never been other than healthful. The extreme length of some women's hair makes it a great labor to wash it frequently, and a delicate woman should have assistance in drying it after washing.

Brushing the hair gently and thoroughly is of the greatest importance. Even long hair should be washed at least once a week, and where there is much exposure to dust, or much dandruff, it should be washed every other day. There is no danger of catching cold so long as the hair is properly dried and all draughts during this process are avoided. Wetting the hair with bay rum, cologne water or alcohol, contrary to general belief, increases the tendency to catch cold unless the head be lightly covered to prevent the effects of rapid evaporation.

FOR EXCESSIVE DANDRUFF.

Scurf or dandruff is, unless in a most aggravated form, not a disease—it is the result of neglect, or, in plain English—uncleanliness. Any ordinary case of dandruff may be cured by perfect cleanliness of the scalp. Scurf, or furfura, is a natural and healthy formation, and very frequently it is produced by rapidly growing and very luxuriant hair. You may keep dandruff from accumulating, but you cannot prevent its formation. When the scurf is excessive despite great cleanliness, it denotes an unhealthy condition of the scalp. Try the following in such cases, but always in conjunction with very frequent washings, with plenty of rinsing:

Extract of rosemary.....7 dram
Tincture of cantharides.....1 dram
Solution carbonate potassium..1½ drams
Distilled water .....4 fluid ounces

Apply with small soft sponge daily.

Where there is great physical debility and a general failure of health combined with falling hair or irritation of the scalp a course of tonic medicines taken internally is often very serviceable. In such cases a good tonic for external application to the roots of the hair is:

When the Baby Is Cutting Teeth

How the Satin Bow Cuff Fad Was Made All the Rage.

Leaders of men's fashions in London decided over six months ago that the cuff button, the time-honored ornamental yet useful cuff button, must go. Prince George, of the royal household, came out on Rotten Row one day with the liberal cuffs which he always wears tied together with an inch-wide black satin ribbon made into a bow, and the ends dangling four inches from his wrists in a most ladylike manner. Within 24 hours the Prince's set had discarded the creations of gold, silver and precious stones, with which their cuffs had been held together, and appeared on "The Row" with dangling satin ribbons at their wrists. The departure, was of course promptly adopted by the ultra-fashionable dudes of London Town, then by the would-be fashionables, and in less than six months the ridiculous and effeminate style has become so common as to attract but the most passing attention.

The cuff bows are de rigeur, be it understood, only with correct morning or promenading costume, and in connection with the fancy-colored evening dress coats, with which certain London beaux have, for several years, been endeavoring to supplement the conventional spike-tailed garment of funeral black.

New York's nice young men, the young men who expect to go to England when they die, have been a little slow in adopting this latest freak of fashion, says the World. Three dear creatures who were the glass of fashion appeared on the Fifth avenue promenade last Sunday morning holding their canes behind their backs with both hands, so as to give the pretty satin ribbon the most graceful possible droop. They were not exactly the pioneers of the new style of cuff decoration in this city, however. Vesta Tilley, a famous London concert hall singer, who is depended upon by her audiences over there to be the first to show anything new in men's attire, has been for six weeks exhibiting this invention of Prince George's valet at a Fourteenth street music hall. The ribbons are worn with long frock coat, pearl gray trousers and high silk hat, the correct Roten Row promenade attire for 1895.

The three young men who sauntered up Fifth avenue as far as the Savoy and back as far as the Waldorf were, as a cockney would say, "bloomink well stared at," but what cared they for the sneers and derisive smiles of the majority? Were they not rewarded by the open-eyed wonder and envy of sundry "Gussles," "Freddies" and "Algies," who at once recognized that the style was English?

Next day there was a mad rush upon the fashionable Broadway and Fifth avenue dealers in "gents' furnishings" the new cuff decorations, don't you know. It just so happened that no dealer in the city had imported any of the new cuff bows. Some of them were frank enough to admit that they had never heard of the style. For this they were given a glance of commiseration and scorn and were glad to be partially forgiven when they promised to cable at once for a supply. Being English, all other considerations against this most radical departure in men's drapery will not count and the fad will run its course at Newport and in New York during the summer. It may increase in extravagance. It is a step backwards the flowing lace cuffs worn with men's ceremonial dress for centuries, and displaced by the laundered linen cuff less than one hundred years ago

ONLY THE FASHIONABLE.

A young gentleman at the Waldorf who has just returned from London said that he had noticed that the cuff bows on the promenades were worn only by very fashionable men, and had seen them displayed in the fashionable haberdasher's shops in a variety of styles. The fashionable youth who is dressed like a child by his valet, uses the satin ribbon, cut in proper length. The paterns of cuffs worn are the open varieties designed for link buttons. The ribbons are passed through the buttonholes, and the valets vie with each other in the grace and originality of design that they impart to "Me Lud's" cuff bow.

The English manufacturer, quick to grasp the idea that any fad in fashion indorsed by the golden youth of the metropolis would be in demand, have promptly placed on the market link buttons with a small base, to the face of which are attached a made bow with the pendent ribbon. These naturally preserve their shape, and really make up better, than the hand-tied bow. Should, however, one of the Prince's set be convicted of wearing a pair of the made-up bows the shock to society would be great and the penalty nothing less than ostracism.

There would be a serious side to this fad were there any probability that it had come to stay. It is the most radical and revolutionary departure in fashion of the century. Hats, coats and trousers vary in height, length and width, curl or cut, but still they are hats, coats and trousers. Only a person very fond of statistics of incomprehensible magnitude would undertake to even estimate the millions of dollars invested in sleeve buttons. The jeweler gives to the designing of these buttons his best talents. Men who are opposed to vulgar or ostentatious display will allow themselves an expensive pair of cuff buttons. Young men of wealth pride themselves on the variety and extent of their collection of cuff holders.

WHAT OTHERS THINK.

A Broadway jeweler said "I do not believe that this fad will amount to to anything. It will never become popular in New York. A few score Murray Hill Anglo-maniacs may take it up for a while. They would walk about in their stocking feet if assured that it is English—but I don't believe that the dangling satin ribbons will make any more headway than did the fad among the lady-like young men who gave pink teas wearing bangles on their slender wrists several years ago. There might be some excuse for a style like this on occasions. A quiet show up to good effect during the modest drapery of this kind would stately and ceremonious movements of the cotillon or a minuet. It is not altogether out of taste in connection with a promenading costume, although nine people out of ten would pronounce it effeminate. That objection would however cut no figure with the class of young men who are likely to wear the ribbons. But there is not the remotest probability that the cuff button will ever be supplanted by anything as impracticable as this. The cuff button is as much an article of necessity as the coat or trousers button, and has come to stay. These little departures hurt no established industry; serve the purpose only of creating a new and original demand for something that would remain unsold. The would-be leader of style in his ambition to design something new is a great benefit to the tradesman."

Mr. Berry Wall was asked what he thought of the departure and he briefly replied: "Those dangling ribbons will never become a part of a well-dressed gentleman's dress. The effect is graceful as seen in a photograph, but we object in dressing a man is to preserve the distinctiveness of the masculine garb. The ladies have drawn liberally from the masculine styles, but we have never drawn from them."

PUBLIC NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the State Poll Tax of two dollars for the year 1895, is now due and payable at my office, room 1, Courthouse, or to a Deputy Assessor.

Sec. 3839 of the Political Code reads as follows:

Every male inhabitant of the State over twenty-one and under sixty years of age, except paupers, insane persons and Indians, not taxed, must annually pay a Poll Tax of two dollars, provided the same be paid between the first Monday in March and the first Monday in July, then it shall be three dollars.

Sec. 3346 of the Political Code makes it the duty of the Assessor to "demand Poll Tax of every person liable therefor, and on the neglect or refusal of such persons to pay, he must collect by seizure and sale of any personal property owned by such person."

Under sections 429 and 435 every person who refuses to give his own name or the name of any person in his employ, or who in any manner obstructs the Assessor or any of his deputies in the collection of the State Poll Tax, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and liable to a fine of $500 or imprisonment in the County Jail, or both such fine and imprisonment.

Only those persons under twenty-one or over sixty years are exempt. Poll Tax must be paid on demand.

HENRY P. DALTON,
Assessor of Alameda County.

OFFICE OF THE
Assessor of Alameda County.

NOTICE TO TAX PAYERS.

OAKLAND, March 4, 1895.

ALL PERSONS, FIRMS, COMPANIES, corporations and associations are required to deliver at the Assessor's office at the Court house, City of Oakland, County of Alameda, immediately, a statement under oath of all the property, both real and personal, owned or claimed by him, her or them, or in their possession or held in trust for others at 12 o'clock meridian on the FIRST MONDAY OF MARCH, 1895, in accordance with the New Constitution.

Refusal or neglect to make a sworn statement of all the property owned or held in trust will subject the person so refusing or neglecting to make such sworn statements to the full penalty of the law—one hundred dollars fine and guilty of misdemeanor.

All persons owning real estate that has heretofore been assessed in the wrong name on the Real Estate Assessment Book, or who have purchased real estate within the last year, are requested to appear, with their deeds, at the Assessor's office and have the proper changes made for the year 1895. Immediate attention is necessary, as work on the book has already been commenced.

Proper blanks may be obtained at the Assessor's office.

HENRY P. DALTON,

PROPOSALS FOR SUPPLIES.

—FOR THE—

REQUIRED BY THE VARIOUS DEPARTMENTS OF THE COUNTY GOVERNMENT.

SEALED PROPOSALS WILL BE RECeived by the Board of Supervisors of Alameda county at the board rooms in the annex to the Hall of Records in the city of Oakland, County of Alameda, State of California, until 12 o'clock M., on Monday, July 15, 1895, (at which time and place they will be opened in the presence of the bidders) for furnishing and delivering at such times and in such places and in such quantities as may be required, supplies for the Alameda County Infirmary, the various departments of the County Government, Hall of Records, at the County Jail and Receiving Hospital of the County of Alameda, consisting of fish, drugs and medicines, stationery, etc., and other staple supplies, from date of contract to June 30th, 1896, inclusive, as per specifications and provisions of schedules to be furnished by the Clerk of this Board, adopted by this Board this day, and according to the conditions and requirements of such schedules contained. The County of Alameda, through the Board of Supervisors, reserves the right to use in the several departments of the County Government greater or less quantities than enumerated in the proposals and schedules should the public interests so require, and to accept the lowest bid on each article of each class.

The Board of Supervisors also in considering said bids reserves the right to accept or reject all or any of them or accept a part of any bid or proposal presented. Samples of all staple articles are to be presented for examination by the Board of Supervisors at the board room, the same to be properly marked with name of bidder and schedule number.

All supplies and materials furnished to be subject to the approval of the department ordering the same and to the satisfaction of the Board of Supervisors of Alameda county. No bid will be considered unless made upon said schedules nor unless accompanied by certified check payable to the order of Frank C. Jordan, clerk of the Board of Supervisors, certified to by some responsible bank for an amount which shall not be less than 10 per cent of the aggregate amount of the proposal or proposals which accompanies. Said check to be forfeited to the County of Alameda, as agreed and liquidated damages, should the party or parties to whom the contract shall be awarded fail to enter into the contract within ten (10) days after the award, or fail to give a bond required by the Board for the faithful performance of the contract. Payment for all supplies will be made in the manner prescribed by the Legislature of the State of California. All bids must be inclosed in sealed envelopes, addressed to the Board of Supervisors of Alameda County, and be indorsed on the envelopes furnished by the Clerk, "Proposals for furnishing supplies for the County of Alameda required by the various departments of the County Government," giving the general name and number as on the schedules or as otherwise provided in schedules.

Dated, July 1, 1895.

Chairman Board of Supervisors Alameda County, California.
(Seal) Frank C. Jordan, Clerk.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Alameda, State of California.

In the matter of the estate of Hannah Simmons, sometimes called Hannah B. Simmons, deceased.

Notice of time set for proving will, etc.

Notice is hereby given, that a petition for the probate of the will of Hannah Simmons, sometimes called Hannah B. Simmons, deceased, and for the issuance to James Edwin Simmons of letters testamentary thereon has been filed in this court, and that Monday, the 29th day of July, A. D., 1895, at 10 o'clock A. M. of said day, at the courtroom of Department No. 1, of said court, at the Court House in the City of Oakland, in the County of Alameda, has been set for the hearing of said petition, when and where any person interested may appear and contest the same.

Dated, July 11, 1895.

FRANK C. JORDAN, Clerk.
By F. D. ADAMS, Deputy Clerk.

A WASTE OF WATER.

What Science Says About the Legend of the Deluge.

WAS THE SUPPLY SUFFICIENT?

Noah's Ark as Compared to the Dimensions of a Warship.

How the Story Harmonizes With the Teachings of Religion.

The Church of the Advent in East Oakland is attracting much attention nowadays owing to the religio-scientific discourses of the Rev. V. Marshall Law. The doctor is a man of much research and has undertaken the great task of bridging the gulf which has heretofore separated science from religion. His logic is good and his arguments clear, and the abstruse problem of making the discoveries of science harmonize with the teachings of the bible becomes almost an easy task in his hands. He has already taken his congregation through the stages of the creation of the world and the origin of man, and yesterday he undertook to explain the deluge. This is how he did it:

The story of the deluge which is found in Genesis is that of the drowning of the earth in a great flood of waters is a visitation upon a wicked and degenerate people. The subject happily cannot be a dry one, and we shall expect to find it juicy as well as wet before we reach the ascription.

The story runs that men grew so desperately wicked that it repented God that He had created them, and that He, in consequence, decided to drown him out of the world, so that Noah and his family, the only righteous ones remaining, might have an opportunity to recover the fallen fortunes of the race by giving it another start de novo. So the dimensions of a great ship were given to Noah by the Lord, and Noah at once began to prepare for the flood amid the jeers of the wicked about him. The ship he was commanded to build, in the light of the evidence of the most accomplished modern shipwrights, was a most seaworthy craft of about 42,413 tons burthen. The ordinary man-of-war is only about 2,500 to 3,000 tons burthen, so we see that Noah's ark was something like fourteen to nineteen times the size of the average man-of-war. Upon most careful computation, several eminent authorities have shown that this vessel was ample for all the different animals which it was necessary for Noah to take along with him, including their food. Those unbelievers who argue that no ship could be made large enough to accomplish the purposes for which the ark was made, are reminded that in proportion as the theory is true, the number of animals which it was necessary for Noah to save becomes reduced, since from a much fewer primal types could the earth again be restocked. Skeptics are quite prone to use these weapons which have a double cutting edge without noticing their dangerous character until somebody gets hurt.

When everything was in readiness, Genesis tells us "the foundations of the great deep were broken up and the windows of heaven were opened," and that the rain fell in torrents for forty days and forty nights, and the water rose over the highest hill-tops and drowned all animals that breathed the air and lived on the dry land. We find upon consulting the maps that during the flood the ark was borne away to the north, showing that the phenomena of destruction was accompanied by a strong current setting in that direction. You must remember this fact, for it cuts no small figure in that which is to follow. When Noah and his family came out of the Ark God told them that he had set his bow in the clouds for a perpetual "token" of His promise not to again drown the world.

At this juncture we hear skeptics, infidels and agnostics break into a loud guffaw and exclaim that such a story is perfectly absurd. They say, and truly, indeed, that the laws of reflection and refraction of light were in existence before the flood and that there must have been rainbows, too, if it ever rained at all in those days. They also tell us that there is not enough water to cover all the "highest hills under the whole face of the heavens," and that there is no evidence worth mentioning that such an occurrence ever took place. Let us clear away a little of this Tom Paine and William Denton rubbish before we proceed.

As for the rainbow, it certainly existed before the deluge. But what was to prevent God's "appointing it," or setting it in the clouds for the "token of a promise" immediately after the deluge. This is exactly what He did do, and all that Genesis says He did. The word translated "set" in this connection has the sense of "appointed," and excellent authorities so translate it, among whom may be mentioned Thomas Hartwell Horne in his great critical work on the Scriptures published some years ago, to say nothing of many later lights. (See "Horne's Introduction," vol. 1, p. 76.) From the time the ark landed on Arrarat man was to remember for all the future that the rainbow was henceforth to be the reminder of a promise that God would not again drown the world for the sins of the people. This seems peculiarly fitting, if you recall that whenever the proper conditions exist for a rainbow, the clouds are exceedingly dark and threatening and might give rise to fears of another flood. Every time I see a rainbow I remember this promise of God, and thousands of others do the same, and thus it continues fulfilling its mission of reminding man of God's promise, although before the deluge no such signification attached to it. So much for the bow.

THE WATER SUPPLY.

The next objection is that there is not enough water on the globe to cover "the highest hills under the whole heavens." Fortuntely science, to which latterly the biblical scholar is becoming more and more indebted, by actual measurements in deep sea soundings, which are continually going on, and in which our government, through the agency of the cultured men of our navy, is taking an illustrious part off the coast of Japan, some of the results of which have recently been published in the English papers at Yokohama, come to our assistance here. And what is the general verdict?

Data has already sufficiently accumulated through these deep sea soundings to show that if God were to take a great smoothing iron and level down all the mountains and hills of both dry land and the ocean floors, so that the earth were smooth and one perfect sphere, there is water enough on the globe to cover the whole world to the depth of two miles! O, how timely is that providence of God, which makes the findings of science with which scoffers have been wont to malign the word of God, veritable boomerangs in destroying the batteries of the very men who shot them forth. Not water enough to produce a general deluge? We can cover the whole earth now to the depth of two miles, and the soundings of the next few years may demonstrate that there is enough to inundate it to a depth of ten miles! O, these persons who roll the word "science" as a sweet morsel under their tongues, while they chew the cud of agnosticism shall have plenty of it before this hour's work is finished!

Having seen that there was, because there is, water enough to make a universal deluge, the next question is, was there a deluge?

To those who have tested the internal evidences of the Scriptures, the simple statement of the Hebrew Scriptures that there was a deluge is quite sufficient. Having tried the efficacy of revelation upon their own sinful natures, they are ready to accept any of the statements found therein without further question. But a large number of people, for divers reasons crave evidence of the truth of Scripture, other than the internal evidences, so we pass on to the external proofs of the flood. Prof. Huxley, the great king infidel of this century, has said, "at the present time it is quite difficult to persuade serious scientific enquirers to occupy themselves in any way with the Noachian deluge. They look at you with a smile and a shrug," etc. The "smile and the shrug," are, to say the least, not very scientific ways of meeting any question, and those with whom the "sneer" is such a potent means of debate will find that the question of whether there was really a deluge or not cannot be settled in that way. What has tradition to say upon the subject?

A LEGEND FOR ALL.

If there never was a great inundation corresponding to the Noachian deluge it is utterly impossible to account for the universality of the traditions which have prevailed among the most ancient peoples and nations in regard to such an event. They have been found in every quarter of the globe and among the wildest races. By accepting the deluge as an established historical fact, and the survivors of that catastrophe as the ancestors of modern man, these traditions can be accounted for, and in no other way. These traditions are so numerous and so united in regard to all the salient points of the story, that the account substantially as we have it in Genesis could be produced had there never been any Hebrew scriptures.

The Chaldeans, the Egyptians, and the Assyrians, the Greeks and the Romans, the Hindoos, the Persians and the Burmans, the Chinese and the Japanese, the Mexicans, the Peruvians, the Brazilians, the Nicaraguans and the Western Caledonians, the ancient Goths and Druids, the Cree Indians in the Polar regions of North America, the Otaheitans and Sandwich Islanders before their conversion to Christianity, and numerous other nations and tribes in widely separated quarters of the globe, combine in their traditions in voicing the existence at one time of a great flood corresponding in all essential particulars with that described in the Hebrew Scriptures. Ovid's description of Ducalion's Flood is so well known and remembered by every scholar that it is needless to point out to anyone who has received the least tincture of letters that it is identical with Noah's flood. Lucian, also, describes Ducalion's flood in such a way that it leaves no ground for doubting that Ducalion and Noah were one and the same. In order that you may better judge of the nature of this similarity, I will here reproduce Lucian's description, which when it begins and when it ends he professes to have received from the Greeks, so he cannot be suspected of having borrowed from the Scripture. Here it is:

"The present race of men was not the first, but the former generation was all destroyed; this second race sprung from Ducalion; the former was a wicked and profligate generation, for which reason this great calamity befell them; the earth gave forth abundance of water, great showers of rain fell and the rivers increased, and the sea swelled to such a degree that all things were water, and all men perished. Ducalion alone was left for a second generation on account of his prudence and piety, and he was preserved in this manner: He built a great ark and entered it with his wife and children, and to him swine and horses and lions and serpents and all other creatures which the earth maintains came in pairs. He received them all and they hurt him not; on the contrary, there was by divine instinct great friendship among them, and they sailed together in the ark as long as the waters prevailed.

"Lenormant in his 'Beginnings of History,' page 490, Ed. of 1880, thus summarizes in regard to the traditions of the flood:

"The long review to which we have just applied ourselves warrants our affirming that the tale of the deluge is an universal tradition among all branches of the human family, excepting, however, the blacks. But a remembrance prevailing everywhere so concise and so concordant cannot be that of a myth arbitrarily invented. No religious or cosmogonic myth presents such a character of universality. It must of necessity be a recollection of a great and terrible occurrence, which impressed the imaginations of the ancestors of our race so powerfully as never to have been forgotten by their descendants. That cataclysm took place at a spot near the primeval cradle of humanity."

The scriptures then first say there was a flood, and we have found that tradition supports the statement. Now what says science?

An inundation of the dimensions described in Genesis ought certainly to have left its mark upon the earth so that it could not be mistaken. Whether such evidences are to be found we shall call upon the rocks to answer: In the early days of geology the fossil remains found in the rocks were too hastily attributed to the deluge. This conclusion proved to be so unscientific that it resulted in turning everybody against efforts to find physical evidences of the flood, even when they might reasonably be looked for. But lately as the glacial age is coming nearer and nearer to our own time with the general advancement in geologic research we have suddenly discovered that the earth is filled with the most unmistakable evidences of a great and quite universal inundation.

THE GLACIAL EPOCH.

"It is the united testimony of geologists that there has been a great ice age, during which the earth seems to have been elevated at the poles, thereby lifting a part of the ocean beds in their vicinity so that the Gulf stream and such other warm currents as are known to temper the climate in northern latitudes were cut off and stopped, converting the present temperate zones into polar temperatures. Vast sheets of ice, which in England and other countries reached a thickness of 6,000 feet or upwards of a mile, went walking about the world of their own sweet will. This elevation of the land was followed by the great submergence, so that the ice was not only melted away, but the sea actually covered the mountain tops, thereby destroying a number of the larger animals whose remans are still to be found. Man, who first appears just before this great catastrophe, was certainly a witness to it, and some of our most reliable geologists tell us he actually became a victim to it and perished in the icy waters of that geological convulsion. But his instruments, vessels, weapons and remains are still to be found in the debris which accumulated during these changes.

I do not ask you to accept my unaided statement in regard to these changes, because the evidence of many geologists is, in the main, right to the point and quite accessible. Let us hear a few of their latest conclusions: Prof. A. Geike, not only the greatest English geologist of the present day, but the greatest and most competent one in the whole world at the present time, in his text book of geology, p. 891, says: "Among the last and very latest changes of the globe was a great extension to the south of the conditions of climate known as glacial. During part of that time and almost certainly during the very last part of it—or even since it ended—there was, over some great part at least of the northern hemisphere a great submergance of the land under the waters of the sea.'

Mr. Skertchley of the geological survey of England and one of Her Mayesty's most celebrated geologists, says: 'It seems clear to me that man could not possibly have lived at the time when these great floods swept the country, but must have been a prior occupant whose discarded relics were swept up with the other surface matter to form sandy deposits."—Popular Science Monthly for May, 1891.

Sir William Dawson, the great Canadian geologist, says: "Let it be observed, in conclusion, that this inundation, flood or deluge, of whatever origin, occurred at the close of the Palanthropic period, and was connected with the disappearance of the men and many of the larger animals of that period, and that it was followed by the advent of modern animals and men, whose descendents still survive."

From the Parallel roads of Glen Roy in the West Highlands 2,000 feet up the mountain side stands one of the celebrated geologists of England. He has the leisure and the taste to spend much time with his chosen pastime geology. It is the Duke of Argyle. With geologic hammer in hand His Grace pauses and, with alpine stock leaning against his left shoulder, his facile pen publishes to the world this message: "Here under my feet 2,000 above the level of the sea, are the shells and fossils and remains of marine life. Over this whole district of country the evidence of the 'great submergence' is as striking as it is ubiquitous. Old ocean has been here very recently, for the marine remains to be found here are all of species yet living hereabouts. In my opinion the great submergence is among the very latest geological operations which have been at work upon our globe."—Popular Science Monthly for May, 1891, p. 61.

Anything more from the West Highlands? The vision of a man of mighty intellect arises. In spectral loneliness he stands upon the same mountain 1280 feet above the sea. It is the late lamented Charles Darwin. With note book in hand he makes careful record of the "great submergence" and his observations have become a part of the transactions of the Royal Society of England, where you may read them if you choose. He, too, has noted the presence of marine shells and fossils high above the level of the sea, and estimates the minimum depth of the great inundation at not less than 1280 feet.

Suddenly we are transported to Patagonia, the extreme southern state of South America, which you will observe is in the other half of the globe and suggests a universal submergence. Away up the Andes we behold again the shade of Charles Darwin, and there, too, he is noting the presence of marine shells and fossils high above the surrounding sea. Old ocean has been high up on the rocky ribs of the Andes, too, and that very recently, he says, as you may read in his "Naturalist's Voyage," page 170.

"On the wings of light we repair to the Snowden range in Wales. One thousand one hundred and thirty feet above the sea on the declivities of the Snowden mountains comes more evidence of the "great submergence." There, too, are marine shells and fossils of a recent epoch, and we know that the briny billows of the complaining sea have lately washed over the Welsh mountains.

Prof. Presowich, the greatest English authority on pleistocene geology, says the waters of the ocean have been over the tops of the mountains all over Wales, Ireland, Scotland and England, as you may see by reading the Proceedings of the Royal Society, No. 196.

The mountains of Russia and of all Northern Germany down to Holland have been likewise drowned in the surging billows of the ocean, for shells and fossils which are only known to live in the salt waters and belonging to species still in existence everywhere abound on their rocky surfaces.

From Calabraia in Italy and from the Island of Sicily, away up the mountains 2,400 feet above the blue Mediterranean comes the same story of a "great submergence" for Italian geologists have also found the shells and fossils remains of marine species now living, on the peaks which pierce the soft Italian skies.

A CLINCHING ARGUMENT.

All over New England, the mountains tell the same story as many of you know. And westward on the mighty Rockies, as I myself know and have personally seen, are oyster and other marine shells by the acre. Old ocean has been on these mid-continent mountains too.

And now comes the crowning achievement of geology and the greatest geological triumph of Scripture, in the discovery by Prof. Prestwich in England, of the lowest stratum or base bed of the Quaternary Series, which is but another name for the Glacial Series, and what is it? A thick stratum of marine gravel containing marine shells and fossils, overlying an old terrestrial surface on which mammalia now extinct, lived and graced and were destroyed. This bed stretches up the valley of the Thames till it reaches elevations 850 feet above the level of the sea—and alone records a depression of the land great enough to swamp, not only the greater part of Europe, but the entire part of the habitations of man all over the globe. You may read all about it in the Quarterly Journal of the Geological Society, published in February of 1890, page 85.

Genesis, then, tells us of a deluge, great enough to cover all the "high hills under the face of the whole heavens." Tradition goes the bond of the statements in Genesis, and last of all, science joins hands with these two and proclaims in thunder tones that a flood, a deluge, a "great submergence" actually did take place, and she hammers this truth home by making mallets of nearly every mountain range on the earth.

The only question which remains for us to discuss is the probability that the Noachian deluge was the same event about which geology has been telling us so graphically and satisfactorily.

The "great submergence" of which the hills have spoken, whereby the moutains of the earth were covered with shells and fossils of a bygone age, took place in the latter part or at the close of the Glacial Age. And when was the Glacial Age? Only last Sunday I explained to you in detail how we knew the Glacial Age occurred not longer ago than about 7,000 years, and possibly much more recently. (Age and origin of man.) But I omitted then to tell you that the findings of the Geodetic Surveyors of New York had been more lately most singularly verified by scientists. Five or six years ago the American Association for the advancement of science met at Niagara, and Mr. G. K. Gilbert of the United States geological survey in company with Mr. R. S. Woodward of Washington made a careful study and measurement of the gorge and its rate of increase, and science in their hands has settled beyond a reasonable doubt that that gorge which began to excavate immediately after the close of the Glacial Age, in which this "great submergence" that covered all the mountain tops formed a part, occurred not more than 7,000 years ago, with probabilities that it was even a less time than that in wearing away.

This brings the great geological inundation, on which I have been laying so much stress, down to a period sufficiently recent to correspond to the time of the deluge mentioned in Genesis.

So Niagara thunders them one event! St. Anthony's Falls at Minneapolis votes them one and the same! The recent investigations of Prof. Wright based upon the old bed of the Ohio river proclaim the "great submergence" to have been not more than 7,000 years ago—and thus we see that the deluge of Scripture and tradition telescope and become one event. Sir William Dawson in his "Natural Science and Bible Lands," published six years ago, records his conviction as to their identity, page 164, and the Duke of Argyle in language just as forcible and unmistakable repeats the refrain in the Nineteenth Century for 1891, while Mr. Howorth, a member of the English Parliament, in his learned work on the "Mammoth and the Flood," page 483, says that in his judgment, based upon the palaeontological evidence along with the traditions of the deluge, that the whole points unmistakably "to a widespread calamity, involving a flood on a great scale. I do not see how the historian, the archaelogist and the palaentologist can avoid making this conclusion in future a prime factor in their discussions, and I venture to think that before long it will be accepted as unanswerable."

HOW IT WAS DONE.

How was the deluge brought about? Prof. Huxley says that the heaping of the waters of the ocean over any particular part of the globe is a physical impossibility, and that we have no evidence of anything more than a little local flood in Mesopotamia. When Prof. Huxley admits that much in regard to anything in Holy Scripture you may be sure he has capitulated.

In the first place, no one claims that the ocean ever "heaped" itself over the land in which Noah dwelt, nor it is worth while to stop for a single moment to consider the difficulties of those who think that the Bible says that forty days and nights of rain was sufficient "to cover the high hills under the whole heaven," for the Bible makes no such statement. It says distinctly, first, that "the fountains of the great deep were broken up," which could be nothing less than the raising of the ocean floors near the equator with a corresponding depression of the elevations of land about the poles, by which means the waters of the ocean flowed over all the lands inhabited by man, producing all the phenomena hinted at in Scripture and fully proved in detail by Geology. "The fountains of the great deep were broken up," and in the meteorological disturbances which most certainly followed, the rain fell in torrents from very necessity, wild, fierce hurricanes sweep the ocean and the end of all things seem to be at hand.

No, the sea did not "heap itself" over any one place, but the hills went down into the sea, and while they were there the shells and animal life of the great deep were scattered all over their surfaces, in order that the scientists of this day and age might come to the rescue of the ward of God. The waters of the Indian ocean rose form their bed and flowed northward over lower Mesopotamia, (have you remembered what the maps told you?) carrying the ark northward on its turbulent bosom, until it landed at last on Mount Ararat. O, when I think how the ranks of skepticism and infidelity have made furious onslaughts on the Holy Scriptures, and when I recall how theologians have stood immovable in their serried ranks with lances of the spirit poised in faith alone to receive these deadly attacks, and then how the enemies of God, one after the other, have gone down and their weapons have dropped from nerveless hands only to be seized by the friends of revelation and turned against the foes of the Bible, my heart sings to God for very joy and my lips shall ever exclaim "Holy, holy, holy Lord God of hosts; heaven and earth are full of Thy glory; glory to Thee O Lord most high."

"RIGHTEOUSNESS."

A Thoughtful Discourse by the Rev. William Rader.

Righteousness was the theme on which Rev. Dr. Rader preached at the First Congregational church yesterady taking has his text: "Thy right hand is full of righteousness." Ps. 48:10.

He said: "Prof. Huxley, the dreamer economist, scientist and agnostic is dead.

"I speak of him because he represented the school of thought which tried the impossible task of separating virtue from religion, righteousness from God. It would have been an easier task to remove the Alps from their foundations.

"The text is a noble contradiction of the theory that righteousness comes from the dust. The Psalmist traces it up to the Deity.

"In the old pictures of the gods Neptune holds a trident, Apollo arrows, Mercury a wand, Minerva a scroll, Venus a golden apple. The Deity of David holds aloft amid all the centuries which have and will be, the eternal righteousness of God.

"It is an old word. It is spoken in all languages. Before Moses was born it was uttered in Egypt. It is the one word of which contains the ideal of life.

"Originally it meant straight or true to a rule. When some ancient Mason constructed a city wall, or cathedral, and found his work answering to the plumb line, he said 'rectus.' It conformed to a perfect standard.

"In the moral world, it is precisely the same. It is being morally plumb, square to the obligation right with God. Rightness is righteousness.

"That which the Psalmist saw in the right hand of God was the mightiest thing in the world. It was power. The dynamo force of righteousness has never been measured. It is unexhaustible. Napoleon was wrong when he said God was on the side of the heaviest battallions. Gideon would not agree with Napoleon. A small company shall put ten thousand to flight. Righteousness is power.

"Their strength is as the strength of ten because their hearts are pure.

"It was law. In the hand was laws' millenum. There was justice and judgment. Righteousness is always and everywhere judgment. Julia Warde Howe expressed the same thought in the lines:

'He hath loosed the fateful lightnings
of his terrible swift sword,
His truth is marching on.'

"It was this law of political justice which blazed in the camp fires along the Delaware, and rolled in heroic thunder from the continental drums.

"It was courage. It is righteousness that has made statesmen great, and given them an iron purpose. It made Moses the sublime Puritan leader of the people. It gave Harryden to England and Washington to America. It caused Henry Clay to say 'I would rather be right than be president.' It put a diamond point upon the holy pen of Lincoln. In St. Gauden's Puritan we see this unflinching courage in the broad brow and firm set lips.

"It was heroism. The kiss which held the head of the dying, and lead in the Roman arena, that enters jails and hospitals, and suffers with the suffering, and surenders itself to the pitiless scourge of famine or war. It nerved the arm of Grace Darling as she ploughed a pathway through the surf and gave inspiration to every heroic deed the world has ever known.

"It was freedom. No man is entirely free until he ceases to care what will happen in this world or in the next, as long as he does right. The righteous man is alone free.

"It was character. Religion is measured by character. A man has as much religion as character. If he is six feet in character, he measures that in religion. The one is always to be tested by the other. A prayer may be a blos-ligion is an emotion, righteousness a springing up in the rich soil of the soul, but character is ripe fruit without a worm in it.

"Whatever may be given as the definition of religion it is forever true that religion and righteousness are one. Religion is an emotion,, righteousness a reality. Religion creates righteousness, and both center in God. Neither springs from the clod. Both came from God. They are God.

"Edward Burke says: 'Religion is the foundation of society;' and Benjamin Kidd calls the religion the chief factor of the world's progress. The God of religion is the God of righteousness.

"Religion creates righteousness by its outlook. As men go up on Mt. Hamilton at night and look through the Lick telescope at other worlds, so does the soul come to religion to see other worlds, to hear some footfall of angel feet, to gaze into the ineffable glory on the other side of the grave. The vast vision of religion is a motive to live a righteous life.

"The literature of religion is the Bibble. The Bible did not make religion. Religion made the Bible. It was the divine artist which placed in its gallery of immortals the matchless models of righteousness. The Bible incites a desire to be righteous. If your Bible. The Bible did not make religsomething wrong. If you do not feel a deep desire to be a better man after reading your Bible, you are radically wrong. The gospel is the power of God unto salvation.

"By incarnation of Jesus Christ, He gathered this righteousness in His own bosom, and came down to flash it upon the world to teach men the character of God to fulfill this righteousness, and to demonstrate its power. The Psamist saw it in the uplifted hand, but we believed it manifested in the person of Christ. He reveals it to the world and the world in accepting Him realizes this righteousness.

EVANGELIST VARLEY.

The English Revivalist on the Effect of Sin.

There was a large audience in the First Baptist church last night to listen to the Rev. Henry Varley, the English revivalist, who made so many friends here several months ago. He spoke from the text, "But God forbid that should glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom the world was crucified unto me and I unto the world."

The words of the text, he claimed, are addressed to the church of God. "As some of you are aware," he said, "there is being held in England a general election for the purpose of government. Such an election is going on here now for the government in the time to come. It is the Lord's dispensation. When the choice is complete then the fullness of time, which has been delineated, will be consummated. I hope that many of my hearers have been chosen. God has chosen and patterned His children after His Son, Jesus Christ; they are all to be represented in the government beyond and are all described as the heirs of God."

Speaking about the prevalence and enormity of sin, he said. "Sensuality is reigning rampant everywhere in San Francisco. If any man here loves the sin-feted world, so well, the lust of flesh, the lust of the eye and the pride of life; if you sanction these things the love of the Father is not in you. I will tell you the true meaning of the word 'cross.' It is not the jet black ornament that ladies wear or the transverse wooden piece upon your pulpits. It does not mean the afflictions or trials that some people call crosses. It means nothing but the sacrifice of the Son of God. I do not believe the Holy Spirit ever meant that it should mean anything else.

"Your personality is the worst enemy you have. It is not the wrong that you do, but the wrong that you know is in your nature. This cross alone can save you from yourself and resurrect you. I am glad that I am dead to the world and my past life buried. There are too many unburied Christians in Oakland. You cannot play fast and loose with God."

CHURCH CHAT.

Personals About Pastors and News of the Parishes.

The committee of the First Congregational church to whom has been referred the matter of recommending names from which to select a pastor to succeed Rev. Dr. McLean, is working earnestly on the subject. The names of several clergymen are now under consideration, among them being that of Rev. Wm. Rader, who is now and has been for several years the associate pastor of the church. Mr. Rader is warmly supported by many of the leading members of the society and his friends are working earnestly in his behalf.

Rev. James Small who, for several weeks past, has been filling, in a satisfactory manner, the pulpit of the First Christian church, has gone to Tacoma for the purpose of bringing his wife to this city. He has not as yet accepted the pastorate of the church and will not until after he shall have returned and established his home here. After the congregation had listened to Mr. Small's sermons for several weeks they unanimously extended to him a call to assume the pastorate charge of the church.

Rev. Walter Frear of Oakland lectured at the Sumner school at Cazadero recently on "Missionary Work in Turkey."

The regular weekly meeting of the Institute of Applied Christianity will be held this evening as usual in the lower assembly room of Asbury church, corner Clay and Fifteenth streets. These meetings are always open to the general public and a cordial invitation is extended to all who are interested to attend as frequently as possible. No admission fees. No collections. The topic this evening is "Laws of Social Development." President Rader will give the paper, after the reading of which there will be opportunity for full discussion.
